

Beach Student Studies In Austria

By Randy Mink

A small Austrian town in the Alps was home for Jack Steffe, a senior at Princess Anne High School, this past summer.

Steffe said the people in Lienz, Austria, were friendly and not caught in the kind of "rat race" he said he experienced in larger European cities during his four-week stay abroad.

He attended a session organized by the American Institute for Foreign Study and held at the modern Bundeskonvikt Lienz, one of Austria's top boarding schools. Steffe went with a group from Norfolk.

The program included classes in German conversation, European culture and Alpine geography as well as activities like mountain hiking, swimming, basketball, volleyball and soccer.

"Even when you played basketball," Steffe remarked, "there was natural beauty all around."

He said the Americans had to adjust to meals that usually consisted of soup, meat, noodles and potatoes, but no hamburgers. Breakfast was always rolls, jam, and hot chocolate or tea. "And nobody dreams of using ice in drinks," Steffe added.

But the pastry shops of Lienz were popular with the young Americans. Steffe said, "You get hypnotized and want to buy everything in sight."

Besides meeting Austrians, Steffe students from many parts of the United States. Attending the AIFS program were groups from Louisiana, Florida, Nevada, Wyoming, California, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Indiana.

The Norfolk group made independent excursions to Vienna and Munich. On the Munich trip they had to bed down all night in a small Austrian train station with Yugoslav peasants, Turkish workers, a British couple and an Australian backpacker after missing a connection.

The AIFS program included side trips to Venice, Italy, and Salzburg, Austria, where "The Sound of Music" was filmed. A few days in Paris ended the four weeks overseas.

Steffe was his group's student council representative and was editor the campus newspaper.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson Steffe Sr. 620 Thalia Point Road.

Information on study abroad programs is available from the American Institute for Foreign Study, 102 Greenwich Ave., Greenwich, Conn. 06830. All programs are fully bonded as required by Civil Aeronautics Board study charter regulations.

the Press Woman of the Year for 1972 at the annual awards banquet. Speaker for the banquet was the nationally syndicated columnist James J. Kilpatrick, former editor of the Richmond News-Leader.

In making the announcement, Mrs. Bolingaga said that nominations for Mrs. Phillips, a member of VPW since 1958, had been received "from all over the state . . . from Roanoke, Richmond, Lynchburg, Petersburg . . . from all over Virginia." The recipient is always a well-guarded secret until the night of the awards banquet. Other members of the award committee, which made the final selection, were Mrs. Sison, Family Living editor of the Ledger-Star, and Mrs. Storm, woman's editor of the Newport News Daily Press.

Mrs. Phillips has been managing editor of The Sun since April, 1970. For five years prior to that she was assistant director of public relations of the Virginia State Ports Authority (now the Virginia Ports Authority) and from 1961 to 1965 was news editor of the Virginia Beach Sun-News (previous name of The Sun).

Since moving to Virginia Beach from Florida in 1956, she has been active in Boy and Girl Scouts, Red Cross, American Cancer Society, PTA, UCF, Child and Family Service and other groups.

She has received nearly 30 state and national awards for writing and editing, as well as citations from Boy Scouts of America, American Cancer Society, American Red Cross, Beach Jaycees, the Young Artists of Village Gallery, and is an honorary Cub Scout in Pack 479.

Mrs. Phillips has been managing editor of The Sun since April, 1970. For five years

An oyster bar and chuck wagon will be open during the auction and a nursery and entertainment will be provided for children.

PAUL TABLER AND Harold Casey obtained the rank of Eagle Scout recently at the Kempsville Presbyterian Church. The awards were presented by Rep. William Whitehurst, who was guest speaker. Harold, 16, of 933 Adolph Road, has been a scout for five years and is presently serving as junior assistant scoutmaster of Troop 448. Paul, 14, no longer lives in the Beach area (his military father was transferred to Annadale, Va.) but spend the past two years here working for the rank of Eagle Scout. Paul is shown on the right of Rep. Whitehurst and Harold is to the left.

Mixed Emotions Over CZO Revisions

criticized the new ordinance as denying oceanfront property owners ample view of the beach through set-back requirements. Darden pointed to earlier requirements of building at 30 feet from the rear property line, while revisions would permit construction 10 feet from this line. This, he contended, would place structures in position to block view of adjoining residents. Darden requested revision of the 30-foot set-back requirement.

Planning Director Charles C. Carrington said, "I think this should be done, but don't know how to achieve it until the zoning maps are complete."

Professional planner Pat Standing expressed concern that "Non-conforming uses would endanger North Virginia Beach from being classified as a residential district."

Mole assured Standing, "We are not striving to create any more of this kind of use in North Virginia Beach."

At the close of more than two hours discussion the Planning Commission unanimously approved the CZO in its amended form, on a motion from James C. Donnelly seconded by J. Roy Alphin, and forwarded the material to City Council for adoption.

Carnival Held

The Old Donation Elementary School PTA will hold its Fall Carnival Saturday from 12:30 p.m. on the school grounds on Ferry Plantation Road.

Included in the fun will be a space walk, pony rides, games, food and drink. Everyone is invited to attend.

O'Leary Starts Cruise Company

By LOIS GLUHAREFF

Richard O'Leary, president of Cruise International, brings to his position quite a history of maritime experience. Some of his past positions include being navigator of the cruise ship, United States; serving as Commandant of Kings Point, the Merchant Marine Academy on Long Island in New York, and serving as Assistant General Manager of the Norfolk Port Authority. Now, O'Leary has started his own company—Cruise International.

According to O'Leary the idea of Cruise International is to provide shorter cruises, so that more people are able to afford them.

O'Leary dropped his favorite subject long enough to give some of his thoughts on Virginia Beach and how it could and will be affected by the growing cruise business in the Tidewater Area. He seems to feel that the hotels and motels in Virginia Beach should take advantage of the influx of cruise travelers who will come to the area this winter and make a push to get them to stay in Virginia Beach before and after their cruise, which would help turn Virginia Beach into a truly year-round resort area. Another brain-storm of O'Leary's is the possibility of Virginia Beach, larger cruise ships. He feels himself, going into the cruise business. He admits that he has not looked into the economic feasibility but that Lynnhaven Inlet could be dredged to the necessary depth to handle the Classes will be held on the first and third Monday of each month commencing November 6, 1972 and will start promptly at 2 p.m. Food service workers attending must bring their old permits with them, or if applying for the first time, should bring a recent photograph approximately 2x2 inches in size.

Applicants meeting the above should have to make only one visit to the training class. It is emphasized that current permits will continue to be valid until normal expiration, which is one year after issue. Any questions may be addressed to the Food Service Bureau, phone 426-4261.

— Special Report from Washington —
THE LANSKY MEMOS
 By Jack Anderson

1972 Pulitzer Prize Winner for National Reporting
 (Copyright, 1972, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON—The U.S. Justice Department secretly furnished Israel with Internal Revenue and Immigration Service memos to help convince Israeli authorities to deport aging crime lord, Meyer Lansky.

Lansky tried to take advantage of Israel's strong refugee law, which offers a home to all Jewish refugees. But the Israeli authorities decided that the law was not intended to protect fugitives from justice. Lansky has been given a one-way ticket back to the United States, where he faces federal charges.

Among the U.S. documents supplied to the Israelis was an Immigration Service memo linking Lansky to the notorious gangster "Bugs" Siegel. The memo quotes an informant named Benjamin Baron as saying that Lansky "was a co-leader with Bugs Siegel of a gang employed as 'protection' of a bootlegging combine and... was involved in murder and kidnaping."

A memo from the Internal Revenue Service summed up Lansky's career in these words: "Lansky's history shows that he has been a criminal all his adult life. During the entire time he was closely associated, both personally and in his business rackets, with many of the leading criminals in the United States."

—Blacks Pressure All—
 Black leaders in America and Africa are trying quietly to persuade boxer Muhammad Ali to give up his military service.

—Intelligence Reports—
 War Widens—Israel apparently is planning military operations against both Iraq and Libya for their support of Palestinian terrorists.

most knowledgeable police officials say that the crime wave is an illusion caused by a uniform system of crime reporting put into effect two years ago. As a result, crimes not previously reported in Philadelphia are now showing up on the record books.

Deadly Sleighs—The winter snowfalls are expected to bring out more than one million snowmobiles, but owners are cautioned that last winter over one hundred people died and 6,000 were injured riding this modern version of the one-horse-open-sleigh. The safety hazards continue to worry federal regulators.

Hungry hogs—A group of hog farmers have complained to us that people are getting too finicky about their garbage. Incinerators and trash compressors have replaced garbage dumps in so many eastern cities that farmers cannot get enough loose garbage to feed their hogs. Out West, farmers can grow grain to fatten hogs, but on smaller eastern farms, the hog raisers complain they are going out of business. They warn this will mean higher pork and bacon prices.

—Political Potpourri—
 Our political polster, Jimmy the Greek, recently surveyed 400 Democrats in a titanium plant in Toronto, Ohio, that found a whopping 62 per cent favoring Richard Nixon in the presidential race. Apparently, McGovern's appeal to labor in Ohio are not catching on. In New York, friction has developed between Governor Nelson Rockefeller and the President's campaign organization. Rockefeller has grumped privately that he is supposed to have a free hand to run the President's New York campaign. McGovern campaign aides in California are gloomy about their man's prospects. Organizational problems have plagued the liberal Californians. One major problem is that too many aides have become involved in local issues not directly associated with the presidential race.

—Lest We Forget—President Nixon told visitors privately the other day that he was distressed over the ITT and Watergate scandals, but that he didn't think they would hurt him on election day. They were too complicated, he said, for the public to understand. The President also commented that the public's memory on government scandals was short. He suggested that the voters have already forgotten, for example, what the ITT scandal was all about.

Testimonial Deserved

Hundreds of Beach citizens will tonight honor Congressman Thomas N. Downing at a testimonial dinner at the Cavalier Hotel. It is a fitting honor to an elected official who for years, though he was a Peninsula resident, fought for this city's welfare in Congress.

Congressman Downing, because of the recent redistricting, no longer serves as Virginia Beach's representative. But those who have lived here for any length of time can well remember—and appreciate—the benefits to this city because of his efforts.

In 1964, for instance, the Appropriations Committee struck from its budget the necessary funding for the dredging of Lynnhaven Inlet. In an unprecedented move, Mr. Downing had the appropriation reinstated and the work of the Army Corps of Engineers opened the nearly un navigable strip of water that fed Broad and Linkhorn bays.

Mr. Downing will no longer represent Virginia Beach. But he deserves this city's thanks for many years of devoted service. And tonight's testimonial dinner is Virginia Beach's chance, perhaps its final opportunity, to publicly express to Mr. Downing a show of appreciation for a job well done, a way of saying "thank you!"

Handgun Legislation

The response to the Sun Survey question concerning legislation to ban "Saturday Night Special" handguns was fairly well split, with a slight majority against such legislation.

A reader favoring the legislation wrote: "I can see a responsible man with the knowledge of how and when to use firearms owning and properly caring for them because man is by nature a collector of things that 'prove' his manhood—but these

"Saturday Night Special" handguns are out and out dangerous. Except for police, who are thoroughly trained to use them, there is no need for pistols of any kind in this day and age. Rifles, yes, as hunting (in moderation), for game and sport of animals is still practiced. BUT, the average citizen hasn't proper knowledge and usually panics, missing the arms. As for protection, there are numerous other ways a person can use to protect against crime. Even if you are the victim, you could be arrested and jailed for shooting the burglar of moles."

Registering a voice against such legislation, a reader wrote: "Saturday Night Special is a propaganda's Special. Who could be for such a bad sounding item? But check the pending legislation—

POLITICS in a NUTSHELL

By MIRT BABUDER
 The race is flying in the Fourth District this week. Both Congressman William Whithurst and Charles Burlage, 4th district Congressional Candidate are throwing it.

"My opponent hasn't said anything of note in this campaign... but there is something noteworthy about his company," says Whithurst.

"A serious question has arisen regarding the contribution by V.H. Monette of thousands of dollars to the campaign of G. William Whithurst," says Burlage.

Whithurst points out an article in the Virginian-Pilot of Sept. 27, that Burlage "once again disavowed the Democratic presidential ticket." and yet "the day before that same newspaper tells of a rally for McGovern workers to be held behind my opponent's headquarters on Sunday, Sept. 10, with my opponent scheduled to speak."

Burlage points out "The Federal election law seems clear when it states that a military supply cannot contribute directly or indirectly to candidates for Congress."

Burlage stated that "V.H. Monette Company sells millions of dollars worth of merchandise to Military post exchanges and commissaries around the world... Mr. Monette now admits that he has given some forty to fifty thousand dollars to other Congressional candidates."

Whithurst declared "that rally was organized for the purpose of putting on a registration drive to get votes for George McGovern. My opponent may say one thing, depending on the audience, but his actions speak for themselves. He is actively working for the election of the man who would cut over $30 billion from our defense budget."

Burlage declared, "As a result of our concern we have filed a complaint with the clerk of the United States house of representatives because we consider the entire practice highly questionable under the current law. At worst it's a violation of Federal law and at least it's a good example of how big business gains favors with the government."

 ROBERT R. HARDY, Independent Congressional Candidate for the Fourth District, stated that "national defense is the number one priority of the Federal Government. Without a strong enough defense to preserve our national sovereignty, the best of domestic programs would be no accord," Hardy stated. Once identified with closely Virginia's Democratic Party, Hardy said he chose to run as an independent "because of disagreement with certain defense policies of McGovern and Nixon." Hardy has also called for a stoppage of all trade to communist nations supplying the armies of North Vietnam.

 Delegate ROBERT E. GIBSON, 4th District Congressional candidate, attacked property taxes—calling for senior citizen tax relief. Gibson claims that property tax is "regressive, falling very heavily on renters middle and low-income working men and women, family farmers and especially the elderly. It is of great concern to me that our retired senior citizens in many areas of the state and nation continue to pay the same property taxes they did when enjoying a higher pre-retirement level of income," Gibson stated. Gibson feels that the problem may be solved by revenue sharing between the State and Federal government.

 According to BOB DANIEL 4th District Congressional Candidate, the efforts of President Nixon are responsible for slowing crime growth in the nation. The Republican candidate said that he was "encouraged" by the FBI crime report released by the Justice Department last Thursday. Speaking to the Churchland Jaycees, Daniel said "The FBI report shows an increase of one per cent in the crime rate for the first six months of this year the lowest increase in 12 years. While I am encouraged by these figures," Daniel said, "I will not be satisfied until the crime rate is reduced." Daniels feels the passage of the three major anti-crime bills by the President are responsible for the reduction in crime and that the President has done more to combat crime on a national level than anyone else.

 Second District Congressman WILLIAM WHITEHURST and Congressman WILLIAM L. SCOTT, candidate for the U.S. Senate, have received the "watchdog of the Treasury Award" from the National Associated Businessmen, Incorporated. The award is given to Members of Congress and the Senate who "consistently vote for meaningful economy in government as opposed to unnecessarily inflated Federal spending." Scott has now received the award for his actions in the 90th, 91st, and 92nd Congresses; Whithurst received the award for his action in the 92nd Congress.

FROM THE CANDIDATES:
CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM L. SCOTT, candidate for the U.S. Senate, pointed out that Congressional approval of a bill he sponsored calling for 10-year terms for Federal judges "subject to reconfirmation and reappointment — would be a 'significant step toward upgrading and improving our judicial system.'" Scott said the bill "would offer a welcome change to our present system that allows Federal judges to be exempt from public accountability for their stewardship." Scott, who is a lawyer and member of the Fair County Bar Association, said a change in the law "would still result in an independent judiciary but it would tend to minimize arbitrary action by the courts."

Work For CZO

The monumental task of preparing a workable zoning plan for the city cleared one of its major hurdles last Thursday when the Planning Commission approved an amended version of the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance.

Representing immeasurable manhours of research, study and evaluation, the CZO is designed to permit an orderly growth of Virginia Beach, while considering the individual boroughs of the City. It is the first master zoning ordinance to govern use of the city's land and property since the merger of what is now Virginia Beach Borough with former Princess Anne County nearly ten years ago.

Although designed to replace former County and Borough zoning ordinances, which have become antiquated by today's standards, the CZO was drafted to incorporate provisions of both former ordinances to benefit the majority of people in the city.

While the approved CZO text will certainly fail to please everyone in Virginia Beach, it represents the consensus of public opinion. This is documented in the nearly 200 amendments to the Planning Department's original draft following workshop sessions between Planning Commissioners and public business, civic and professional representatives.

Completion of the Zoning Maps is expected within weeks. At that time the public will be invited to comment on their design, to voice approval or rejection.

As with the zoning ordinance, the maps certainly will not win unanimous approval from all segments of the city. Hopefully, however, these objections will not require major revisions. Should this occur the City will be right back where it was months ago, striving to develop Virginia Beach into the City for which it has the potential while attempting to cope with rapid growth through the use of outdated standards.

City Council is scheduled to consider the adoption of the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance and accompanying Zoning Maps in its meeting December 4. With the accomplishment of the longawaited, and diligently strived for, goal in sight, may we all put forth a concentrated effort to assist in every way possible to realize the objective.

Can You Vote?

Mrs. Anna H. Cotton, Virginia Beach Registrar, has called attention to the fact that Virginia law now requires that all voters shall vote only in the precinct in which they reside.

If you now reside in a different precinct from where you are registered, you should immediately contact the Office of the General Registrar at 427-4867 and notify your change of address to avoid any question as to eligibility.

The deadline for transferring is Saturday, October 7, 1972 and your failure to comply with the law may keep you from voting in November.

Fire Prevention Week Begins This Week Marks

This week marks the beginning of Fire Prevention Week. As the annual campaign begins its second half-century it will be well to review some of the grim statistics on fire, and reflect on the increasingly important role of the fireman today.

The Insurance Information Institute says that some 12,200 persons died in fires last year, the sixth straight year such death topped the 12,000 mark. Even worse, among children 1-14, it was the leading killer in home accidents.

In economic terms the Institute reports that during 1970 and 1971 fires destroyed more than $4.5 billion in property, and nearly two million buildings fires occurred during the period.

As bad as the figures are, they would have been considerably worse had it not been for the efforts of fire departments across the nation. The jobs done by fire fighters can be appreciated even more when one realizes that they often are forced to battle fires of the 1970s with equipment of the 1940s. For in many communities where there have been "taxpayer revolutions" fire department budgets had not been increased in relation to boosts in construction and population.

The Presidential Commission on Fire Prevention and Control in its first report to Congress stressed the importance of fire prevention, and noted that there was a disproportionate amount being spent on suppression as against prevention. Unhappily, the reluctance of voters to increase taxes has forced a cut-back on the local fire department's role in fire prevention.

Still, most departments speak before and present demonstrations to audiences of all types in preaching the fire safety gospel.

Bayh Bill Is Not Selective

To the Editor:
 The elimination of "Saturday Night Specials" is certainly a worthy objective which everyone should support. Unfortunately, the presently considered enabling legislation in the form called the Bayh Bill is not definitely selective.

For example, eleven of Smith & Wesson's thirty-three models would be eliminated. Their models start out at about $85 and I personally own one which retails for $102. The ban on the "poorly made, cheap specials" reaches as $145 models. This is an example of how the law really doesn't work as propounded by Senator Bayh.

We need more stringent enforcement and laws demanding mandatory severe sentences for commission of violent crimes. We don't need more useless laws which restrict honest citizens and are ignored by lawbreakers.

Sincerely,
 Stuart R. Bryant

Coming Jaycette events include an October Pot Luck Dinner, Homecraft Show at the Virginia Beach Dome on October 13, 14, & 15th, and the November Herbert Harrell Flower Show presented by Jaycee Wayne Jones.

moratorium on all new hospital construction because of apparent over-capacity in beds.

(2) The present size of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach does not warrant the specialized medical facilities such as cobalt therapy, kidney dialysis, or neuro-surgery now available only in Norfolk. A second hospital in Virginia Beach will syphon off the growth necessary to provide these facilities, which are available only to large hospitals, and will delay for a long time, if not forever, such a center at Virginia Beach.

The hospital intends to oppose the application at the Council meeting on October 9, and will amplify its position in a more complete statement at that time.

Handmade With Love For The Flea Market

By LORNA KELLER

A young lady of varied talents, Miss Martha Blair, 20, of the Beach will be selling handmade items at the 1972 WOW Flea Market being sponsored by the Women of Wesleyan College.

styles of berets and a brimmed hat to place among her wares. Baby bunnings lined with flannel and tiny baby booties of crocheted cotton will also be available.

The belts she has created are made of heavy carpet yarn. Other accessories include clip-on earrings. Using a small plastic ring for all but one pair she has made dainty crocheted flowers of pink and blue and of red and white thread, mod

Miss Blair inspects some of the articles she will be selling at her booth at the Flea Market. She crocheted the shawl she is modeling.

Independence Boulevard and Hilland Road.

Miss Blair, an art student at Old Dominion College, will have numerous crocheted articles, wooden key chains, silk scrunch notecards, gift enclosure cards and other handmade items for shoppers visiting her booth to look over. She will also have a variety of items donated by friends on display.

This is the first year she has bought a booth at the Flea Market but she is looking forward to the event with enthusiasm, Miss Blair commented.

"I've always liked to visit Flea Markets so decided I'd like to participate in one."

She was familiar with the Flea Market sponsored by the Women of Wesleyan and was aware that she did have some difficulty contacting anyone connected with it. She was persistent, however, and eventually discovered the proper person to contact for an application.

Most of the items she will have in her booth have been made especially to sell at the Flea Market. A short-sleeved coral sweater and hat set, however, began as an outfit for one of her sisters, she laughingly admitted. Upon completion she discovered it was too small.

She has made several crocheted hats including two yellow and red dangling earrings and simple purple and white circle ones. Solid colored shawls, vests, purse, potholders and sweaters complete the crocheted articles.

Her talents were called upon to fashion tote bags of different colors and sizes out of material left over from other projects. She also whipped up some matching chef aprons and mitts styled out of printed denim. For something a little different, she made hot pants out of fur.

The two-by-two inch key blocks have simple designs painted with acrylics. Water colors were used for the Christmas themes denoted on the gift enclosure cards.

Quail and bee designs enhance the note cards made with silk screening. Each package contains 10 cards and envelopes. She brightened up a quilted mattress cover by painting patterns on it with acrylics.

She learned to crochet over a year ago after seeing patterns she liked in various magazines.

She has been sewing for about six years and does alterations and makes garments for friends. She used "word-of-mouth advertising."

Anyone interested in joining Miss Blair and others at the Flea Market may call Mrs. M. V. Taylor Jr. at 489-2495 or Mrs. E. L. Toler at 428-3173. The person setting up the booth retains all profits from any Clinton Cuffee, Kellam's leading ground-gainer, found a hole and cut back across the field for a good gain.

Defensive Unit Scores Twice As Chiefs Beat Knights 20-6

The Kempville defense again proved to be a powerful force as the Chief defensive unit paved the way for the team's 20-6 win over Kellam. Statistically, Kellam had more offense and more first downs. In actuality, Kempville won the game.

Kempville's defense forced and recovered two Kellam fumbles and intercepted three Kellam passes. Two of the fumbles resulted in Kempville scores.

In the first quarter, junior defensive back Rickey Bliese picked up Kellam's first fumble and raced 35 yards downfield for six points. The kick failed, but the Kempville defensive unit had put a 6-0 lead on the scoreboard by the end of the first quarter.

Rickey Bliese also figured in the next Chief score. He pounced on another Knight fumble on Kellam's own ten yard line. A Frank Welch to Bo Barker pass was good for ten yards and a touchdown. The Chiefs tried a two-point conversion on a run, but Kellam held, and the half ended with Kempville in front 12-0.

After a scoreless third quarter, both teams put points on the scoreboard in the final period. Kim Brown caught and returned a Kempville punt 20 yards to set up Kellam's only touchdown. Tim Harris powered over the goal line from two yards out to put six points on Kellam's side of the big board. The conversion kick failed.

The Kempville defensive unit added six more points minutes later. Elisha "Cadillac" Harris intercepted a Kellam pass and raced 33 yards for the score. Brian Catlin ran the conversion attempt in for two points, and the final score read Kempville 20, Kellam 6.

Frank Welch completed one of six passes for the Chiefs, and Kellam's Chuck Edwards connected on nine of 15 pass attempts for 105 yards. Bill Dragas, Kempville's speedy halfback, was leading rusher for the game, carrying the ball 15 times and gaining 85 yards. Clinton Cuffee led Kellam rushers with 55 yards in a dozen carries.

The win moved Kempville into third place in the Eastern District with a 3-1 record. The Chiefs have an overall 3-1 record '00, and they are the winningest team in Virginia Beach four games into the season. Kellam is 0-2 in the District and 1-2 overall.

Princess Anne's Tim Mishkofski (83) puts the squeeze on Granby quarterback Bobby Vittek. Ronnie Savage (67), Craig Vosler (15), and Danny Allen (60) move in to assist.

Comets Dazzle P.A. For 20-6 Victory

The passing of Bobby Vittek, the running of Leonard Tatem, and the receiving of Isaiah Thornton spelled doom for the Cavaliers of Princess Anne last Friday night. The three stars of the now-streaking Granby Comets led their team to a stunning 20-6 upset of the Cavaliers.

Vitek completed 11 of 16 passes for 157 yards and scored one touchdown himself. Tatem carried the ball 22 times, gained 146 yards, and scored two touchdowns. Thornton caught seven passes for 117 yards.

Princess Anne's lone score came with 2:33 left in the third quarter. Quarterback Mike Ange hit end Robert Hughes with a 27-yard pass for the touchdown. The try for a two-point conversion failed when a stubborn Granby defense stopped the ball-carrier short of the end-zone. Another Ange touchdown pass, a 55-yarder, was nullified because of a major penalty for holding.

Mark Wilcox and Carl Makley were the leading rushers for Princess Anne. Wilcox gained 11 yards in six tries, and Makley carried the ball five times for 34 yards. Mike Ange completed five of 17 passes for 59 yards.

Robert Hughes and Mike Casey were the leading Cavalier receivers. Hughes caught four passes for 29 yards, and Casey hauled in three for 27 yards.

Granby totally dominated the game. The Comet offense gained 325 yards, 168 on the ground and 157 through the air, and made 16 first downs. The Granby defense held Princess Anne to 90 total offensive yards, 31 by rushing and 59 by passing, and four first downs.

The game was remarkably free of errors considering the muddy field and the scattered showers. Neither team was able to intercept an opponent's pass, and only one fumble was lost in the overall District standings.

The loss dropped Princess Anne to an even 2-2 overall record, but their new 1-2 conference record dropped them in the overall District standings.

The Comets now have a 1-1-1 overall and District mark. It appears that the Comets are beginning to put everything together now that they are three games into the season. They lost their opener to First Colonial, tied their second game with Bayside, and won their third game in Cavalier Stadium Friday night.

Cox quarterback Billy Ittner (13) keeps his cool as he looks downfield for a target. An Oscar Smith defender breaks through into the pocket formed by his blockers.

Strong Second Half Gives Cox 12-6 Win Over Smithies

The Cox-Oscar Smith game Friday night was a real gasser. It had one of those first halves that would make a great halftime show set to music during one of the televised NFL games. Players were running, fumbling, passing, intercepting, and running into referees. All the first half needed was a little ballet music and to be rerun in slow motion. The laughs were all there.

Cox eventually won the game 12-6. In fact, the Cox Falcons completely dominated the game, yet they trailed 6-0 at the half and were tied 6-6 at the end of the third quarter. The Cox fans were as frustrated as the players and coaches they were rooting for the first half, because, try as they might, Cox just could not score.

Two-thirds of the way through the first quarter, Charles Holman pounced on an Oscar Smith fumble, but the officials gave the ball back to Oscar Smith. The ball was dead, they said, but the very controversial call was the beginning of Cox's frustrations.

Two plays later, Oscar Smith scored their first touchdown. A two-point conversion run failed when tackle Bill Span tripped up the ball-carrier, but Oscar Smith had a 6-0 lead.

When Cox got the ball back after the kickoff, they drove down to Oscar Smith's 16-yard line. There they turned the ball over to Oscar Smith on downs. The drive was highlighted by a quick 8-yard flat pass to Brooks Williams, who ran for 38 more yards after the catch, to move the ball to Oscar Smith's 16.

In the second quarter, Cox forced Oscar Smith to punt from their own 35-yard line. The snap to the punter sailed high over his head.

The punter won the race with three Cox defensemen to the ball, picked it up, headed toward the sidelines, and kicked the ball off the side of his foot on the run. A Cox player catches the ball, takes one step, is tackled, fumbles, and Oscar Smith recovers—still at their own 35-yard line. But, it was a first down.

Near the end of the half, Cox had a long punt return wiped out by a penalty. The highlight of the play came when the runner ran into an official near the sidelines. The official apparently did not want to step out of bounds because of a large pool of water, and the runner could not cut back into the field because of a would-be tackler. So he ran as far as he could, the play finally ended when he hit the official.

Cox tied the score in the third quarter when fullback Randy Robinson broke a couple of tackles and raced 20 yards into the end zone. A pun for two points failed, but the scoreboard now read 6-6.

John Zimmerly scored the winning touchdown when he powered his way over the goal stripe from four yards out. Another two-point conversion attempt failed, but Cox had enough points to win the game 12-6.

Cox racked up 15 first downs to Oscar Smith's 6. The Falcons had 290 yards of total offense to 185 for their foes. Cox rushers churned out 225 yards on the ground, and quarterback Billy Ittner accounted for the rest. Ittner completed three of eight passes for 55 yards. Brooks Williams made some outstanding catches, and he was

Some fine offensive blocking gives Kempville quarterback Frank Welch (12) time to unload his pass. Kellam's Isom Young (71) is rushing in with outstretched arms as Brian Catlin (21) prepares to block him out.

Squires' Play At P.A. Sat.

The Virginia Squires will play an intrasquad game in the Princess Anne High School field house this Saturday night, October 7th. The 7:30 p.m. contest will benefit the scholarship fund of the sponsoring Princess Anne Booster Club.

Last year's game was a complete sellout. Every seat in the P.A. field house was taken with a cheering Squires fan. Saturday night's game will be the first time this season that many local fans will be able to see the "new-look" Squires. An added incentive will be five to ten season passes, which will be awarded to lucky ticket holders after the game.

Wings Open On Scope Ice

Coach Doug Barkley's "new look" Virginia Wings will be on Virginia ice twice this weekend. On Friday night, they will open their season in the Richmond Coliseum, and on Sunday they will be in Tidewater for their Scope opener.

Tickets are on sale at all Ticketron locations for both games, and Scope reserved seats are scaled at $3, $4, and $5. Sunday's game will feature the Hershey Bears, a team that has looked real good in preseason exhibitions.

Ninth Hunter Pace To Be Held Sunday

The 9th Annual Hunter Pace Event, sponsored by the Princess Anne Hunt Club, will be held Sunday, October 8 at noon at the Greenbriar Farms nursery in Chesapeake.

This traditional Hunter Pace, which is open to all interested Tidewater equestrians, is designed to test the skill of both horse and rider under conditions simulating the hunting field.

The team of two riders coming closest to a pre-established time for the approximately 15-mile course will receive replicas of the Princess Anne Hunt President's Cup, a perpetual trophy. Ribbons will go to the first four teams, and all riders qualifying will receive completion awards.

Box lunches will be served on the nursery grounds during the afternoon. Parking for the event, and the start-finish line, will be behind the "checker-board barn" on Greenbriar Road (turn left at first traffic light south of Greenbriar Saddle Club on Military Highway and the bar is on the left after crossing over 1-64).

Bicyclists Form Association For Tidewater Area

An organizational meeting of the Tidewater Bicycle Association (TBA) was held on September 25th to make official an organization devoted to furthering the utilitarian, touring, and racing aspects of bike riding. The Association promotes safety in bike riding, develops tours for groups of riders, and holds races for those interested in more strenuous activities.

Local tours and time trials are held every weekend. Normally, tours are for distances of 20 to 30 miles and take two to three hours. Time trials are from 10 to 20 miles. Occasionally tours are organized for scenic rides in areas such as Williamsburg.

Ten members from the TBA recently participated in a century (100 mile) ride from Mechanicsville to Tappahannock and back on beautiful country roads. This was the longest tour ever undertaken by members of the TBA, but TBA members have participated in several fifty mile events in the past.

Upcoming events include forty miles along the Skyline Drive (Saturday, October 14th) on the Blue Ridge Parkway (Sunday, October 15th). A 21-mile practice race will be held in Chesapeake on Sunday, October 15th, and Family Day will be held in Chesapeake on Sunday, October 22nd. Family Day events include a time trial, a race, a 20-mile tour, and a picnic.

Membership in the TBA is limited to those fifteen years of age and older and to family memberships. For more tour information, call David Anderson at 627-2721. For information on races, call Allen Waters at 464-6002.

Al Bianchi draws the name for F & M's giant panda bear winner. He hands it to bank official Tom Robertson as branch manager Hal Mahler (far left) looks on. See SPORTCETERAS for the rest of story and the winner.

Carol Anthony has been named coach of the women's field hockey team at Old Dominion University. A graduate of ODU, Mrs. Anthony is now a supervisor of student teachers for ODU's School of Education. This is her first year of coaching and she hopes to improve on last year's 5-5 record. Practice opened last week with this year's reporting, just enough for a team. "We have a good schedule this year, with seven games and two tournaments," Coach Anthony said, "but I'm hoping that more girls will give the game a try this fall." The ODU team opens its season at home on October 14th with Mary Washington, and four All-Tidewater players, Diane Hunt, Terry Gooding, Cetta Warren, and Debbie Matson, will be in uniform.

The Chowan College Braves posted victories in their first two Coastal Conference games for a 2-0 record. They downed Baltimore Community College 42-6 and Potomac State College 47-8. Their only loss of the season (2-1 record overall) was to the North Carolina State junior varsity. Virginia Beach's Dave Winecoff, starting quarterback for the Braves, has passed for three touchdowns so far this season.

Children's Hospital Night with the Virginia Wings will be held on the Scope ice on October 13th. The 7:30 p.m. game will feature our Wings against the New Haven Hawks. Tickets are scaled at $3, $4, and $5, with $1 of each ticket sold going to the Children's Hospital. The hospital needs the support of every citizen, and attendance at the game will give support both to the hospital and to our exciting Wings.

The Cardinal 500 Classic starts at 1 p.m. on Sunday, October 15th at Martinsville Speedway. 17-year old Richie Panch, son of retired driving great Marvin Panch, submitted his entry just this week. The winner of several late model sportsman events on the Northern Circuit this season, Richie will be driving a Bobby Allison built Chevrolet. Richie will be bringing his pit crew with him, which includes three members of the Super Hogs motorcycle club. One of the members was hired by Richie and the other two, Super Hog and Ox, travel along to help out in the pits. Super Hog is an IBM engineer, and Ox is a truck driver. They are tough looking, but they look after Richie real well.

Laura Earley has been elected Head Cheerleader at Virginia Wesleyan College. Seven cheerleaders and two alternates were selected by a student-faculty committee last week, and Miss Earley, a sophomore, was the only Beach cheer selected to the squad.

Registrations are going well for the First Annual Tidewater Cross Country Race, according to the YMCA's Paul Taylor. The events are a three-mile run for any age runner and a six-mile run in which runners will compete against runners in their own age group. The race will be held at Chesapeake College on Saturday, October 14th, with the three-mile run scheduled as the first event at 10:30 a.m. To date, registration has been heavy for the six-mile run, but few entries have been received for the three-mile run. Entries have been received from five different states. Entry fees are $2 in advance or $2.50 at the starting line on race day. Trophies, medals, and certificates will be awarded. Entry forms are available at the Norfolk Central YMCA or by calling Paul Taylor at 622-6326.

Middle guard Terry Laney of Virginia Beach was named defensive captain for the Wofford College Terriers game with the Presbyterian College Blue Hose last Saturday. Whatever Terry did must have been good, because Wofford won its first game of the year, downing previously undefeated Presbyterian 28-23. The win gives Wofford a 1-2 mark so far this season.

A new boating club has been organized to serve boat owners and enthusiasts throughout the Chesapeake Bay and Atlantic Coast area. Atlantic Boat Club, Inc., was organized because of recent emphasis on pleasure boating legislation. The club will represent the small boat owner on a state and national level and has modeled member benefits after the American Automobile Association concept. The Atlantic Boat Club is based in Baltimore, and information on joining can be obtained by writing the club at 1123 North Eutaw Street, Baltimore, Maryland, 21301.

Al Bianchi, coach of the Virginia Squires, was on hand for the opening of F&M's Bayside branch last week. The popular coach was giving out red, white, and blue ABA basketballs to everyone who made a certain deposit in his account. Hal Mahler, branch manager, said that the "promotion surpassed expectations. Over 175 balls were given away." For his final act of the day, Bianchi drew the winner of a giant panda bear, which was won by Frances Grene.

Surf & Sand & Pier

This past week has been a very active one for surf and pier fishing. Along the surf from Cape Henry to Sandbridge, the spot, trout, and blues have been biting great. Some of the biggest surf in many a year are being taken.

Rudee Inlet has plenty of big spot and gray trout to be caught by fishermen who don't mind getting their feet wet on the sides of the creek. Gray trout are being caught on cut spot and lures early in the morning.

The Virginia Beach Angler's Club held their annual fishing tournament at the Beach a couple of weeks ago with great success. Yours truly got lucky and took first prize with a two and one-half pound pumpy drum.

My fishing partner, Walter Well of Virginia Beach, and I have been viewing the prospects of a wonderful October, with plenty of good fishing in store for everyone.

Wet weather does not deter the true fisherman when the fish are biting. Pier fishing was good over the weekend, and many people took advantage of it — and were rewarded.

Two big upsets in last weekend's football action caught just about everyone by surprise. Out of all the entries received in the SUN Football Contest, only two picked Cranby to beat Princess Anne, and no one picked the new England Patriots to defeat the previously unbeaten Washington Redskins.

Terry Barco and John Dorsey were the two big winners in the Virginia Beach Buggy Association's first Annual Fishing Tournament, which was held at Carova Beach on Sunday, September 24th. Terry Barco won two awards, the largest fish and the most unusual catch. In the 17-years old-and-up division, John Dorsey won the same awards in the 12-and-under division. Bill Blum was awarded a plaque for the most fish caught in the shore division, and Brian Procter took that distinction in the younger division.

First Colonial's Chris Swecker (10) proves to be a double-threat with his running as well as passing ability.

First Colonial Edges Bayside In Closing Seconds 20 to 1

There were individual heroics on both squads, but the final score read First Colonial 20, Bayside 17. The win evened First Colonial's record at 2-2 overall and upped their mark to 2-1 in the Eastern District. Friday night's loss gave Bayside on 0-3-1 overall and District record.

scoreless tie, and the final period opened with Bayside still in front 17-6. Swecker and Paphites went to work again. Chris Paphites made two of the finest back-to-back pass catches that will ever be seen in scholastic football, and the second resulted in a touchdown.

Bayside back Roscoe Coles became the game's first hero. Just seconds into the game, Coles raced 65 yards for the first touchdown of the night. A Don Harold punt gave the Marlins a 7-0 lead.

The first catch in the drive was a 30-yarder from Swecker. Paphites, who was closely guarded by two Marlin defenders, leaped high into the air near the sidelines, twisted into position, and came down with the ball on Bayside's 18 yard line.

Chris Paphites came into the line next. A senior split end with seemingly magic hands could best describe the 5'8", 160 pound receiver. First Colonial pulled within one point player, Marshall Drake, Bayside's 6'3" 231 pound junior tackle, walked around the defensive unit firing up his team for the goal line stand. After each Patriot try for the score, Drake urged his team to hold them one more time. Hold they did, and Bayside took over the ball on their own five.

of the Marlins when Paphites snared a 26 yard pass from quarterback Chris Swecker. The two-point conversion attempt failed, and Bayside led 7-6 at the end of the first quarter.

As it turned out, Drake's fine effort was in vain. Bayside fumbled on their first play. First Colonial's Scott Davison recovered the loose ball on the two, and two plays later Chris Swecker called a quarterback keep and took the ball over for the touchdown. The conversion kick was wide, but First Colonial had taken the lead, 20-17.

Speedy halfback Roger Baxter put the Marlins back in front when he plunged over the goal line strip from two yards out. Another Don Harold conversion boot shot Bayside ahead

On the next play, Swecker tossed the ball to Paphites, who was streaking into the end zone near the sidelines on the opposite side of the field. The pass was slightly long, but Paphites reached and stretched and lunged, finally getting the ball on his fingertips. As he was tackled and fell, he managed to haul it in for the score, and the 14-8. Minutes later, Don Harold kicked the season's first field goal of the year, a 30-yarder, and the Marlins enjoyed a 17-6 lead at the half.

The First Colonial defensive unit took the field, determined to keep their lead with just a minute to go in the game. Hallowed Wright dropped the Bayside signal-caller for a 15-yard loss on the first play. Bayside's Leandis Hodges, on a surprise draw play, gained 19 yards on second down. First Colonial held on third down, and Scott Davison's tackle on fourth down and six got the ball back for the Patriots with just 30 seconds showing on the clock.

The third quarter ended in a

An exuberant Frank Webster, head coach of the Patriots, said after the game, "This was a big one for us. We played well the entire game. Bayside got their first two scores on breaks. We never got a break until Davison's fumble recovery at the end."

Both teams had good ground games. First Colonial finished with 185 yards, and Bayside was close behind with 155. The Patriots also had the edge in passing with 100 yards to Bayside's 40.

The Virginia Beach Sunfish Racing Class will sponsor the last local regatta of the season on Broad Bay this Saturday and Sunday, October 7th and 8th. All sunfish owners are urged to enter the competition, and registration will be held 8 to 10 a.m. Saturday morning prior to race time.

Don Harold boots the first field goal of the season for a Virginia Beach team and puts three points on the scoreboard for Bayside.

Marty Moore carries for Bayside.

Strong Second Half Gives Cox 12-6 Win Over Smithies

carries Randy Robinson carried the ball 19 times for 75 yards, and John Zimmerman picked up 17 yards in seven attempts.

The Cox offensive line played outstanding game. Tackles Bill Summs and Bill Span, guards Rodney Robbins and Jerry Merrell, and center Terry Reed opened the holes that paved the way for the winning drive.

The Falcon defensive unit did a good job in holding Oscar Smith to just six points. In fact, it was amazing that the Smithies scored only six points in the first half when all the breaks were going their way. Brooks Williams had one interception to his credit that stopped one Oscar Smith drive.

Benny Weinbrecht was the leading Falcon rusher for the game with 145 yards in 23

Highlights The Harmon Football Forecast

Four weeks of the college football season are already past history...and baseball season still isn't over! But in these past four weeks, some extremely powerful football teams have literally blown their opposition right out of the stadium.

Our forecasting average for the first three weeks of the season through Saturday, September 23rd is certainly not that awesome, but it's still passing. We've picked the results of some 334 games to date. 403 have been right, 123 were wrong, and there have been eight ties for a .766 batting percentage.

VIRGINIA BEACH. Where The Living Is Level

One more day is wonderful.

The nicest thing about Virginia Beach is that Virginia Beach is just the beginning. Whether you're a visitor, vacationer or prospective resident you'll be captivated by the beach area itself: twenty-eight miles of fabulous shoreline, running from the landing dunes of America's first permanent colonists on Cape Henry to the starkly desolate beauty of Virginia's Outer Banks. The sand is warm and powder white. The surf is superb. But that's only the beginning. Next, you'll want to visit the historic area which formerly was Princess Anne County. Explore the pastoral farmlands of nearby Tidewater. Wheel for relaxing drives through matchless bay-laced residential areas. Slip back through time at some of the most intriguing historical shrines in the country. Discover lonely, haunting Back Bay areas teaming with unusual fish and wildlife. Accept the challenge of some of the most beautiful and difficult golf courses you've ever seen. The list goes on and on. Because Virginia Beach has more things around it than any other beach. Come. See. Feel. Virginia Beach. One more day is wonderful.

FEATURED REALTOR

By DEE RAE FERGUSON

Wainwright Realty, founded by Dorothy P. Wainwright in 1954, is an average size personal company of three brokers and seven salesmen.

The family operation, consisting of a broker husband, wife and son, deals primarily in residential property and light commercial.

Dorothy Wainwright was one of the founding members of the Virginia Beach Board of Realtors in 1951.

"We operate under the Code of Ethics set forth by the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The Real Estate industry policies itself through the Board and this Code in an effort to protect the public," Robert Wainwright stated.

When asked about the Virginia Beach market, Wainwright Jr. stated that over the past four years, property has doubled in value.

Ocean-front property has doubled in the last two years.

Wainwright continued, "Real estate is the epitome of private enterprise. And a high risk business."

"The property usually sells itself. We do the legwork. The realtor's real thinking work starts when the contract is signed. That's when we really earn our commission," he said.

"It can be very dangerous for an owner to sell his property. He can misjudge the market value as much as 25 per cent under its worth. I've seen it happen. The fast-moving Virginia Beach price and mortgage market can be a friend or foe. It must be watched," Wainwright Jr. added, "particularly by out-of-town buyers."

River Woods ...

Offering More Than Housing

Just 5 minutes from the hustle and bustle of Virginia Beach Blvd. at London Bridge is a new apartment-townhouse complex called River Woods.

River Woods is set on the shores of the Lynnhaven River against the seclusion of tall pines and nature trails.

When you first enter River Woods you will be overwhelmed by the beautiful spacious grounds surrounding the red brick traditional buildings with wood shingles.

Everything for luxurious leisure living in a suburban setting is the mood of River Woods. Yet, while you enjoy wooded privacy, it is only a short drive to shopping areas, Oceanfront, major military installations, and downtown Norfolk.

Each member of the family will have his choice of many activities available at River Woods.

The water sportsman will find River Woods a dream come true: apartments with private boat ramp and docking facilities plus boat parking space. This provides residents with access to the deep waters of the Chesapeake Bay and Atlantic Ocean through the eastern branch of the Lynnhaven River.

Other leisure time activities include tennis and basketball, pool parties, playground facilities, picnic areas and strolls along scenic nature trails.

The apartments and townhouses are contemporary in style with a traditional touch. River Woods combines garden apartments with the townhouse concept to give the tenants a choice of floor plans. The interiors have large living rooms, family rooms, bedrooms, and closets. Each unit in the complex is air conditioned, has wall-to-wall carpeting and an all-electric completely equipped kitchen.

Furnished apartments are available. Furniture rentals are through Cardinal Metro Lease which has a complete range of styles and accessories enabling the tenants to express his own style and taste.

Coin operated laundry facilities, individual storage areas and a parking ratio of 2 1/2 spaces per unit round out the River Woods full range of amenities. Your rent includes all utilities.

Owned jointly by Stuart Hume and Peter Meredith, River Woods has been planned for maximum comfort in total living.

Following this theme down to the last detail, Meredith Construction Co. built the River Woods complex.

Larasan Realty, Property Management Division headed by Jim Bickford handles River Woods. Joe Boyd of Larasan is general manager of the Division. Beverly Wykle, a licensed Larasan Real Estate Agent, is the on-site manager.

The successful combination of apartment amenities, location and management will lead you to the good life at River Woods, one half mile from the London Bridge Shopping Center on Reagan Ave. Follow the signs or call 466-4044 or 340-3030 for more information.

Beverly Wykle, on site manager of River Woods relaxes in one of the model apartments beautifully furnished by Cardinal Metro Lease.

An Early Thanksgiving For 'Broken Needles' - They Remain Open

By MURRAY MARLOW

"I think it would be put a lot of people in there," said the speaker. "It would be a lot better than what we have now."

These remarks were made during the annual fall fashion show sponsored by the Virginia Beach Chapter of the Virginia Easter Seal Society Friday at the Cavalier Hotel.

Proceeds from the show will be used to buy equipment and furnishings for the new Easter Seal Center on Magic Hollow Boulevard.

During their darkest hours when it seemed that Broken Needles might have to close their drug rehabilitation ministry in Virginia Beach they steadfastly maintained that their all-powerful and almighty Leader would see them through.

Indeed, their monetary crises had forced them out of the shelter of their barn headquarters and back into the streets. Only this time instead of seeking out drug addicts and drug abusers they had to reach out for the middle-class citizen.

By going door to door, soliciting in shopping centers and appearing before church groups and civic organizations they had to personally carry their message into the community.

What appeared to be a king-sized headache had turned into a blessing to their hearts. From almost $10,000 indebtedness they were down to approximately $2,000. This had to be a modern day miracle. Their members bubbled with excitement and gave thanks to Jesus. One lovely young soft-spoken girl said, "I've heard of miracles through prayer that healed physical illnesses, but I believe it is even a greater miracle when you are healed spiritually."

After his testimony, the President of Broken Needles, the Rev. Danny Marrow, spoke up. "So many people in this area still cannot believe we have had so much success with former heroin addicts but it just Jesus-just finding the Lord. On TV tonight I saw the leader of another drug center in Tidewater. This man was a former addict, but when a man continues to use the same language of the streets, looks the same and smells the same he's not changed. He's just laying out a rap" and the Federal government is paying the bill."

Rev. Marrow continued, "I'm kinda disressed at their big salaries and they're probably still shooting dope. Any dealer makes more than our entire payroll in one hour. I pray for the day when Federal money will no longer be pumped into groups like this. I talked with a raimee at Lexington and he told me he was committing adultery with one of their secretaries. I ask you has his man's life changed? In Korea one of the officials told me they were against heroin but not against the lighter stuff. Again, has this man's life been changed?"

"Broken Needles is a ministry designed to help you as an individual. We've helped you get a job, find an apartment, but most of all to make you stand on your own two feet. You were used to having your Mom and Dad do everything for you. Broken Needles has encouraged you to get to work on time to pay your own rent and to make intelligent Christ-inspired decisions. Drug addicts are basically isolationists. You understand that now."

Their minister added a new prophecy. "Several years ago I first went to our area churches seeking their help. I told them without their help we would live to see this country torn apart brick by brick. What happened? We had the worst city riots in our history. Today the highest concentration of drug addicts are within our jails and prisons, and if we don't heed this warning what's about to happen across our nation will make A'lca look like a Girl Scout camping trip."

Broken Needles does not offer reformation. They offer regeneration. Their financial problems have been a lesson within a lesson. They intend to go forward into the drug darkness with Bible study groups, counseling 24-hours a day, street ministry, education and evangelism. They do not offer a temporary solution to drugs by administering methadone. They offer a permanent solution.

Rev. Marrow closed his meeting by saying, "Jesus is bigger than Broken Needles."

Jesus is bigger than the us but if you don't believe read President of the United States your Bible and see what He did He has performed a miracle for Paul."

Studio Gallery Is For All Art Lovers

By LORNA ZILLER

The Studio Gallery at the corner of Cypress and Norfolk Avenues in Virginia Beach has something for everyone—from the casual art observer to the knowledgeable art lover.

The private gallery owned by Ruth and George Laakso displays carefully selected oil paintings, sculptures, water colors, drawings and prints representing the schools of art from the classics to contemporary pieces of today. The prices range from $2 to $15,000.

The works of professional and Gold Medal winning artists on the local, national and international level are exhibited in the main display area. The "one-man show" sales gives the guest artist an opportunity to display some of his work. A new artist is featured each month.

A flowing indoor fountain enhances the "fountain room" where selected works of art are displayed. At present, the work of four Finnish artists, well-known in European circles, can be viewed and/or bought.

Sculptures of metal, iron and "found" objects by Mr. Laakso are also exhibited in what will eventually be a special sculpture room. At present they may be viewed in an area located in a huge room in which he does part of his work on the pieces.

Mrs. Laakso works mostly with acrylics. She favors landscapes and abstracts but also does portraits. Her portrait work includes a life-size self-portrait which she did for a special exhibition.

Having opened the gallery nine years ago, Mrs. Laakso said almost every artist in the area has had a show there. At one time, they held classes, including ceramics and print-making. Lectures and other events are still held at the gallery in cooperation with the Virginia Beach Art Association. Bill Oumundsen, a New Jersey artist who is well-known in this area, has a number of metal sculpted pieces presently on display.

Some of the Beach artists who have their work at the Gallery are George Sanderlin, Corinne Geron and Reitha Sedel.

The gallery includes a custom framing shop with professional consultation on choosing the proper frame.

The Gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Mondays and 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. It will be open on Mondays from June 1 to September 1.

EYE-CATCHING figures in the window attract passers-by to the Studio Gallery.

Hail, Hail, Rock And Roll

The Chuck Berry Show starring Bo Diddley, Chubby Checker, the Dovells, the Crystals and the Clovers will be at Scope Oct. 6 at 8 p.m.

Chuck Berry is one of the true kings of rock and roll. His music has inspired the Beatles, the Rolling Stones and the Beach Boys, among others.

His million sellers include "Memphis," "Nadine," "Roll Over Beethoven," "Sweet Little Sixteen," "Reelin' and Rockin'," "Johnny B. Goode," "Maybelline" and "School Days."

Bo Diddley plays a raunchy guitar and is famous for his "I'm a Man," "Hey, Bo Diddley" and "Gun Slinger."

Chubby Checker invented that dance called the twist. Millions of people twisted through "The Twist," "Let's Twist Again" and "Twist It Up" with Checker.

The Crystals, three young ladies from New York City, made, among others, "He's a Rebel" and "Then He Kissed Me."

The Dovells, a Philadelphia group big in the 50s, cut "The Bristol Stomp" and "You Can't Sit Down" during their heyday. Tickets for the rock revival are $6, $8 and $9 at all Ticketron locations and the Scope box office.

Camping It Up With 'Little Mary Sunshine'

By DONNA HENDRICK

The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach will open its new season with "Little Mary Sunshine," Oct. 6 at 8:30 p.m., for an eight-performance run.

It's high camp all the way as Little Mary Sunshine and her friends romp through the woods of the Northwest. There is also romance in the air as a bevy of sweet young things and a troop of stalwart forest rangers sing their hearts out.

Any resemblance to "Rose Marie" and the music of Friml, Romberg and Co. is strictly intentional. It's not by accident that Carolya Cox, who plays Mary, resembles Jeanette MacDonald and that Bruce Leopold — (Captain Jim) has a jaw just as firm and a profile just as strong as Nelson Eddy.

The strains of "When I'm calling you-ou-ou-ou-ou-ou" may not come wafting over the treetops, but the "Little Mary Sunshine" music is just what "Rose Marie" ordered.

The audience was nonexistent (except for cast members and some relatives) and the stage was almost bare (except for a rustic cabin) when the "Little Mary Sunshine" performers rehearsed one night last week.

Director Phil Uhler made notes during the run-through, then offered critiques of details in each act. He was firm but not caustic in his criticisms, as the play progressed and improved under his direction.

The tongue-in-cheek musical features plenty of songs, romance, drama, intrigue and other schmaltz. Among the many players are Bob Beard, Joan Evans, Marguerite Miller and Gary Wills in other leading roles. Randy Abbey, Dave Jones and Fran Peterson are non-singing Indians and a score of men and women play the stout-hearted forest rangers and the fair young ladies from East Chester Finishing School. Faye Whitlock is musical director and Jean Wallace is choreographer.

After the black-tie opening of "Little Mary Sunshine" Oct. 6, the play will also be performed on Oct. 7, 12, 13, 14, 19, 20 and 21. All performances are at 8:30 p.m.

Admission is $3.50 for adults and $1.75 for students. Reservations may be made by calling 428-8623. The theatre is on the corner of 24th Street and Barberton Drive. Season tickets and memberships are also available.

Concert Is Casual And Clever

The word "fun" may not usually be associated with chamber music, but the Norfolk Chamber Consort has changed all that.

The Chamber Consort gave a concert Sunday at Chrysler Museum, the first concert of its fourth annual season of "come as you are" events.

The concert was definitely fun — and lively and clever and jazzy and entertaining.

The expert musicians of the Consort have taken the stiffness out of chamber music, both with their choice of music and their presentation of it.

Casualness was the key to the afternoon as a young musician in tennis shoes and turtle-neck sweater introduced one piece, saying, "This music is a lot of fun for us to do." And another musician said, "Please giggle or laugh if you want to...some of the music is irrelevant."

The program was "Les Six" (Misan One), the music of five contemporary French composers. "Les Six" were French musical "rebels" who organized in Paris in 1920. Their music was simple and clever and greatly influenced by American jazz, which was all the rage at that time.

One of the "Les Six" was a woman, Germaine Tailleferre, one of the few first-rate female composers in the world. (Incidentally, Mde. Tailleferre is still living, as are some of the other "Les Six" members.)

All of the musicians participating in Sunday's concert were expert in their technique and at ease with their music. They seemed to enjoy the concert as much as the audience.

Future concerts should prove to be as delightful as this season's first. The Norfolk Chamber Consort's next presentation will be "Going for Baroque" in Nov. —

JOHNNY CASH

Johnny Cash Comes To Scope Oct. 22

Johnny Cash, plus June Carter, the Statler Brothers, Carl Perkins, the Carter Family and the Tennessee Three will be at Norfolk Scope, for one night only, Sunday, Oct. 22. Show time is 7:30 p.m.

Known as "America's Singin' Story Teller," Cash sings songs to the "today" audience that have delighted millions over the past 17 years... songs of the soil, the workers, trains as they fade from the American scene, miners, prisoners... and, A Boy Named Sue. He tells it all, as he has seen it and lived it. He tells it as the country fans remember it, and as today's young people want to hear it.

Although he was an adult when he started to play guitar

(he bought his first guitar while in the Air Force in Germany), John had been singing and writing poetry since he was 5 years old.

In 1955, Cash cut his first record for Sun Records in Memphis... a two-sided hit called "Cry, Cry, Cry," and "Hey Porter." The next year he followed with the song that 13 years became the turning point in his life, "Folsom Prison Blues."

In 1956 the song that is still his biggest seller, and theme song, "I Walk The Line," hit the top of the country and popular music charts.

Tickets for the Cash show are on sale now by mail, and at Scope and all Ticketron outlets.

One week later, through the Rev. William D. Marrow Jr., president of Broken Needles, Inc., a Virginia Beach anti-drug institution, O'Dell asked WAVY-TV news reporter Carl Fielstra to return him to the prison.

O'Dell's story is a unique one. Discouraged and frustrated with his work release program through the penitentiary, and having been injured several times on the job, O'Dell walked away and took a bus to see his mother in Florida. However, his short taste of freedom turned sour. Intimidated by strangers and terrified by every passing policeman, he decided to take his mother's advice and return to prison.

WAVY Newsman Helps Convict Out Of Jam

Joe O'Dell walked away from the State Penitentiary in Richmond recently after serving 16 years of a 34-year sentence for armed robbery and murder. He was only two weeks away from parole.

One week later, through the Rev. William D. Marrow Jr., president of Broken Needles, Inc., a Virginia Beach anti-drug institution, O'Dell asked WAVY-TV news reporter Carl Fielstra to return him to the prison.

O'Dell's story is a unique one. Discouraged and frustrated with his work release program through the penitentiary, and having been injured several times on the job, O'Dell walked away and took a bus to see his mother in Florida. However, his short taste of freedom turned sour. Intimidated by strangers and terrified by every passing policeman, he decided to take his mother's advice and return to prison.

O'Dell contacted Rev. Marrow who encouraged him to turn himself in. O'Dell refused but said he would turn himself over to a news reporter who would hear his story and take him back to prison.

Choreographer Of The Junk Yard

You might call Ed Stephenson the "choreographer" for Sanford and Son, presented on the NBC Television Network Fridays (8-9:30 p.m. on WAVY, Channel 10).

He doesn't work with dancers. He is a choreographer of junk. Stephenson, art director for the series, designed the junk yard, living room and kitchen for the home of Fred and Lamont Sanford. He estimates that there are over 3,000 individual pieces that make up the set — and every week they are stored away, then brought out and reset for the taping of the program.

Stephenson says his aim was to design a setting that was "pleasantly junky." He explains: "After all, the Sanfords live here, and they enjoy their home. These items are for sale — they shouldn't be dirty and unusable."

All the items in the Sanford home are legitimate. They have been purchased at junkyards and swap meets by Stephenson. Nothing was manufactured especially for the show.

"The swap meet is a contemporary phenomenon that doesn't make sense," according to Stephenson. "It is an event where people can get a fast assemblage of unwanted objects. People usually don't go to a swap meet for something they really need — they're just indulging themselves."

Most of the pictures, plaques, figurines and other art objects used on the show came from swap meets. Larger items, such as tables, the sofa and chairs came from Los Angeles junkyards. And one item was purchased new — the top-wringer washing machine in the Sanford Kitchen.

Stephenson is constantly shopping for new items. "This set is like a sponge," he says. "It absorbs objects. I buy two cartons of 'new' old items to use for each show. And whenever a new angle of the set is shown, such as a corner or a closet we haven't seen before, I have to buy more junk."

"The scenery on a show can't just be an attractive background," Stephenson believes. "It has to be functional for the actor and the director, and it must be aesthetic for the audience."

'Moon Is Blue' Acting Tryouts

John Dawson, resident director of the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse, will conduct tryouts for "The Moon Is Blue," a two-act comedy, at 8 p.m. Oct. 5 in the rehearsal hall adjacent to the playhouse on Argonne Avenue in Norfolk.

The comedy calls for one young girl, around 20; a man in his late 20s; an older type to play the girl's father; and a man in his early 40s, David Niven type.

The show will go into immediate rehearsals and is scheduled to open the first week in November.

Tracking The Stars

"Celestial Mechanics" will be the October program of the Virginia Beach Public Schools Planetarium at Plaza Junior High School.

The program deals with the description of observed motions of celestial bodies and the prediction of their future motions. "Celestial Mechanics" will also observe the orbits of comets and planets.

This part of astronomy has evolved over the years from observations of Ptolemy in 127 A.D., to Tycho Brahe, Kopplers laws, Copernicus and Newton's laws.

The Planetarium seats 120 people and is easily accessible from the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway by taking the Lynnhaven exit to 3080 S. Lynnhaven Road.

The planetarium is open on Sundays and Tuesdays except on Sunday, Oct. 8.

Water Situation Edges Toward A Solution

At the close of City Council's Tuesday night executive meeting there was still no word on what solutions have been found on the city's water crisis, but Mayor Robert Cromwell did tell waiting newsmen that he feels the problem "has been solved".

The mayor mentioned briefly an "interim means of supplying water" and referred again to the city's stand for a regional water authority, but turned aside questions concerning a long term, or 20-year, contract with Norfolk.

He hedged on when a definite announcement would be made on what the city plans to do, but said that Norfolk would be contacted "in the near future" and would not learn of the plans in the press.

Tuesday night's meeting was called personally by Cromwell, he said, so that City Manager

Cromwell

Roger Scott might brief council on the state of the water situation to date.

"We discussed several alternatives," he told newsmen, "and I am happy to report there seems to be some unity on how we should proceed."

There had appeared to be some discord when, five minutes after the meeting got underway at 7:45, Vice Mayor Reid Ervin bolted from the conference room and apparently from the building, refusing to talk to newsmen waiting in the receptionist office.

Thirty minutes later Ervin returned, commenting that he needed time to "cool off".

The vice mayor issued a statement last week urging council to proceed with a long term contract, even though council had voted earlier, unanimously, to support a regional water authority.

Cromwell obviously referred to Ervin's published statement when he noted that "some councilmen have been proceeding along different lines from the rest of us, but with the same goals. Now we are all going forward together."

"You say there is now unity in council... does that mean you are unanimous on whatever decision you have made," a reporter asked.

Cromwell smiled and said something about "I think we are all in agreement" on the proposal. But, again, he refused to comment on the proposal, saying only that Norfolk would be contacted in the near future.

He did say, however, that the city is still hoping for a regional authority but we "obviously have to have some supply of water and we can't create a regional authority overnight."

SUN CARRIERS have lots of fun to look forward to in the weeks to come. In appreciation of their cooperation and dedication, the Circulation Department will be holding weekly meetings for the carriers and the district managers at Shakey's Pizza.

Sun Circulation Soars

One of the most important departments of any newspaper is its Circulation Department. News writing fills the pages and advertising pays for the product, but unless the papers get into the hands of the people, all other efforts are worthless.

Approximately a year ago, the Virginia Beach Sun switched ed from a mail delivery system to a carrier system. The papers are delivered in plastic bags to the doorknob of each home by Sun carrier boys.

Clayton Finch, Circulation Manager of the Virginia Beach Sun, came to the paper in January, 1972 as a district manager. He became Cir-ulation Manager in June. His responsibilities include supervising the five District Managers of the city and their carrier boys, satisfying complaints, and managing collections, as well as overseeing the entire operation of the Circulation Department.

When Clayton, better known the Sun staff as Sunshine, became Circulation Manager in June, 13,000 papers were being delivered by 75 carrier boys. Now, less than five months later, 48,000 papers are being delivered each week by over 200 carriers. The figures alone attest to the excellent job being done in the Circulation Department, but the work behind the scene is not nearly as simple.

Planners Vote Football Down

By DONNA HENDRICK

The Planning Commission denied use permits for three football parlors and approved permits for three topless go-go establishments at its regular monthly meeting Tuesday.

In all six cases, the permit applications were heard after the fact. The establishments had been operating previously without use permits.

If City Council concurs with the Planning Commission recommendations, the three football parlors will then be closed.

Keith W. Overton tried for the second time to have his previously deferred two applications approved for two football parlors, one at 6661 Indian River Road and the other at 1607 Aragona Blvd.

Police department reports on the two parlors owned by Overton were read into the record. The report on the Indian River Road establishment said it was run by "irresponsible management" and that "known dealers and users of drugs" frequented the establishment. Both permit applications for Overton were denied, based on the health and welfare of the residents, with Commissioner James Donnelly abstaining.

The commission also denied the use permit application of Ernest L. Gray for his football parlor in Aragona Village and denied his attorney's request for a 30-day deferral.

Gray's attorney, Calvin Spain, stated that his client was in the hospital recovering from injuries sustained in an automobile accident and was unable to attend the hearing. The application was also denied on health and welfare grounds, with Commissioner Donnelly again abstaining.

The Jamaica Inn, at 1608 Diamond Springs Road, almost two years in operation, was the first live entertainment (topless go-go) permit application to be heard.

Commissioner R.L. Riggs asked the city attorney whether the use permit could be limited to certain types of entertainment, instead of the broad "live entertainment" use.

The city attorney stated that certain restrictions could be placed on use permits if the commissioners so desired.

The police department report was read, stating that there was "no evidence of significant problems" at the Jamaica Inn. There was no opposition to the application and it was approved with Commissioner Donnelly opposed.

The Mataodor Lounge, on the corner of Diamond Springs

Road and Aragon Drive, also requested a use permit for "live entertainment" and owner William Henderson said the lounge featured topless entertainment.

No police complaints were noted against the lounge. The permit application was approved with Commissioner Donnelly opposed.

The application of Red Baron Inn at 236 First Colonial Road in the Oceana Area was approved over opposition from the Oceana Civic League.

The owners of the inn stated that they requested the use permit to allow a band and public dancing and that they would discontinue their topless entertainment if the permit was approved.

The dance hall permit required from the city manager's office had previously been approved.

The use permit was approved by a 7-3 vote.

In other business, the Planning Commission approved use permits for:

Bel-Aire, Inc. for 506 townhouses and 300 apartments on the Widgeon Tract near General Booth Blvd. in Princess Anne Borough.

Virginia Gateway for 50 condominium apartments on the corner of 38th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

The erection of a temporary signboard by Housing Systems, Inc. on Lee Highlands Drive and S. Lynnhaven Rd.

Stanley Howard for 17 apartments with private boat slips in the Shadowlawn Heights area of Virginia Beach Borough.

Extendicare Hospital Approved

New Medical Facility Provokes Emotional Arguments

By LES LEHIGH

Extendicare, Inc., won City Council approval Monday to construct a private hospital, and a professional medical office building in the Bayside Borough despite vigorous opposition from Virginia Beach - General Hospital and the Tidewater Regional Health Planning Council.

Beach General contended there is no need for another hospital in the resort city at the present time, and that the new facility would merely duplicate existing hospital services. The TRHPC claimed the new facility would create an overabundance of hospital beds which would adversely affect costs of medical services.

The new 250-bed hospital will be at the intersection of Independence Boulevard and North Witchduck Road. Terry Corporation's earlier plans to construct multi-family buildings on the property were defeated in the face of strong opposition from surrounding residents and civic leagues.

These groups appeared before Council Monday to endorse the proposed hospital.

James Pickrell, representing Extendicare, told Council the hospital was necessary in the face of increasing population in the western portion of the City, and increasing strain on available services at Beach General. He said, "We want to put 250 hospital beds in the Beach now where the population will be. You're almost in the same situation with hospitals in Virginia Beach as you are with schools." He added the present hospital's operation utilizes 90 per cent of its facilities and the "government says 85 per cent is capacity."

Dr. Fred McCune, Virginia Beach Medical Association president, said he had discussed operations such as Extendicare, with medical officials in the States of Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and West Virginia and he was "unable to find any derogatory statements."

Vice-Mayor F. Reid Ervin commented, "I know of no issue which has come before Council which has split the professional people of the City the way this has."

Councilman Charles W. Gardner asked McCune, "What happened in areas with hospitals when a new facility came in?" McCune replied he found "...no feelings of downgrading of existing facilities."

Dr. Sterling Decker said primary opposition to the new hospital came from Norfolk hospitals and physicians. He claimed Beach General denied physicians membership on its Board of Directors until the new hospital was proposed. Decker referred to a letter from Beach General listing six reasons opposing the new hospital based on a complete lack of need.

Decker said he requested opinions from every physician in Virginia Beach on a new hospital locating in the City. Of the 77 responses received, Decker said 57 per cent

"...recognized the western part of the City is rapidly growing without a hospital and residents go outside the City for hospital care," 24 per cent "...do not feel the new hospital will affect operation of Beach General," and 18 per cent feel the new hospital "...may contribute to overbedding and delay Beach General's growth."

Decker also referred to recent proposals of a six month moratorium on constructing new hospital facilities and said, "The Virginia Beach Medical Society rejects a moratorium on hospitals." He also rejected claims of resulting overbedding of Beach General, saying this was unfounded "...since new facilities will overbed Norfolk."

Dr. Jack S. Garrison told Council, "The people in the western half of the City don't want to continue supporting Norfolk hospitals." He concluded, "Don't let us get caught in the obvious trap of a six month moratorium."

Pat Powell, a registered nurse said, "We need a new hospital due to increased population in the area," and warned, "If we don't get a new hospital in this area Norfolk will build one near the Norfolk Virginia Beach line." She denied a new hospital would affect personnel at Beach General by saying, "...nurses are happy at Beach General, they won't be leaving."

Joseph Moore, TRHPC director, renewed requests for a moratorium because of possible overbedding of hospitals. He said, "this will not result in cost reductions for medical services." Moore concluded the main purpose of the moratorium was "...to assure the public proper health care at a cost everyone can afford."

Councilman J. Curtis Payne told Moore, "I somehow get the feeling Norfolk will not go along with the moratorium."

Councilman Donald H. Rhodes said, "This is the first time this Council has been asked to vote on a six month moratorium. It's up to this Council to determine if a new

Night Whistles Stir The Imagination As Boats Approach The Swing Bridge

By Helen Crist
PRINCESS ANNE... Listen to a night whistle... a train, a boat... whatever... and the imagination soars and rises as the response to a call from an unseen Lorelei.

the bridge was turned by hand. His father was Wilson Mercer. Leo used to help him, when the boat whistles sounded for the bridge to open.

"You'd have to pull the gates down by hand, and hang lanterns on them-kerosene-no electricity then. I used to like to hang out those lanterns," he recalled.

The turn bridge was followed by a lift bridge... run by gasoline motor. My daddy stayed with the bridge until he broke his leg one night hanging out the lights. Then he had to quit."

The Mercers and the Thomas A. Luptons have been hearing the boat whistles longer than any family in the vicinity. They were, in fact, the only residents near it for many years.

Mrs. Lupton says she remembers taking her children swimming up the canal a way from the bridge. "Boats going by would sometimes throw out a watermelon and the kids would swim out and bring it in."

"So what's the discordant note?"

In time, no doubt, the bridge will be replaced by a modern highrise structure to accommodate the increased traffic on North Landing Road.

Then the Boat whistles will stop and the ding of the bridge and the waving of the hand too...and the imagination won't be disturbed. It's called progress.

BRIDGE TENDER "Curly" Paulk responds to the call of an approaching yacht, opening the bridge at North Landing Road, so the boat can go through. (Photo by Helen Crist)

"It was one of the strangest looking boats I've seen. Was an old Army minesweeper painted bright yellow. On board were missionaries-long brown robes, little beanie on their heads going to South America. They pulled up at the dock for a while."

"Did they convert 'Curly'?" He rubbed his hand over his un-groomed pate: "Nope, didn't do that," he laughed.

"He said that everything from rowboats to huge yachts and even a Chinese junk have gone through the bridge. It was built in 1932 by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers."

But Leo Mercer remembers the "woolen bridges that preceded it."

Leo lives right there at the canal's edge; has a restaurant and marina. "Been here all my life," says the ruggedly handsome 61-year-old native. "My daddy was tender on the old wooden bridges. First kind they had was a turn bridge." He demonstrated this by walking around in a circle to show that

Virginia Offered Liberty Ships

Sonja Hillgren Sun Correspondent

WASHINGTON — What remains of the U.S. fleet of Liberty ships—the workhorse cargo ships of World War II—has been given a chance for an honorable burial.

The U.S. Maritime Administration has offered Virginia and 22 other coastal states an opportunity to secure about 100 ships to use as artificial offshore reefs. Gov. Linwood Holton hasn't responded to the offer.

Sunken ships are known to enhance the marine life habitat and thus provide benefits for commercial and sporting fishermen, said Homer Phillips, chief of reserve fleet service.

The idea surfaced as an amendment to the Maritime Administration appropriations bill during Senate floor debate in July. Although the House bill didn't contain a similar provision, the ship transfer plan was retained in conference.

Regulations for the transfer of ships to the states haven't been drawn up because the legislation was only recently signed into law.

Phillips said that anticipated requirements will include the cleaning the ships before they are sunk because uncleaned oil tanks would pollute coastal waters.

Other regulations are expected to say that the sinking of ships must not interfere with shipping or commercial fishing. States asking for Liberty ships will have to foot the bill to cut ships at a scrap yard and to move them by tug boat between one of four reserve fleet docks and the states' coastal waters.

Any ships Virginia might request logically would come from the reserve dock at the James River in Virginia. Other reserve fleet locations are in Alabama, California and Texas.

Regulations also will outline the procedure for sinking ships, Phillips said. One way is to blast holes in the hulks of ships. Another is to let water in through valves.

After their duty in World War II the Liberty ships—once 2,500 strong—hailed supplies during the Korean War and later served as floating grain storage bins. During the last fifteen years, most of the ships have been sold to domestic and foreign scrap dealers.

Of four states that have replied to the Maritime Administration requested 20 ships and Alabama requested 36. New Hampshire and Oregon replied "no thank you."

Chapel Dedicated The dedication of a new Navy Chapel and Sunday School Building at the Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek took place Wednesday.

Vice Admiral C. Edwin Bell, Commander Amphibious Force, Atlantic Fleet; Rear Admiral Francis L. Garrett, CHC, USN, Chief of Chaplains; and Captain Samuel Sobel, CHC, USN, FIFTH Naval District Chaplain, joined the four Amphibious Base Chaplains: Capt. E.L. Richardson, Cmdr. F.E. Garver, Lt. Cmdr. P.A. Dowd and Lt. Cmdr. K.D. Nordstrom as participants in the dedication ceremony.

'Lover' Performances Exceptional

Barney Gashman, as created by playwright Neil Simon, is a tragic-comic figure of a 47-year-old man who hopes to find some meaningful diversions in his pitifully dull life in associations with other women.

Poor Barney. He looks for beautiful sexual experiences in three attempted conquests in his very proper mother's apartment: Elaine, a married woman whose main interest is raw sex, straight Scotch and a burning desire for cigarettes; Bobbi, a pot-smoking aspiring nightclub performer who has taken him for $20 to pay her accompanist; and Jeanette, a friend of the family whose own marital problems lead her into Barney's understanding arms.

Of course Barney never makes it with his three extramarital companions. He's basically too decent, finding that his own loving wife, Thelma, despite their 23 years of togetherness, is what he truly, and sexually, desires.

So it is in Simon's latest in-depth exploration of middle-age frustrations, "Last of the Red Hot Lovers". And in the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse's production, at least Barney is sympathetic and believable, and his three hoped-for lovers are delightful characterization vignettes.

Somehow, despite the heavy overtones of the plot, the local production goes together well and comes out an enjoyable show. It is even funny in spots. But it's hardly what one would call a "comedy". Even if it is a Simon play. And the person who goes to see it on the premise that it's a Simon comedy will be disappointed. It's simply too heavy for that. As most of Simon's more recent plays seem to be.

Excellent performances are Firing Zone Set A firing range danger zone has been approved for the ocean at Camp Pendleton for Friday and Saturday, October 14 and 15.

Red flags will be displayed at obvious locations along the beach when firing is in progress and firing will be suspended if any vessel is within the danger zone. No firing will be done during hours of darkness or low visibility.

what makes the Cavalier production what it is. And the honest to goodness credit must go to Hank Mauro as Barney. His interpretation of the bungling lover-to-be has just the right touch of tenderness, comedy and drama. And his long speech to Elaine, in the first act, when he tries to explain why he wants and needs to seduce her, why he suddenly feels that life is passing him by, is a beautiful thing to see. It will hit home, if you're over 40.

Barbara Lewis as Elaine is perfect: caustic, flippantly bitter in her own search for a meaningful existence; Daryl Salzberg (overcoming an ill-chosen, divertingly short, outfit) is pathetically delightful as a weirdo psycho who thinks that men are lurking around every corner to do her in; but it's Barbara Eilberg as Jeanette who really grabs the audience as the inhibited wife of Barney's best friend who is in a fit of depression because her husband has told her he is having an affair with another woman. Her final scene, when she sobs her love for her wayward husband is a bit heavy, a tear jerker, but a fine bit of acting.

Actually, "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" is not my cup of tea. And it's certainly not what I enjoy as a comedy. But the Cavalier cast must be given credit where credit is due. They've made it a far better show than the Stubby Kaye road show production here some months ago. And it's worth a trip to the Cavalier to see what I mean. It's a good show. Even if you don't like this particular Neil Simon effort. The Cavalier performances here are, without exception, a real experience in local theatre.

Spong Cited For Gov't. Economy

By SONJA HILLGREN
Sun Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. William B. Spong Jr. is the only Democrat in the Senate to be recognized by the National Associated Businessmen, Inc. for voting for "economy in government" during the 92nd Congress.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., the only Independent in the Senate, and all ten members of Virginia's House delegation were also given "Watchdog of the Treasury" awards by the Washington-based business group.

This is the first time Spong has been cited by the businessmen since he entered the Senate in 1967.

He received the award for his votes on nine of 12 federal pending measures selected as indicators of excessive federal spending.

Spong voted contrary to the businessmen's stand on two of the votes and didn't vote on one measure to get an 81.8 per cent rating from the group.

A Member of Congress needed a 75 per cent rating to make the list of 21 Senators and 165 Congressmen. The group disregarded absences in tabulating percentages.

Byrd received a 100 per cent rating for all votes and one absence. He has been cited for his votes in each session of Congress since the NAB began honoring Senators six years ago.

Rep. G. William Whitehurst, R-Norfolk, received an NAB citation for agreement for their stands on seven of nine votes for a 77.8 per cent rating. Whitehurst wasn't recognized by the businessmen during the 91st Congress, his first session in Congress.

Rep. Thomas N. Downing, D-Newport News, with an 11-1 score and 91.7 percentage, made the "Watchdog of the Treasury" list for the first time since the NAB house volings were begun eight years ago.

Rep. Watkins M. Abbutt, D-Appomattox, has been cited in each Congress but the 91st.

FIRST COLONIAL WINS — Mrs. Gwen Infantino, sponsor of the Heritage, displays the award winning First Colonial High School annual.

The Columbia Scholastic Press Association has notified First Colonial High School that the school annual, the HERITAGE, has won a first place award in the association's national competition.

The 1972 edition of the HERITAGE was judged along with some 2,000 other such books from across the country, and was singled out for its innovative layout, design, and use of material.

Insects Are Incredible

By Lynn Geisler
7th grade-Seateck Elem. Sch.

Insects are one of man's biggest problems. They annoy us, eat our food, infect us, and our animals with deadly diseases. But, can there be some good in these insects? Yes there can, they pollinate many of our crops, they are food for many fish. Life as we know it could not exist if there were no insects.

Insects are incredible. Ants can lift weights 50 times their own weight. If a man that weighed 175 pounds could lift the same proportions as an ant, he could lift four tons. A flea can do the broad jump 13 inches, if a man could do as well he would jump 700 feet. A wasp before it lays its eggs kills a larantula and then lays its eggs on it.

About 800,000 types of insects exist. Scientists believe there are as many as 1 million to 10 million types of insects still undiscovered.

Recently, Mrs. Brands 7th grade class at Seateck Elementary School collected insects and made displays out of boxes mounting the insects in them. They killed the insects by putting them in a jar which contained cotton which was soaked in alcohol or some other liquid that gave off an irritating gas. Then they mounted them in a box by putting a pin through the insects along with piece of paper that named to what order the insect belonged.

Washington Merry-Go-Round by JACK ANDERSON. Special Report from Washington - ABUSING THE MAILS. By Jack Anderson. 1972 Pulitzer Prize Winner for National Reporting.

WASHINGTON—Congressmen are playing so fast and furious with their free postal privileges this year that mis-privilege is becoming a major campaign issue in political races around the country. The Fair Campaign Practices Committee reports it has already received twice as many complaints about congressional abuse of the mails during the entire 1970 campaign. Formal complaints have been filed against James Howard, D-N.J.; Hamilton Fish, R-New York, John Moss, D-Calif., Bob Mathias, R-Calif., George Shipley, D-Ill., John Asbrook, R-Ohio and Albert Johnson, R-Calif. In addition, the committee says there are dozens of other cases in which congressmen have allegedly abused the mails but have not been challenged formally by their opponents. Under the law, congressmen can use the mails free of charge for official business, but incumbents have become so ingenious at disguising political puffery as official business that the Postal Service has given up trying to enforce the law. Congressmen have perfected all sorts of ways to circum-

— Pension Reforms Rebuffed— The U.S. Chamber of Commerce has reached into the Senate and effectively squashed legislation that would protect older citizens from being cheated out of their pensions. The Senate Labor Committee, which has spent years investigating pension abuses, has established that citizens who lose their jobs before retirement often receive no pensions at all even though collectively they contribute millions of dollars to pension funds. To correct such abuses, the committee drafted careful reforms. But the guilty companies, working through the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, have managed to cheat their employees again. The Chamber of Commerce got the bill referred to the Senate Finance Committee headed by Big Business's buddy, Senator Russell Long. When the legislation came back, it was stripped of its meaning. The key provisions had been gutted. Labor Committee members are furious and have promised a big battle on the Senate floor. Meanwhile, a TV network has dramatized the great pension scandal in a nationwide television documentary. But we have learned that corporate powers are putting quiet pressure on the TV network not to make the documentary available for private showing. — Around the U.S. — • Space Age Conventions— The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has proudly announced in a press release that it has awarded a contract to a private firm to develop the world's most expensive toilet. The commode under contract will be launched into space for use by astronauts in the space shuttle program. The price tag for a prototype toilet is staggering: $288,000. Meanwhile, back on earth, the government is spending hundreds of thousands more dollars for the convenience of its employees. This year, for example, the government estimates it will spend $350,000 for smoking stands. If public money isn't going down the drain, it's going up in smoke. • Union Strikes in '73— President Nixon's Wage Board has held salary increases to about five-and-a-half per cent a year. But after the election, the board is expected to tighten controls on wages in an attempt to reduce the annual wage increase below five per cent. The move, no doubt, would infuriate unions. Their main complaint: The President's controls would be tough on workers' wages but not tough enough on prices and profits. If the wage lid is tightened, a showdown may come next year in the form of strikes by auto, construction, airline and railroad employees. • A Visa for a Star— Recent press reports claimed that movie star Vanessa Redgrave had been denied a temporary visa to shoot a new film in the United States. The reports, carried widely in the press, speculated that the decision was motivated by Miss Redgrave's outspoken views against the Vietnam War. We have done our own checking. At the time of the reports, Miss Redgrave had not yet formally applied for a visa. Even a famous movie star like Miss Redgrave—has to apply for a visa in order to get one.

ASTRO-ADVICE by Raymond Williams. Licensed Virginia Beach Astrologer with offices in the Byler Building. QUESTION: I was born between 11:00 a.m. and Noon, July 19, 1938. Am I a Cancer or Leo. Some books I read say Leo and say Cancer. This is really confusing to me. ANSWER: The answer is quite simple. You are neither a Cancer or Leo. True you were born when the Sun was in the sign Cancer, but so close to leaving the sign that you surely will take on the nature of both signs. The Sun leaves the sign that day and if you are born in the morning it is still in the sign Cancer, but by later in the day it has moved into Leo. In addition you have the sign Scorpio rising if you are born about Noon or a bit earlier. This is a very strong sign and will color the nature with the influences of that sign. Scorpio is a self-contained, deep-feeling, intense and somewhat secret sign. This alone would smother the sign Cancer. In addition to this you have the Moon in Gemini. The Moon governs the personality. This will give you a more Gemini personality than otherwise. This would make you like to meet people and be on the go. But, the Moon squares the planet Mars, the most dynamic planet in the horoscope is conjunct the Sun at birth. This modifies the situation even more. It makes you a very active and somewhat aggressive person. There is a positive side to this in that it gives you the energy to overcome any kind of setbacks. It is sure to have made you quite an ardent person, as well. This can make a person who is quite bossy and likes to tell others what to do. But at birth the Sun is also conjunct the planet Pluto. We do not know too much about this planet as yet, but we do know that it tends to keep things hidden. Therefore I feel safe in saying that there is a side to your nature that no one knows anything about. This includes your husband, Pluto is a strange planet in this respect. It must involve the personal drive, the ability to find fulfillment in the relationships with the opposite sex. There is a definite dual side to its nature. In summary it is easy to see that you are neither a Cancer or Leo or anything else. This is one of the things that keeps many people from accepting astrology as a valid science. A few years ago it was customary to classify people as either introverted or extroverted. Other terms such as psychotic and neurotic were in common usage also. Most human beings are far more complex than this. Most of us have very definite positive attributes and others that are not so positive.

Hasty Decision

Water negotiations, true to usual form, are dragging. All is quiet on the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Water Front. And the people are, of course, wondering where negotiations stand. And while the people are wondering, Virginia Beach's vice mayor issues a statement declaring that a twenty year contract is the answer; his idea being that it would take at least that long to establish a workable regional system, that Virginia Beach might just as well accept dependence on Norfolk's water supply for that period, for perhaps an indefinite time. What the vice mayor says may or may not be true. How can the layman citizen truly determine such a crucial issue? But the fact that one top ranking official would take such a definite stand, on his own, during negotiations, cannot be in the best interest of the city. Perhaps the answer is a long term contract. Perhaps it is not. But whatever the decision, it must be made jointly by this City's council and its administration. No one person is empowered to make this decision. Not even the vice mayor.

They Want To Share Experiences

The Editor: We live in Pleasantville, N.J., population 13,000, a town on the Atlantic City. The governmental decisions in our town used to be almost entirely settled to the politics of the nearby larger city. We are bringing government back to the people by several methods, all of which are in the tradition of American independence. We know that people in other towns share similar difficulties and we would appreciate your advising them that we will forward free of charge, any material which might be helpful. We helped people in other towns form taxpayer associations and have available a one page instruction sheet on how to form a taxpayers association. We fought against secrecy and now few persons in the town are afraid to assert their right to know what the government is doing. We formed an organization which put the city property tax records on a computer, subjecting it to analysis and we discovered huge discrepancies. Some properties were not being taxed and some were being taxed at less than a hundredth of a cent per square foot. We applied to have this corrected. So far the government has not corrected it, but it will. Some of the properties were taxed twice as high as their neighbors. We presented this injustice to the court and received all kinds of absurd excuses for the government's mistake. They are correcting it, grudgingly, but they are correcting it. The contracts which the city government proposes are scrutinized by our taxpayers association. City Council meetings no longer are quick closed sessions. At regular meeting of council, there is standing room only (about 100 people). When there are well publicized issues, citizens fill the room and line the halls and stairways. It is a pleasure to watch democracy work. But this is not done without difficulties. Our taxpayers association chairman was arrested when he used a mild curseword in one of his protestations. The local judge gave 'im' all in five times the language, but the appeals judge reversed and called it all a molehill. The state administration which reacted against group tax records on a computer, subjected it to analysis and we discovered huge discrepancies. Some properties were not being taxed and some were being taxed at less than a hundredth of a cent per square foot. We applied to have this corrected. So far the government has not corrected it, but it will. Some of the properties were taxed twice as high as their neighbors. We presented this stopped believing in their "normality" when they scheduled our case a hundred miles from the usual place and we roared there through the edge of Hurricane Agnes only to find that the judge had decided to schedule 83 other cases ahead of case No. 1. Honest government exists only where people are brave enough to show that their love for honesty is greater than their fear for the dark. We would like to give all the light that we can. People who can give advice of their experiences are also invited to communicate with us. PLEASANTVILLE TAX-PAYERS ASSOCIATION Anthony Castagna, President Box 189 Pleasantville, N.J. 08232

Re-Instated Dedication

The National Newspaper Week. A designated time to call attention to the newspapers that serve people. It's a national observance. It doesn't mean a pause to consider the worth of local papers, community papers, like The Sun. Or does it—Of course it does. For The Sun is for the people. Its reason for being is for the people of Virginia Beach. The pages of this newspaper are not devoted to national or international news—that is available to the readers in varied and numerous sources—its content is localized to Virginia Beach, to the city, to its people, to its future. And The Sun is independent. It is free to express its idea, and the ideas of the people. That's why The Sun is proud to take part in the national Newspaper Week observance. That's why its staff takes this opportunity to reinstate its dedication to Virginia Beach. And to the people it serves.

Well, Wasn't It?

City Council has approved a new hospital on Independence Boulevard, making the decision over protests from official and unofficial sources, based on the belief that additional hospital beds will not affect the personnel and bed capacity of the existing General Hospital of Virginia Beach. This decision was undoubtedly made on the unquestionable knowledge that the people's hospital, a facility built on the dedication and sacrifice of residents of this city, would not suffer from the addition of a commercial facility. The decision was made with the firm assurance this wouldn't happen. Wasn't it?

Support UNICEF

UNICEF will redeem these labels for cash with which they will continue to provide medicine, vitamins, food, etc. to children of the world. The following companies are participating: Clark Gum Co., Regular and sugar gum, 1 cent per pack wrapper; General Foods, Kool-aid drink mix, 4 cent per envelope; Welch Foods, Jam's and Jellies, 5 cents per jar label; Quaker Oat Co., Willy Wonka Skrunch or Peanut Butter Oompas, 1 cent per label; Quaker Oat Co., Cap'n Crunch Cereal, 2 cents per T of L coupon on Pkg.; Swift & Co., Premium Franks, 2 cents per royal label; Standard Brands, Royal Puddings & Gelatins, 1 cent per front panel. Anyone wishing to help may either mail the above items to Mrs. Ronald Aruta, c/o The Pembroke Manor Civic League, 4532 Hindsdale Street, Virginia Beach, Va. 23462, or they may take them to The Dome, at Va. Beach, on Oct. 13, 14 or 15, Booth 17, Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Society. They are helping the league with the collection. The drive will continue until December 1, 1972.

Press Freedom, A Public Freedom

By Albert Blank Philadelphia (Pa.) Evening and Sunday Bulletin THE week of October 8 to 14 is being observed as Newspaper Week in communities throughout the nation. Anyone who reflects on the role of modern newspapers in today's society is reminded anew how wise were those men who wrote into the First Amendment to the U. S. Constitution the guarantee of a free press. Thomas Jefferson once said he would prefer to live in a country with newspapers but without a government rather than a country with a government but no newspapers. "No experiment can be more interesting than what we are now trying," he wrote on another occasion, "and which we trust will end in establishing the fact that man may be governed by reason and truth. Our first object, therefore, should be to leave open to him all the avenues of truth. "How do you go about giving the citizen a clear shot down the avenue of truth? "The most effectual (method) hitherto found," said Jefferson, "is freedom of the press." It still is. Newspapersmen throughout the English-speaking world are well aware of Edmund Burke, who first referred to them as the Fourth Estate, 200 years ago in the British House of Commons. "In this Parliament," said Edmund Burke, "are three estates: The Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons. But, in the Reporter's Gallery, yonder sits a Fourth Estate, more important by far than all. "What then remains?" he asked Parliament. "Only the liberty of the Press, which no influence, no power, no minister, no government, which nothing but the depravity or corruption of a jury can ever destroy. It will be the nation's most awful momentum. It will be the first grasp of tyranny, and how pregnant is the example. What remains if the public press is extinguished, the people enslaved, and the prince undone? "As an advocate of society, of peace and of liberty I conjure you to guard the liberty of the press, the great sentinel of the state, the grand detector of public imposture. Guard it and cherish it, because whenever it ceases to flourish, there will die with it the liberty of the people and the security of the Crown." To benefit from a good press, the public should zealously defend press freedom even when it hurts. Freedom of the press is not a press freedom but a public freedom, a public possession and right, and in many ways the public's stoutest weapon. To deserve its freedom, the press should strive to be full, fair and factual. But a free people does not leave it to the government to decide what is full, fair and factual. The greatest strength of a free press is not points of similarity, but in the points of difference. In the production of news every step involves the conscious production of some news-gatherer, and two accounts of the same event will never be the same. The threat to the liberties of the individual is always possible. External vigilance on the part of the public is essential, and that is why once a year Newspaper Week seeks to focus attention on Freedom of Expression—a priceless heritage bought with blood and tears over many years.

LETTERS AND NEWSPAPERS

Most people like to "get things off their chest," and under freedom they can do it. That's what free speech and free press are all about. One of the best ways to get things off your chest is to write a letter to the editor. This time-honored way of giving one's views and ideas is an important part of our free society and free press. All letters written to editors cannot be printed. Oftentimes space is lacking. Sometimes the words and ideas may be spiteful, abusive or even libelous. But most readers—and writers—have the opportunity to say what they think. It is important that people read newspapers with understanding, think for themselves, and take responsible action when they believe it necessary, if only to get it off their chest with a letter to the editor. In this way, free speech and a free press will continue to guarantee a free and open society.

POLITICS in a HUSHELL

By KIRT BAUDER I spoke with Robert Daniel and Robert Gibson Tuesday. Both are Congressional candidates in the Fourth District and each has a complaint about the other. Daniel wants to debate with Gibson. It doesn't seem to be a big problem, I thought. Get both of them on television and let them fire away. Simple yes, but no. Gibson feels that Daniel and the two independents have been "gangbanging" him up on him in his speeches. Daniel feels that Gibson is afraid to debate and that if Gibson can't take the pressure from three candidates how will he do an adequate job for the fourth district. Gibson will agree to a debate if, in his opinion, the format for the debate is fair to all the candidates. Daniels is ready to debate Gibson just about anywhere and at any time. Daniel has made a suggestion that he and Gibson by a half hour of television time after the evening news and do their own debate. The debate would cost each candidate approximately $350. Gibson feels that it could be a good idea and has his campaign aids working on it, but states that he is spending too much time on the road and hasn't had the time to set-up the schedule and format that would be fair to both himself and Daniel. FROM THE CANDIDATES: L. CHARLES BURLAGE, candidate for the Fourth District Congressional seat, has formally called on the Federal Communications Commission to monitor the second District Congressional campaign coverage by WTAR Radio and Television and the Virginia-Pilot and Ledger-Star. In his formal request to David Kraushar, Office of Hearing Examiners-Federal Communications Commission, Burlage explained that the purpose of his action was "to eliminate one of the most incredible examples of news management that has ever become my sad experience to witness. In the Norfolk and Virginia Beach area or in the Second Congressional District the total power of the combination of WTAR Radio and Television coupled with their control of the Virginia-Pilot and Ledger-Star is so devastating in its totality that in my judgement it results in 10 or 15 points in favor of any candidate they decide to support." Burlage claims that there is a tie-in in the media which is impossible to prove and that this group has control of at least 80 per cent of the media heard in the area. HORACE (HUNK) HENDERSON, Independent candidate for U.S. Senate, has charged incumbent William B. Spong with receiving "large financial support for re-election from special vested interests from outside Virginia." Henderson listed 15 groups, directly from the Senator's campaign donation report which included: Savings Assn. Political Elections Committee (DC), Real Estate Political Education Committee (ILL), AFL-CIO Cope (DC), National Capitol Transit Union (DC), Hughes Active Citizenship Fund (Calif.), Camers Public Affairs Committee (Mo.). Henderson also charged that Spong was receiving monies from special interests in Virginia and pointed out 17 persons associated with the trucking industry. U.S. Senator WILLIAM B. SPONG JR. has announced that Robert B. Cromwell Jr. and Robert H. Callis Jr. will serve as joint Virginia Beach coordinators for Spong's campaign for re-election to the Senate. Cromwell is mayor of Virginia Beach and has been a member of its city council for six years. Callis has been a member of the Council since 1970 and is vice president of the Virginia Pilots Association. While speaking in Suffolk, Delegate ROBERT E. GIBSON, Congressional candidate in the Fourth District, pledged to "vote against tax increases which the Executive Branch may propose this coming year, if elected." Gibson feels there is a need to have a Congress which will take a stand on deficit spending, a Congress which will stand up against the Executive Branch and say no to the requests for unnecessary spending. Gibson feels that the first step "would be for Congress to impose a $250 Billion ceiling on Executive spending." BOB DANIEL, Fourth District Republican candidate for Congress, has given his support to a new anti-pollution law to control tampering with anti-pollution devices used on new cars. Daniel discussed the control law between the manufacturer and dealer, but states there should be laws to control tampering by the owner. "Automobile manufactures have made great strides in complying with strict standards set by the Nixon administration Environmental Protection Agency," said Daniel. "But if the devices are not used, they are useless."

SUN SURVEY Do you feel that candidates should be limited in the TOTAL amount of money spent on campaigning? YES [ ] NO [ ] Your comments and signed letters would be appreciated also. Clip and return to: VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, Box 2237, Virginia Beach, Va. 23452 have made their job a difficult one. Close working contact with these carriers and their very much appreciated cooperation has made the success possible.

Sun Circulation Soars

The Virginia Beach Sun carriers operate on a three-phased Merit System based on sales, delivery, and collection. A carrier receives Merit Points for on-time delivery, increased collection, good service, and good attitude. Accumulation of points results in more money for him, prizes and trophies.

In addition to these profits, we hope the carriers will also gain a better understanding of business operation, achieve a sense of responsibility, and develop a pride in their own accomplishments.

The Virginia Beach Sun is delivered on a voluntary pay system. This means that a carrier delivers to each home in his assigned area without any subscription customers. Then, between the 20th and the 1st of the next month, the carrier goes to his customers and asks for a 50 cent collection. It is his and our hopes that the customers have received good service and have enjoyed reading the Sun. Upon paying the 50 cents, the customer receives a receipt that entitles him to a 50 cent reduction in the cost of a classified advertisement.

A carrier's profit depends on good collection, which in turn depends on good service. This incentive and his determination determines the success of the circulation Department.

Meetings in the Circulation Department are frequent among carriers and District Managers and Clayton Finch and his new assistant Mary Sentmen. This ensures the cooperation and coordination that is so vital to distribution of the newspaper.

Carrier meetings the next few weeks are going to be exciting for the carriers. One day each week, a district manager with her carriers, along with Clayton and Mary will meet at Shakey's Pizza. Work mixed with pleasure is always a lot more fun and usually more productive. Our carriers work hard and Clayton wants them to know how much they are appreciated by the entire staff.

Saturday is National Newspaper Carrier Day. Clay and Mary and all of the District Managers congratulate all the Virginia Beach Sun carriers for a job well done.

New Hospital For Beach

hospital is needed in the City. I don't feel we should consider a six month moratorium, it has no place in this discussion.

Vice-Mayor Irvin replied, "This is a request from the medical council and should be considered."

Grover Wright, Beach General Hospital, contended the new hospital could not be built on the proposed site because of improper zoning. He also called for a six month moratorium on new hospital facilities.

Director, reminded Council Beach General does not offer clinic or nursing training services. He said, "To offer these it must be a larger hospital, but it will never attain these if a second hospital is built." Councilman Dr. Clarence A. Holland said, "I feel a need has been shown and I don't see how this hospital will cause any catastrophe in the City." His motion to approve the hospital was seconded by Payne.

A substitute motion from Councilman Robert H. Callis, Jr., to defer action on the matter for six months was seconded by Vice-Mayor Ervin. Their motion failed however when only Gardner joined them in voting affirmatively.

Another substitute motion to defer the matter for 30 days came from Ervin on grounds of providing Council more time to digest information on the issue. Gardner said he found it difficult to obtain objective information on the matter and seconded the motion. Their motion failed for lack of support.

Holland's original motion was approved by a vote of 6 to 3, with dissenting votes cast by Callis, Irvin and Gardner. Rhodes abstained from voting. Councilman John A. Baum was absent.

Dunes Motor Inn to build 45 additional motel units with a restaurant on the corner of 10th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

The Commission denied a permit for a signboard for River Woods Apartments in the

It approved the withdrawal of an application of Chesapeake Bay Properties and Virginia Beach Health Care Center for a permit to operate a nursing and convalescent home in the Diamond Springs Area.

The commission also approved a 30-day referral for apartment construction in the Shadowlawn Heights Area for Daniel R. Pulley Jr., who was unable to attend the meeting because of a death in his family.

Efforts Underway To Equalize Rates

City Manager Roger M. Scott is attempting to equalize water rates for residents of North Virginia Beach and the Beach Borough. North Virginia Beach residents for some time have been paying a higher water rate than their Beach Borough neighbors.

During Monday's Informal Council session Scott said the rate differential developed prior to the merger of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County, as a result of relieving serious water problems in the old City of Virginia Beach. Scott added, "I hope if we go to a bulk water rate we would equalize water rates all over the City."

Scott referred to information from A.W. Pety, City Utilities Engineer showing Borough residents, served by a 3% residential tap, pay a minimum monthly rate of $3.00, while the minimum rate for North Virginia Beach residents is $4.50. Both rates apply to the first 5,000 gallons of water used.

In both instances, Scott pointed out, the monthly rate is 72 cents 1,000 gallons for quantities from 5,000 to 25,000 per month. "However, for residents in the Borough, quantities above 25,000 gallons per month sell for 54 cents 1,000 gallons, "whereas the break for other occurs at 100,000 gallons per month. This obviously does not affect many homeowners since few use above 25,000 gallons in one month."

Scott's action came in response to a request from Vice-Mayor P. Reid Ervin who said, "Since merger this differential has continued in force and the reason given is to amortize improvements made primarily for the benefit of North Virginia Beach customers. I cannot accept the validity of this argument in light of today's conditions."

Ervin added, "To my knowledge, the customers of the affected areas are not required to participate in the cost of these improvements by paying more than their neighbors for water consumed."

Scott said he would discuss feasibility of equalizing the rates with City Finance Director Giles G. Dodd and City Attorney J. Dale Binson, and report back to Council.

TCC Funds Approved

"It's the opinion of this Council that when you provide for the education of the people of this City, it's money well spent." Mayor Robert B. Cromwell, Jr., made that statement Monday as City Council appropriated $679,730 for the Tidewater Community College. The money will be spent for on-site improvements to the College's Virginia Beach Campus.

Dr. Henry McCoy and R. Bradshaw Pulley, college trustees, said the funds would cover such projects as roads, parking areas, drainage, sewer and water systems, walks, lighting, and landscaping of the site off Princess Anne Road. The College has been operating out of temporary quarters at Camp Pendleton for the past two years.

In presenting the request for funds McCoy told Council, "The 1970 Legislator appropriated money to run the college but the City has provided a site in Green Run. The 1972 General Assembly provided $3.7 million for a building, and the final step must be three on-site improvements."

City Manager Roger M. Scott, responding to a question from Councilman Donald H. Rhodes' question as to where the money would come from, said the financing was already accounted for in budgets and bonding programs. Approval of the request gave no money build one, and Councilman Dr. Clarence

Mrs. Bercaw Finds Her Place As Contractor In Trim Work

Mrs. Bercaw inspects a closet door to determine if it has been hung correctly.

"Everyone should find his place and learn what he enjoys doing."

Mrs. Juanita Paula Bercaw of the Beach has done just that. She is a self-employed contractor and subcontractor in trim and final work in homes and "loves it."

She has been in business for herself since June so the "going is still a little rough and the work hours are long." "You don't get as tired though when you're doing something you like."

She was employed as a trim carpenter for a local construction company at the time she received her Virginia State license and a Virginia Beach City permit for general contracting. She believes she is the only woman in the city with such a license.

Her position as an employer also has led to an unexpected and unsolicited honor recently. She was the recipient of the Virginia Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped Employer's Award of Merit. She was nominated for the award by Russell Rucks, manager of the Virginia Beach office of the Virginia Employment Commission.

Mrs. Bercaw, who has had two major operations resulting in the loss of 85 percent of her stomach and the middle lobe of her right lung, was commended for her concern in hiring handicapped persons. Three of her six employees are considered handicapped.

"I believe in giving everyone a chance, if that person really wants to learn," she commented.

Her shocked reaction when Mr. Rucks presented her the certificate was, "It's the first time I've ever won anything. I'm very happy."

Mrs. Albert Oldham (r.) of the Beach, wife of the departing executive officer of the U.S.S. Forrestal, was honored by the Fort Story Officers Club at a champagne brunch recently. Mrs. John Burnham of the Beach, (l.) president, assisted by Mrs. James McCardell, wife of the new executive officer presented Mrs. Oldham an engraved silver cocktail gallery tray and a book, "Gift from the Sea" by Ann Lindberg, both gifts from the members. Mrs. Oldham also received an engraved card tray and charm which is given to all departing members. Approximately 50 members attended the affair which began with champagne cocktails, followed by a breakfast served buffet style. Mrs. Oldham offered her continued support of the club as long as she and her husband remain in the area.

custom-built homes for Baycliff Accent Development Company. She later began doing trim work. The work includes putting in molding of all types, baseboard installing, bathroom fixtures, weatherstripping, all types of door and locks, window locks, installing medicine cabinets, vanities, hand rails, bars, kitchen cabinets, fireplace mantels — anything to finish up inside the home except painting and plastering.

"It's interesting work. It isn't the same thing all of the time. Every job I find something new," Mrs. Bercaw enthusiastically explains.

Since she began operating her own general contracting business, she has added inspections to her other duties. Before the job begins she checks on tools and materials which the builder should supply. She also inspects the final stages of each job to determine if all of the work is being done correctly. She makes an inspection prior to the visit of the city building inspectors.

"All of the homes we've worked on have passed to date," she said with a touch of pride. Admitting to be almost a perfectionist she added, "I want things done right."

Once she has completed her inspection rounds, she picks up her tools and helps on any job where her employees are short-handed.

Although she "likes things done right," she still realizes that mistakes do occur and does not believe a person should be penalized for or feel self-conscious about an error.

"We weren't all born geniuses and I don't know of anyone born with experience. You learn by doing and making mistakes while doing."

She feels a person should not be hesitant to say he does not know how to do something. "Don't say you can do something which you know you can't. There is nothing wrong with learning."

Anyone who is really interested can learn the fundamental phases of a job such as finishing carpentry. Mrs. Bercaw believes. It also is important to learn as many different aspects of a job as possible. "Don't let someone else always do one particular type of work because you can't do it. Learn to do it."

She has considered holding a class two nights a week to teach basics to anyone who is interested in the job but has not made definite plans as yet.

Even though she advocates the admission of not knowing how to do something, she does not think a new employee should ever go on a job and indicate it is his first job. "A person should have confidence in himself at all times."

Mrs. Bercaw has two children, Mrs. Dean Goodin of Dallas, Tex. and Bobby Turley, U.S. Air Force, San Antonio, Tex. She is the "proud" grandmother of Sandra Goodin, 13 and Sheryl Goodin, 11.

Russell Rucks presents the Employer's Merit Award to Mrs. Juanita Paula Bercaw.

Camouflage Aids In Home

Miss Habel told of how the optical effects of color, warm colors advancing and cool colors receding, are strong allies in the color campaign. For instance, a room without much natural light can seem lighter if the walls and ceilings are pale pink or yellow. A room that is too bright will "cool-off" if the walls are painted light green or blue. Ceilings can be made to appear high or lower, and their irregularities made less noticeable, with color camouflage.

"More permanent than other methods of disguise, and often the best solution to architectural flaws, is the use of built-in cabinetry," declared the Extension specialist. "Use it to disguise many faulty structural details and gain new storage space as a bonus," she suggested. Home decorators should train themselves to notice how others use camouflage so that they may adapt those ideas to their own use.

Camouflage can be as useful to the homemaker as it is to animals and soldiers.

"Those decorator problems resulting from badly placed windows, ugly radiators, ceilings that are too low or too high, rooms that are too long or too short, can be solved with camouflage," said Miss Katherine Habel, a Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home furnishings.

Draperies, built-in cupboards, fool-the-eye wallpaper and just plain paint are a few of the camouflage ingredients that enable the homemaker to create a more suitable atmosphere and environment.

"Wallpaper is famous for the visual tricks one can play with it to improve the appearance of a room. Scenic and mural wall coverings used on a badly placed door can make it seem to disappear. The use of darker paper on end walls and lighter paper on side walls makes a long, narrow room more pleasing in its apparent proportions," counseled Miss Habel.

Window treatments also rate high on the list of camouflage strategies. Floor-to-ceiling draperies, plus a cornice, can add height to a room. Draperies can alter the appearance of poorly placed or odd-size windows.

Color, one of the most important tools of camouflage, can unify space. In a room with too many openings, doors, windows and archways, use of the same hues on walls, woodwork and window treatments can almost blot out the chopped-up look.

Charles Burlage, Fourth Congressional District, held a reception at his home last Thursday for all the Democratic comiteeman candidates who were in the last race, in a show of support that would indicate the Democratic party in the Second District has not split. Ed Brogen, a guest at the Burlage party, noted, "It is interesting to note that both former factions were here tonight and have come together to back one candidate." Mrs. Barbara Darden (l. front), Mrs. Francis Cate, Mrs. Janis Burlage, Ed D. Brogan (l. back), Mr. Burlage and Mickey Darden discuss the campaign. Approximately 50 close friends and supporters attended the buffet.

School Board Approves Sites For Junior Highs

The lease or purchase of sites for three junior high schools in the Princess Anne, Bayside and Lynhaven Boroughs and a construction contract were approved October 4 by the Virginia Beach School Board during a special meeting.

The base bid of $2,212,000 by the Bevox Construction Company for the Beach for the construction of Princess Anne Junior High School was accepted by the Board. The purchase of 25 acres of unimproved land at $2,500 per acre for the school at the intersection of Seaboard Road and Lee Roy Drive also was approved.

The Board agreed to buy a 25-acre site off Independence Boulevard for Independence Junior High School from Herbert L. Kramer at $7,200 per acre. Mrs. Kramer also will receive $2,700 per acre for making improvements such as storm drainage and a sewage pumping station. Its Research Department told the Board the total price of $9,900 per acre is a bargain as its estimate of the cost of the land with improvements was $14,000 per acre.

A total of 25 acres will be leased from the city at no cost for the construction of Lynhaven Junior High School at the abandoned Municipal Sanitation Facility between Great Neck and First Colonial Roads.

Classes meet at Kempsville High School, Room 600. They are scheduled on Monday evenings, beginning October 16 and ending December 4 from 7-10 P.M. The registration fee is $30 including all instructional materials.

Roman rice goes well with broiled steak and a tossed salad. It's fast and easy to fix.

The Front Burner

Rice Serves As A Vegetable

Although rice is officially a cereal, its use as an entree's accompaniment on the menu puts it into the "vegetable" grouping, too.

Last week's Front Burner offered soup and appetizer recipes using rice. This week tempting rice "vegetable" dishes are being featured.

Citizens Help Drug Center

The demise of Broken Needles Inc. has been prevented with the help of concerned citizens in the Tidewater area.

Plans for the closing of the drug rehabilitation center as of October 3 was announced recently by its director, the Rev. Danny Marrow, because the non-profit organization was not in a financial position to continue its operations. It does not receive state or federal funds and had not been receiving the expected support of the Tidewater Citizens.

However, when the plight of the organization was made known, the citizens did respond to reduce the debts to almost $2,000. The continued support of the Tidewater Community on a weekly basis is needed to keep the facility open, however, Mrs. Marrow indicated in a recent news release.

Young people from Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach, Newport News and Hampton have been ministered to, counseled and helped by Broken Needles personnel. According to Mr. Marrow, it is one of the older established Christian organizations in the area that taking a stand against drugs "which offers a solution, not a 'method' or 'program' to the drug abuser or addict."

The organization is the only one of its kind invited to speak before the Young Republican Committee and a subcommittee to the National Convention in Miami, Fla. according to Mr. Marrow.

Dam Neck Wives Holds Brunch

A farewell champagne brunch will be held for Mrs. Alwyn Smith Jr., wife of the commanding officer, Fleet Combat Direction Systems Training Center, Atlantic, by the Dam Neck Officers' Wives' Club at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at the Dam Neck Officers' Club. The event will be hosted by the wives of officers in the Operations and Plans Department.

4-11 WEEK — An exhibit created by members of the 4-11 Clubs in Virginia Beach was displayed in Pembroke Mall during National 4-11 Week October 1-7. The display had taken a first place ribbon at the State Fair in Richmond for which it was originally built. The theme of the display was "We Care About Tomorrow" with the subjects including peace, pollution, wildlife, conservation, population, careers and poverty. Working on the exhibit from left to right are Dennis Malbone, 15, Maryellen Wadsworth, 13, Tim Etheredge, sponsor, Carolyn Turner, 13 and Scott Malbone, 13. Each participating club designed a box on an area of concern. Many of the subjects covered in the display appear in 4-11 projects. Club members then got together to work on the final display.

Couples Should Purchase With Care

Engaged couples often find the selection of furniture can be one of the continuing fun features of the engagement. Or it can be a headache.

"A large part of it depends upon how well the pair know the house or apartment into which they are going to move," said Miss Katherine Habel, a Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home furnishings.

"After the honeymoon, there is the big job of getting the house in order. The furniture arrives. And, let's hope, so does the 'best man' to help the groom move the pieces into their proper places."

Nearby, in true cartoon fashion, the bride sits to direct the men as they push furniture from one side of the room to another. Miss Habel indicated. "Clearly, the dream home is not materializing as dreamed."

The new family will find it wise to stop and make a plan before that point is reached. All it takes is a little time and a pad of paper with imprinted squares. It is much easier to shove an imaginary piece of furniture around on a piece of paper than it is to move the real thing around a room.

"Measure each piece of furniture and outline its size on the square of the floor sketch just made like a jig-saw puzzle, each piece will find its right place on the plan and in the room." Miss Habel revealed.

Highlights

Fans in four specific areas of the country are going to be treated to some particularly-outstanding football this Saturday. The Southeast Conference, the Pacific Eight Conference, and the Big Eight all feature games that involve not only top-ranked teams, but games that will give the winners big strides toward possible conference championships. The fourth "arena" is the clash between undefeated, top-ranked Oklahoma, and undefeated Texas, ranked 11th.

The 67th renewal of the Sooner-Longhorn series will be played in Dallas, with Texas holding a 42-44 lead in games won. However, this season will be the Year of the Sooner with the powerful Oklahoma Sooners a strong 33-point favorite over the Steers.

In the Southeast Conference, the game in the spotlight matches L.S.U. and Auburn. The Louisiana Tigers are rated no. 7 in the country, the Auburn Tiger, no. 12. This series has only been going on for twenty years with L.S.U. holding an 11 to 8 lead in games won. No doubt it will be a typical Southeast Conference pea-pickin' struggle, both on the field and off. We'll pick L.S.U. to win by 9 points.

The West Coast features 10th-ranked Stanford and 16-rated Washington. The Huskies are still undefeated while the Indians lost their first game of the season last week to Southern Cal. We're going with the once-beaten Indians to win by 13 points.

And in the Big Eight, there'll be another center ring attraction. Iowa State, in past years known more for outstanding wrestlers than for its football players, bumps head-on into Colorado. The Cyclones are undefeated and rated 9th; the Buffaloes are 17th and have been beaten once. Earlier in the season, Colorado might have been the favorite. Now we're not so sure. So, Iowa State to remain undefeated with a big three-point victory over the Buffaloes.

First Colonial now 3rd in District with 21-13 victory over Kempsville

First Colonial slid into third place in the Eastern District by downing the Kempsville Chiefs 21-13 Saturday night. The Patriots improved their District record to 3 wins and 1 loss (3-2 overall), but they still trail undefeated Maury and Norview in the District and for the season.

First Colonial led 6-0 at the end of the first quarter. Sophomore halfback Bill Harris, by daylight and galloped 20 yards for the game's first touchdown. The score was set up by an unusual play — a quarterback to tackle pass. First Colonial pulled the tackle-eligible pass play on the unsuspecting Chiefs, and Chris Swecker drilled a perfect strike to tackle Tom Stoval. The play was good for 50 yards and set up the Harris touchdown romp on the next play.

Kempsville bounced back in the second quarter to take the lead. The play was good for 50 yards and set up the Harris touchdown romp on the next play.

Kempsville bounced back in the second quarter to take the lead. Brian Catlin, Kempsville's speedy halfback, ran the ball in from seven yards out for six points to tie the Patriots. A Bob Tata kick put the Chiefs in front

7-6. The see-saw battle found the Patriots in front at the end of three periods of play. Speedy Tyrone Little took a handoff from Swecker and sped into the end zone from four yards out. Swecker then passed to split end Jim Gary for a two-point conversion, and First Colonial bounced back in front, 14-7.

Catlin pulled the Chiefs within one point of the Patriots when he capped a Kempsville drive with a four yard run for a touchdown. The Chiefs rejected the idea of a tie and went for two points and the lead, since the game was now in the fourth quarter. The run failed, and the Patriots enjoyed a slim 14-13 lead.

A minute and a half before the final gun, First Colonial's senior halfback Dave Bumgardner streaked downfield 60 yards for a touchdown. Steve Selby followed the exciting Bumgardner score with a conversion kick, and the Patriots increased their lead to 21-13.

Lake Taylor Squeezes By Cox 14-7

All the scoring in Metro Park was over in one period Monday night. 21 points were put on the scoreboard in the second quarter, with neither team able to score during the game's other 36 minutes.

Unfortunately for the Cox Falcons, 14 of the 21 points belonged to Lake Taylor, and Lake Taylor evened its record at 2 and 2 with the 14-7 victory. Cox now has a 3-2 overall and a 2-2 Eastern District record.

The powerful Robinson carried the ball a dozen times and gained 75 yards.

Lake Taylor's offense totaled 215 yards. Tommy Graves had one pass in seven attempts for 7 yards, and the Titan ball carriers rushed for 207 yards. Lake Taylor outstridestowned the Falcons 13-8.

Except for a couple of breaks, the game could just as easily have been won by Cox. Lake Taylor scored first when a Falcon punt was returned by Gary Lucas 55 yards. John Hobbs booted the extra point, and powerful Lake Taylor jumped in front 7-0.

Cox fumbled the next time they had the ball. A Titan defenseman, Ken Watson, recovered the ball on Cox's 15, and a couple of plays later Leon Watson shot around the left end of his line for the touchdown. Another Hobbs boot shot the Titans in front 14-0.

After receiving the next kickoff, Cox put together a good drive and marched 75 yards for their first score in the game. Junior fullback Randy Robinson took the ball the final five yards for the score. Brooks Williams' kick split the uprights for the extra point, and the Falcons had slimmed the Lake Taylor lead to 14-7.

The second half was a see-saw battle that saw both teams march up and down the field, but neither team could score. Penalties, fumbles, or good defensive plays stopped every drive, and the game ended with the halftime score, Lake Taylor 14, Cox 7.

Cox quarterback Billy Ittner completed two of ten passes for 30 yards. Cox rushers, led by Randy Robinson, ground out 160 tough yards to give the Falcons 190 yards offensively for the game. At 6'3" and 220 pounds,

OUTDOORS

By TOM SWAIN

With the weather we've had this past weekend, the fishing has been very poor on the piers and offshore. Almost no salt water action was reported, except for some heavily surf fishermen and a few "Bird Dogs" (those always looking in the inlets and creeks).

Citation spot and big, grey trout are still being caught in Rudee Inlet, as well as in Broad and Linkhorn Bays. Walter Wells and Joe Campellina caught citation spot (14 ounces and larger) this week in Rudee Inlet.

Captain Fred Feller, who sails his Gannet out of Rudee Pier at the Beach was able to catch two nice puppy drum in the 31-pound class during the stormy weekend. There are puppy drum to be had in the surf for the persistent angler, and they can be caught all along our City's coast using cut bait. The best bait to use is cut spot and fresh minnow when available. In calmer surf, sand fleas, found under the sand in the wash, are also good to use as bait for surf casting.

With the weather turning cold and with the water temperature dropping, I am sure we can look forward to some splendid blue fish and striped bass runs in the coming weeks. The surf is full of the rock's favorite food—menhaden and silver-side minnows.

Grey trout and speckled trout are still being taken in the surf. I have experienced the best success this time of the year using cut bait for trout in the surf. In fact, some big greys have been reported caught by puppy drum fishermen this week. Speaking of drum, the adult variety of the puppy drum, the celebrated channel bass, will definitely be moving down to greet our stalwart pier fishermen in the coming weeks.

Reports from the Eastern Shore barrier islands are that channel bass are moving down rapidly. The best bait for big drum is a diagonally cut spot. The head portion proves to take more fish than the tail section. This is because the fish are lured to the bait by the oil leaking from the head sac. So be sure to save some of those tasty little spot for bait to go after those big drum.

The diagram shows the best way to cut spot for channel bass bait. Make sure the hook pops through the skull between the eyes when hooking the bait.

For the lake fishermen, the change to cool weather and the rain means that bass will be biting on shiners and shad. If you are lucky enough to get shad baits, which are thought to be the supreme bass bait by most old timers, you should be in for some real fun this coming week.

The best way to keep shad and shiner bait fresh and lively is to trail a floating, perforated minnow bucket behind the boat as you skulk. Shad shed their scales so fast that they drown themselves if contained for even an hour in a regular bait bucket.

My son, reports that he and his neighbors are catching small and medium sized bass that run up to four pounds. He is waiting patiently for cold weather to bring the old mossbacks out of hiding.

See you next week. If the Lord's willing and the creek (Rudee Inlet) doesn't rise.

Brian Catlin still was not finished. The determined Chief halfback had already scored both of his team's touchdowns, putting 12 of Kempsville's 13

Kempsville quarterback Frank Welch hands off to Bill Dragas.

Punt, Pass and Kick winners awarded trophies

Virginia Beach's Punt, Pass, and Kick winners were honored last week at a Bonanza steak banquet. Local competition was sponsored by the Knights of Columbus and Beach Ford. Nationally, the competition is sponsored by Ford Motor Company and the National Football League.

Each of the following winners were awarded trophies: Jeffery Slater, 8 years old; Eugene Halstead, 9; Russ Fieger, 10; Kenneth Sharp, 11; Alan McPherson, 12; and Skip Cahill, 13. Each of these winners advance to the regional competition in Newport News.

Kellam's Isom Young (71) and an unidentified teammate prepare to bring down Marlin runner Howard Jones.

Bayside defenders "stack up" the Kellam runner.

Bayside Downs Kellam 28-12 For First Win Of The Season

The game was a lot closer than the score. A Bayside rushing attack met a Kellam passing attack Monday night, and Bayside emerged with its first win of the 1972 football season, 28-12. A Bayside-Granby tie earlier in the season and three losses gives the Marlins a 1-3-1 record. After a stunning opening victory over Oscar Smith, Kellam has dropped three straight and now has a 1-3-0 mark.

Three Kellam quarterbacks completed 10 of 15 passes for 185 yards. Gene Bunn started and finished, but Chuck Edwards and Bobby Carter made appearances. Bunn left the game with a shoulder separation incurred during a defensive play late in the third quarter. But he shook off the injury after a doctor yanked it back into place and returned to the game late in the fourth period.

Bunn passed to end Steve Scarcelli for a touchdown in the second quarter. The pass-running play covered 30 yards. The conversion run failed.

Scarcelli has established himself as the leading Kellam pass receiver. Near the half-time mark, Scarcelli made a beautiful, leaping catch as he was falling out of bounds. Both sophomores, Gene Bunn and Steve Scarcelli, will be a fearsome duo on the gridiron in their junior and senior years.

Kellam's final score came with just ten seconds left in the game. Kim Brown returned a Bayside kickoff 25 yards to set up a 60-yard touchdown pass play from signal-caller Bobby Carter to fullback Frank Ludvik. Toss pass for the two-point conversion fell short, and Kellam's scoring ended at 12 points at the night.

Bayside jumped into a quick 14-0 lead by the end of the first quarter. Junior quarterback Joe Osborne scored the first of his game's three touchdowns by running the ball into the end zone from 37 yards out. Osborne called a pass play but saw all of his downfield receivers covered by Kellam defenders. Spotting a hole, Osborne scampered 37 yards to score. Don Harold booted the extra point.

A few plays later, Don Harold blocked a Kellam punt on Bayside's own eight-yard line. Two plays later, Howard Jones took the ball into scoring territory from two yards out. Another Don Harold conversion kick gave Bayside a 14-0 lead at the end of the first quarter and a 14-0 lead at the half.

After a scoreless third period, Bayside struck for 14 more points in the fourth quarter. Both were scored by Osborne on runs of one and five yards. The first score was set up by a 60-yard march that was highlighted by two long runs by Osborne and one by Roscoe Coles. Osborne's quarterback sneak from the one completed the drive.

The second score was set up by a long pass play from Osborne to end Steve Graeff that covered nearly 40 yards. Osborne then circled his left end for the score. Don Harold booted the extra points after both scores, and the game ended with the Marlins ahead for the first time this season by a 28-12 score.

Both teams had a number of stars on the defense. Don Harold, Danny Barnett, Keith Drake, Mike Lukasiewicz, Bill Drennan, Tom Willie, Leandis Hodges, Cecil Duke, Roscoe Coles and Jeff Johnson all made a number of outstanding plays. Jeff Johnson broke up a Kellam bomb that looked like a sure score had not Johnson batted the pass away at the last minute. Bill Drennan broke up a pass over the middle that would have been good for long yardage and even possibly a Kellam score.

Bayside ball-carriers picked up 175 yards rushing. The offensive line, many of whom also played defense, opened some good holes to give the Bayside backs daylight. Osborne completed four of six passes for 45 yards. Bayside ended the game with the Marlins ahead for the first time this season by a 28-12 score.

Students Start And End School Days

Seventeen high school graduates from Virginia Beach have entered Longwood College this fall. They are among 610 freshmen and transfer students who constitute 27 per cent of a student body of some 2232.

Beach freshmen at Longwood are Claudia Foreman, Marian Coles, and Ann Tarkenton from Bayside High School; Rita Cregar, Jeannette Scarborough, Kathleen Harrison, Susan Jernigan, and Mary Meagher from First Colonial High School; Cathleen Morris and Patricia Merrell from Cox High School; Sarah White, Teresa Sawyer, Mary Nelson, Zona Kincer, and Beverly Bibb from Ke'm High School; and Gay Harrington and Teresa Zau from Kempsville High School.

Longwood, established in 1838, has a strong teacher-training program coupled with a varied liberal arts program. Graduate degrees are offered in English, history, and education. Longwood held its fourth annual student-faculty-staff retreat on September 8, at Longwood House, home of the college president, Dr. Henry I. Willett, Jr.

Participating in this one-day workshop are representatives from all areas of student activity, the college faculty, administrative staff, and Board of Visitors. Members of the General Assembly have also been invited.

Attending from Virginia Beach were Darcy Ann Morrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Morrison; Rebecca Jo Grimes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Grimes; Anne Lynne Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne P. Pierce; Diane Lorraine Derrick, daughter of Captain and Mrs. Arthur C. Derrick; and Joyce Marie Saunders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren R. Saunders.

The purpose of the retreat is to provide a common workshop where students talk with college and go about representatives of college goals and other campus life.

Bike Trails In Park Possible

Representatives from the City Recreation Commission met with Ben Bolen, Commissioner of Virginia Beach, concerning the possibility of Virginia Beach bicycle trails running through Seashore State Park.

Bolen had several questions about the proposed plans and appeared to be very interested in the possibilities. He has information back to his Richmond office and a decision will be made at a later date.

Choppy water made Broad Bay a real challenge for the Sunfish Sailing Regatta last Sunday.

Wind gusts capsized many sailing regatta skippers

Fifteen registered sunfish owners competed in the First Annual Columbus Day Regatta last weekend on Broad Bay. The event was sponsored by the Virginia Beach Sunfish Racing Fleet.

The weather was windy with intermittent rain, but two races were held Saturday morning. Capsizing was the order of the day, as wind gusts of 35 to 40 knots prevailed. Saturday afternoon's races were cancelled altogether.

Sunday dawned bright, clear, and cool, and fresh winds swept in from the northwest. Sunday morning races were held in sheltered Linkhorn Bay, with the afternoon action moving back to Broad Bay after the winds subsided to 15 or 20 knots.

Six races were held Sunday, and there was one throw-out. Visiting skipper Dr. Don Detorme of Falls Church won first place with 53 1/2 points. Dick Rhame, also from Falls Church, took second with 52 1/2 points.

Tom Riese, who is secretary-treasurer of the Virginia Beach Sunfish Racing Fleet, finished in third place with 46 1/2 points. Fourth, fifth, and sixth places went to Carlton Lavender (41 1/2), Brain Nance (38), and Jack Henneberg (36), all of Virginia Beach.

"This regatta terminated a very successful season for Virginia Beach's sunfish sailors," skipper Andy Rankin commented after the regatta.

Many fumbles and a tough Maury team downs Princess Anne 48-0

You cannot score if you do not have the football! Princess Anne proved that Saturday night at Foreman Field when they met the powerful Maury Commodores. Maury controlled the football the entire game and made the Cavaliers their 26th straight victim in a convincing 48-0 manner.

Princess Anne was plagued throughout the game by George Woodhouse, Mike Morgan, a sputtering offense, a leaky defense, and fumbly Maury. Woodhouse, Maury's All-State halfback, carried the ball 26 times for 180 yards, scored three touchdowns and passed for two more, and ran in one conversion attempt. The Cavalier defense was ineffective against the 170-pound speedster.

Mike Morgan, Maury's signal-caller, teamed with Woodhouse and picked Princess Anne's pass defense apart. Together, they completed 10 of 17 passes for 200 yards. Adding the 200 yards gained rushing, Maury turned in an impressive 430 yards of offense for the night.

Princess Anne could not keep the football long enough to get a serious scoring attack going. First, they only stopped Commodores on downs five times in the entire game. Secondly, whenever they got their hands on the football, the Cavaliers fumbled it away.

Mike Casey returned a Maury kickoff 40 yards for good field position on the Maury 38. Two plays later, Princess Anne fumbled the ball away.

Princess Anne's Danny Allen tackled the Maury quarterback for a ten-yard loss on fourth and eleven. The Cavaliers fumbled on their first play from scrimmage, and Maury recovered on the Cavalier 19-yard line. Maury scored one play later.

Maury kicked off to Princess Anne following the touchdown. On their second play, the Cavaliers fumbled again. Maury recovered on Princess Anne's 45 yard line. Fortunately, Tom Brown intercepted a Maury pass on the Cavalier 20-yard stripe to end the Maury drive. As the first half ended, Maury led 24-0.

Maury made it 30-0 with 5:20 left in the third quarter. Thanks to a fine defensive effort by Cavaliers David Jones and Allen Evans, who harassed the

NOW!...FROM INTERTHERM! BY ELECTRICITY! HOT WATER HEAT—WITHOUT COSTLY PLUMBING!

INTERTHERM's Revolutionary System of Individual Hot Water Electric Baseboard Heaters Takes the Place of Central Heating Systems of All Types—Costs Much Less to Install and Maintain

INTERTHERM
HOT WATER ELECTRIC BASEBOARD HEATING

MORE THAN 600,000
INSTALLATIONS ALREADY

Heater shown above is a unit of a permanently-installed Whole-House INTERTHERM System.

... and—Thanks to the Superiority of Hot Water Heat—Provides the Most Comfortable, Healthful, Cleanest and Safest Heating Ever Devised for Whole Homes and Single, Hard-to-Heat Rooms!

Also for Apartments, Apartment Buildings, Condominiums, Hotels, Motels, Hospitals, Nursing Homes, Schools, Churches and Buildings of All Types that Need Heat.

Here's the Secret! Each Baseboard Heater in the INTERTHERM System Operates By a Simple, Revolutionary, Scientific Principle... Electrically-Heated, Permanently-Sealed-in Water and Anti-Freeze, Thermostat Controlled

Are you planning to build a new home? Or, remodel your present dwelling? One way or the other—you'll want the finest heating system at the lowest-possible, all-around cost. So don't be influenced by the initial, low cost of a conventional, central heating system which can become very expensive over the years in repairs, and high fuel bills due to wasted heat. Not when your family can enjoy the luxurious winter-time comfort of INTERTHERM HOT WATER HEAT WITHOUT PLUMBING.

What's So Wonderful About Hot Water Heat? Ask any experienced heating engineer. He'll tell you hot water heat is superior. It's soft, gentle heat. And—according to a world-recognized university authority—provided the most-uniform, floor-to-ceiling warmth of any heat he tested.

What's more, there is no motor, blower or other moving parts to get out of order and cause expensive repair bills.

● Surprisingly Economical to Use. As the INTERTHERM System has no central furnace, pipes, ducts or flues—no heat escapes out of a chimney or during transmission to rooms, as with central heating systems which can waste as much as 40% to 50% of the heat that way. And as the INTERTHERM holds the warmth down where it is needed—there's no heat wasted at ceilings, as with conventional oil, gas, coal and even electric resistance central heating systems.

● Safe, Clean, Healthful Heat. An Electric Limit Control built into each INTERTHERM Heater maintains the water solution at safe temperatures at all times. So the heater can't overheat and cause a fire. You can stuff flimsiest gauze into the heater without scorching. Furthermore, it can't burn a child or pet that may come in contact. Can't carbonize lint and dust particles in the air that smudge walls, drapes, furniture and irritate nose and throat membranes—or burn plastic particles into toxic vapors. INTERTHERM heating is recommended by many allergists.

But for Many Years Hot Water Heat Was a Luxury Only Very Rich Home-owners Could Afford. Because it required the expensive installation and maintenance of a central hot water heating system. As a result—most families have had to put up with the cold floors, drafts, smudged furnishings and wasted, up-the-chimney heat of conventional central heating systems.

Now, Fortunately, Your Family Can Enjoy the Many Advantages of Hot Water Heat—at Much Lower All-Around Cost Than Any Type of (Properly-installed) Conventional Natural Gas, Propane Gas, Oil, Coal or Electric Central Heating System. This is made possible by a simple, revolutionary, patented hot water electric heating invention—the INTERTHERM HOT WATER ELECTRIC BASEBOARD HEATER. How the INTERTHERM can provide hot water heat without plumbing is explained under the diagram at the right which shows the inside of the heater.

Here's How the INTERTHERM Provides Hot Water Heat Without Plumbing!

Each INTERTHERM Baseboard Heater is a Complete Hot Water Circulating System in Itself—as shown by the diagram above. The inner works consists of a copper tube inside of which an electric heating element and a water and anti-freeze solution—which never needs replenishing—are permanently, hermetically sealed. The electric heating element heats the water and anti-freeze solution—which, in turn, throws out heat that warms the room. Operation is controlled by thermostat. When the room reaches the desired warmth—the thermostat turns off the electricity—but the heated water and anti-freeze solution continues to heat the room. An important electricity-saving feature!

You Get These Advantages:

- The INTERTHERM Produces Soft, Gentle, Uniform, Floor-to-Ceiling Warmth at All Times—Regardless of Outside Temperatures. Floors are always warm. According to tests made in severe, cold weather—the INTERTHERM has kept warmth at the floor within 3 degrees of warmth at the ceiling. Furthermore, there are no chilling drafts. No alternating too-hot, too-cold periods. And—as the temperature in INTERTHERM Heaters changes according to outside weather temperatures—they maintain end give off just the right amount of heat constantly for utmost comfort. And these heaters are absolutely silent.
- Big Saving on Installation and Maintenance Cost. Any competent electrician can install a permanent INTERTHERM System in a home in one or two days—usually at a substantially-lower cost than any type of (properly-installed) central heating system.

Fund Drive

"Virginia Beach Day" will be observed today by the United Communities Fund volunteer reporting session held at the Lake Wright Motel. Virginia Beach firms individuals will be highlighted and Mayor Robert B. Cromwell and City Manager Roger M. Scott will attend. A plea was put out recently for Communities Fund volunteers to complete one-half of their calls by noon today for the once-a-year combined fund raising drive for 48 health, rehabilitation and character building agencies in Chesapeake, Norfolk and Virginia Beach. The "Victory Dinner" for the United Communities Fund drive is scheduled at the Lake Wright Motel on October 26.

Tax System Raises Fear

Concern over the future of golf courses and parks in the City was expressed Monday in a discussion of reassessment of real estate. The concern developed as J. Clyde Merritt, city real estate assessor, during the informal Council session, requested permission to proceed with assessments based on the recently adopted land use taxation system. Vice-Mayor F. Reid Ervin questioned if "...golf course would be able to afford continued operation" under the new taxation system, and if new space rulings could force parks out of business. Councilman J. Curtis Payne said, "If we tax golf courses out of business it will hurt the tourist business." Merritt attempted to allay their fears by saying that while the new system would result in increased taxes for some land owners, he didn't feel these increases would be that great.

Mind Your Money By Peter Weaver

Until last week, I thought milk was milk and cream was cream. Not so. "Manufactured" milk products are taking over. Ever since Louis Pasteur heated milk to kill the bugs and make it safe to drink, we've readily accepted "pasteurization" as a necessary process. Recently other processes have crept into liquid dairy products to supposedly give better "mouth feel" and a longer storage life. It's nice to be able to store milk and cream longer and not have them go sour. It's also nice that something like skim milk has a pleasant "mouth feel" or taste. But to get this longer shelf life and better texture, milk manufacturers are tampering with nutritional values and other qualities we used to take for granted. Because more and more milk products are being "manufactured" with industrial processes and additives, the Food and Drug Administration has issued a set of national standards aimed at letting the consumer know—by much clearer labeling—just what's going on. Let's look at skim milk. Unbeknown to most of us skim milk drinkers, subtle changes have been taking place in this weight-watcher's staple. Regular milk is made up of 87 per cent water, 9.5 per cent nonfat solids and 3.5 per cent fat solids. When they "skim" milk they take out almost all of the fat solids and a tiny portion of the nonfat solids. What's left is around 8.5 per cent nonfat milk solids in a bluish, watery concoction. Consumers didn't much like this watery milk so the manufacturers added more solids, usually in the form of powdered nonfat milk, to build up the "mouth feel" and taste. So far, so good. But of late, some manufacturers have been tampering with the solids buildup by adding part whey solids (lactose), which is a form of sugar or carbohydrate, instead of just plain powdered nonfat milk. In so doing, they use less natural milk protein in the process. In place of protein, you're getting lactose which is nutritionally inferior and a known allergen. If a child drinks one quart of skim milk a day, this substitution of around 1 per cent lactose in place of regular nonfat milk solids deprives the child of around one quart of milk a month as far as protein is concerned. Some states, such as Maryland, don't permit the addition of lactose, others do. In the case of creams, manufacturers have been "sterilizing" some cream with a quick blast of intense heat to give it a longer shelf life. In so doing, they've taken the cream out of pasteurized milk regulations and have changed its taste and texture. When you see the new kind of cream in supermarket coolers, it looks the same as regular cream except for that tiny word "sterilized." The word sounds like "pasteurized" and we usually shrug and don't pay much attention to it. Cream is just the beginning. The industry eventually wants to "sterilize" regular milk and this disturbs some regulators because we're much more dependent on milk for nutrition than we are cream. This is why FDA wants to set strict federal regulations (higher than set by the states) on what you can and cannot add to milk products and what must be on the label. The new regulations, for example, would ban or severely limit the adding of lactose to skim milk and would require eventual nutritional values, shelf-life deadlines and otherwise much clearer information on labels. The FDA is urgently seeking consumers' comments on these proposed regulations. If you want to help balance out comments already coming in from dairy industry spokesman, please send letters to: Hearing Examiner; Department of Health, Education and Welfare—Room 6-88; 5600 Fishers Lane; Rockville, Md. 20852.

WHEN A POWER STATION DOESN'T EARN ITS KEEP, WHO'S GOING TO PAY FOR IT?

You are. All because of a regrettable reality called the unbalanced demand for power.

It's like this. In the summertime, when air conditioners are humming, people are using Vepco for all they're worth. Using us so much that we have to build and man and operate new generating stations—over and above those built to take care of normal wintertime growth—just to keep pace with your summertime demand.

Then comes winter. And your demand for power drops. And suddenly about 17% of our generating equipment isn't earning its keep. Isn't making electricity.

But we still have to maintain that equipment. And the only place we can get the money to do so is from our customers.

Now we don't like that any more than you do. So we're doing all we can to solve the problem.

And the solution is obvious.

Sell more power in the wintertime to help balance the summer demand. Put that equipment to work all year-round, so it can pay for itself.

That's why we promote electric home heating.

And that's why, whenever someone selects clean, flameless, electric heat, he makes life more comfortable for everybody. Not just his lucky family.

Because by operating our equipment at a higher level, he's helping us keep our rates down.

And that's something every one of us wants.

WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS IS A BETTER BALANCE OF POWER.

The Alabama also took part in the bombardments of Nauru, Roi-Namur, Ponape, and Saipan.

Adm. Kirtland, raised on a Texas farm, graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1916 and served on the battleship Wyoming in World War I.

Between 1918 and 1941, his assignments included service as chief engineer of a cruiser and commander of a destroyer and graduate studies at Columbia University and the Naval War College.

VIRGINIA BEACH. Where The Living Is Lovely

Cape Henry. The site that marks the beginning of American history. Where, on April 26, 1607, some 106 sea-wary adventurers landed in 3 small ships on their way to found the first permanent English settlement in the New World. It is a location rich in legend and history. A place where the past and present become one. And an area surrounded with spectacular views of dunes and seacoast. This is the setting where America's first lighthouse was erected in 1781.

Built to replace the inland fire lighted by the colonists, the Old Cape Henry Lighthouse provided light and watched over the 14-mile Chesapeake Bay entrance for almost a century. It cast its last nightly warning in 1881, and stood neglected for over 50 years.

In 1932, the old tower was ceded to the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities. By 1934, the lighthouse was restored and made safe for visitors.

Finally, in 1964, the Old Cape Henry Lighthouse became recognized as a Registered National Historic Landmark. Today it stands in its original setting, inviting you to come climb the storied winding stairwell and travel back in time. Back to the days when pirates hovered about its shores, and lured passing ships onto the rocks with false beacon fires. Back as far as your imagination can take you. And with such an inspirational setting, imagining is easy.

The Old Cape Henry Lighthouse is part of a historical triangle. Directly across from the old tower is a modern, functional lighthouse. And nearby is the Cape Henry Memorial—marking the approximate location of the Jamestown settlers' first landing.

In 1935, the Daughters of the American Colonists erected a memorial cross in honor of their distinguished forefathers. Each year on the Sunday nearest April 26, the Order of Cape Henry, 1607, sponsors religious and patriotic services at the Cape Henry Memorial.

The grounds of the Old Cape Henry Lighthouse and the Memorial Cross are open year 'round, admission free. For those who would climb to the top of the Old Lighthouse, it is open, free, Memorial Day through Labor Day.

Virginia Realtors Attend Convention

The 52nd annual Virginia Association of Realtors Convention will open today at the Holiday Inn Scope in Norfolk. The event is expected to be attended by approximately 800 members of the state association.

John W. Warner, Secretary of the Navy, will be principal speaker at the opening general session Thursday at 1 p.m. He will be introduced by 2nd District Congressman G. William Whitehurst.

The two and one half day session includes a series of programs designed to edify attendees on a variety of high-level real estate subjects. In addition to a number of Virginia specialists, there will be speakers from Florida, North Carolina, Pennsylvania and Georgia slated to address educational seminars on such subjects as tax considerations, operations and management techniques and several categories of self-motivation themes.

The awards luncheon on Friday will recognize those Realtors and local boards throughout the state who have shown excellence in various fields of real estate endeavors.

Citations will be presented for excellence in the fields of exemplifying the Realtor Code of Ethics, educational program, sales achievement and local board operations. Principal speaker for the event will be Dr. Tom Haggal, noted lecturer from High Point, N.C.

The climax of the convention will be the naming of the Virginia Association of Realtors' top honor, the Woman of-the-Year Award. The recipient will be honored at a banquet Friday night.

The Virginia Association of Realtors is composed of 8,000 members engaged in the practice of real estate throughout the state. It is a member-organization of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The convention closes Saturday after the election of officers for the up-coming new terms.

TWO YOUNG DANCERS from the Tidewater Dance Guild, Linda Stone and Martha McTeer. Invite youngsters and the young at heart to "Come and See the Peppermint Tree," a children's concert Oct. 14 at Chrysler Museum Theatre.

Reelin' And Rockin' With Chuck Berry And Friends

The ripest rock and roll show at Scope in a long time happened last Friday night. For an audience of 3,000 people, I'd never seen as much personal participation.

I was caught right up in the concert when I saw the Dovello for the first time in my life. They are three young men with long hair (for them) in white, suede-fringed outfits. They sang "Bristol Stomp" and "Land of a Thousand Dances"

Then Chubby Checker was on stage, slimmer down from the way I remember him, singing a new song that sounded like it was written by Fleetwood Mac.

The crowd had just about peaked when he started "Come On, Let's Twist Again!" and the energy level climbed to the atomic point. If this is his "comeback," then I'm ready for it.

Sorry, but while Bo Diddley was on I was in Chuck Berry's dressing room talking to him about his music. Berry won't discuss anything that doesn't pertain to it.

For a wrap-up, I can say that Berry's feelings about music are: "Who's to say what's good or bad? It all depends on the vibes from the audience...and there is no black music and no white music. It just kinda brings us all together."

When Berry came onto the stage, the crowd went into a frenzy.

He sang his current hit, "Ding-a-Ling," and the only song that could follow was "Johnny B. Goode"...

Since that was the last song, Berry strutted, trucked, pranced and jumped.

Berry had us in his hands and we were at his mercy. He twisted us, upped us, downed us and turned our heads around. Then he was gone. Just like that. Thank you, Chuck Berry. — Patti Cole.

The Young Can See The Peppermint Tree

"Come and See the Peppermint Tree" is the theme of the children's concert to be presented by the Tidewater Dance Guild on Oct. 14 at 10:30 a.m. at the Chrysler Museum.

The program, designed especially for the young audience, will take the dancers and the audience in search of the "Peppermint Tree."

If you can see and believe in the "Peppermint Tree," then you can "slide down the rainbow, climb up to the stars" and ordinary things become magic.

In the process of looking for the "Peppermint Tree," the audience will meet such characters as a bumble bee, a crow and a worm carrying on a conversation in the back yard, plus an elf who performs tricks.

On the way inside the house, the dancers go through a counting and accent game to the drum accompaniment of Brooks Gorrie.

More surprises follow, so for your age — come and "Follow me and slide down a snowflake, climb up a rainbow, run around the stars in the sky."

For ticket information call 441-2728 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and on Sunday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Virginia Beach Little Theatre

A Dream Continues

"Ladies in Retirement": The 1949-50 season

By DONNA HENDRICK
Twenty-five years ago, some people in Virginia Beach had a dream and an idea. The dream was to establish the Beach's own Little Theatre. The idea was to recruit all sorts of theatrical talent to make the dream come true.

Twenty-five years ago the Little Theatre got off to a falling start in a makeshift theatre.

Today the Virginia Beach Little Theatre is still going strong, in a brand-new permanent home on 25th Street.

The theatre's first production, in May, 1948, was a comedy, "My Sister Eileen." It starred Joseph La Giglia, Jane La Giglia, Shirley Dunn and E. Morris Abernathy and was directed by Carol Simpson.

Its latest production is "Little Mary Sunshine," a musical comedy starring Carolyn Cox, Bruce Leopold, Bob Beard, Joan Evans, Gary Wills and Marguerite Miller, directed by Phil Uhler.

"Little Mary Sunshine" opened last week and continues every Thursday, Friday and Saturday through Oct. 21.

During the theatre's first organizational meetings, Liz Sills and Anne Penington were named to the board of directors.

As the Little Theatre begins its 25th season, the two co-founders are still in there organizing.

Mrs. Sills will direct the theatre's next production, "A Streetcar Named Desire."

Mrs. Penington is production vice president for the current play, "Little Mary Sunshine."

The very first play, "My Sister Eileen," was performed at W. T. Cooke School Auditorium. Since then, the theatre has moved around to many homes, none of them permanent until the opening of the present playhouse on 24th Street.

The theatre used as home base, among other places, the Community House, the Roland Theatre, Virginia Beach High School and the Courtyard Playhouse.

"In those days, we really had no home," Mrs. Sills said. "I used to run around to restaurants and poke my head in the door and say, 'Doesn't anyone here want to be in a play?'"

Anne Penington is as modest as she is hard working. She would take no credit for all her years' work with the theatre, and instead had nothing but praise for two other co-workers: Neal Thomas and Bill Britton.

"Neal Thomas and Bill Britton have done so much for the Little Theatre," Mrs. Penington said.

"They took the old Roland Theatre and changed it into the first place we could really call our own, the Courtyard Playhouse.

"Neal and Bill were the ones who said it could be a theatre. They built it. They ripped out all the seats and Bill designed it and they built it inch by inch. They did all the actual physical work.

"It was our first home although we were renting it. And we owed it all to them," Mrs. Penington continued.

"Then they were responsible for our new theatre, too," she said. "Things had come down to a certain point. We had pretty well gotten to the end of our money. To save money, plans had to be simplified and changed so we could afford to have the work done.

"Neal designed new plans and he did the interior of that theatre. They both just slaved. They did the color schemes and the whole thing on an extremely limited budget.

"In the meantime, while he was doing this, Bill was also directing a show, so he was building the theatre with one hand and directing with the other," Mrs. Penington continued.

"Neal and Bill built both theatres. It was a real labor of love. Now this new theatre is ours...and the bank's."

"John Loves Mary": The 1950-51 season

Through 25 Seasons

During the theatre's first full season, 1948-49, it presented "George Washington Slept Here," "Ladies in Retirement," "Claudia" and "Junior Miss." The theatre's first season was an ambitious and productive one.

Besides presenting the season's plays, the theatre also conducted a workshop giving instruction in stage design, makeup, casting and selection of plays, lighting and other phases of stage work.

It sponsored a radio script contest and presented radio programs. It organized a children's Theatre Committee to produce shows.

In 1948, the players presented "He Ain't Done Right By Nell" at the Princess Anne County Fair. The performance won a blue ribbon.

"I was the director and Anne Penington was technical director," Mrs. Sils said, "and we're still around."

"Anne and I are the only two founders who are still active in the Little Theatre," she said. The theatre started its second season off with "Jenny Kissed Me," followed by "You Can't Take It With You," "Kind Lady" and "Candlelight."

In more recent years, the theatre has produced "Death of a Salesman," "Invitation to a March," "Arms and the Man," "All My Sons," "Hay Fever," "Twelfth Night," "Riverwind," "The Late Christopher Bean," "Five Finger Exercise," "Night Must Fall" and "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," among others.

Now the Virginia Beach Little Theatre members are looking forward to the beginning of their 25th season. Mrs. Penington seemed to echo the thoughts of her fellow members when she said:

"We've had great shows for 25 years and we hope to have 25 more. We have a great theatre. We have great talent and we have a real good thing going. I hope it will continue as it has in the past."

Historic Musical Friendship Honored

The Virginia Beach Friends of Music will honor the historic musical friendship between Robert Schumann and Johannes Brahms in their new season of concerts, beginning Oct. 29.

Young Japanese pianist Minoru Nojima, a prize winner in the Van Cliburn International Competition in 1968, will perform during the first concert.

Contralto Louise Parker will be featured in the second concert of the season, Nov. 19. Ms. Parker, a former Hampton Institute student, appeared most recently in Scott Joplin's "Treemonisha," at Wolf Trap Farm.

Violinist Hamao Fujiwara will perform on Jan. 21. Fujiwara is currently studying with Joseph Fuchs at the Julliard School of Music and is touring the country this concert season.

Pianist Robert de Gaetano will perform at the last concert of the season, March 18. De Gaetano was "discovered" by pianist Sviatoslav Richter and pianist David Oistrach and signed by music impresario Sol Hurok. Last year, de Gaetano made his first concert tour, appearing with the Atlanta and San Antonio Symphonies.

All concerts will be held at Plaza Junior High School (3000 S. Lynnhaven Road), at 3 p.m.

The Virginia Beach Friends of Music is currently holding its annual membership drive. Season tickets for the four-concert series are $12 for adults and $8 for students. Tickets may be purchased by writing the Friends of Music, P.O. Box 906, Virginia Beach, Va. 23451.

Theatre Center Offers Oscar Wilde Comedy

The Oscar Wilde comedy treat, "The Importance of Being Earnest" is the current offering of the Norfolk Theatre Center on Freemason Street in Norfolk.

Wilde's Victorian masterpiece is a favorite among American thespians and has received many highly acclaimed productions, being a favorite of audiences as well. The story concerns the matter of purposely confused identities on the part of two gentlemen suitors, both of whose lady loves have their hearts set on marrying a man whose name is Earnest. The gentlemen set out to get rechristened but are discovered when the young lady gets together.

Further complications ensue when the guardians of the girls refuse to give their consent to the engagements.

The roles of the young suitors are portrayed by Tom Morgan as Jack Worthing and by Peter Dixon as Algernon Moncrief. Morgan has just completed a run as Sir Peter Teazle in "School for Scandal" at the Center, and Dixon will be remembered for the lead role in "Hedrian VII," presented last year at the Center and scheduled to return to the repertoire this season.

Billie Fedyxyn, last seen in "Under Milk Wood," returns to the stage as Cecily Cardew, the young ward of Jack Worthing, and Janice Faas, who last appeared opposite Morgan as Lady Teazle in "Scandal," portrays the role of Gwendolen Fairfax.

Gwendolen's guardian is Lady Bracknell, played by Bobbi Hite, and Peggy Mustin appears as Cecily's governess, Miss Prism. Hugh Bergeron is Dr. Chasuble, the local rector who prepares to christen the young gentlemen, while Frank Klages, new to the Center's stage this season, will be seen as both Lane, the city servant, and Merriman, the country servant.

The piece will be presented Thursdays through Saturdays, through Oct. 21. Curtain times 8 p.m.

Special rates are available to students and enlisted military personnel on Thursdays, and on a stand-by basis on Fridays and Saturdays.

The stand-by policy does not, however, apply to those students and enlisted military who hold season memberships. The memberships are still available at the Center on the following levels: Regular, 10 admissions for $30; student and enlisted military, 10 admissions for $20 with proper identification. The membership ticket may be used in any combination, i.e., up to all 10 for one performance, or for individual admissions to ten different productions.

Reservations may be made in advance by telephoning the Theatre Center at 627-1234.

Parties Benefit Young Audiences

"Cocktails and Concerts," fund-raising parties for the Norfolk chapter of Young Audiences, Inc., will be held simultaneously on Oct. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in Virginia Beach, Norfolk and Portsmouth.

The Virginia Beach party will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Cohen, 5400 Ocean Front.

The Feldman String Quartet will perform in Norfolk, the Norfolk Brass Quintet in Portsmouth and the Norfolk Chamber Consort at the Beach.

All funds derived from the parties will subsidize concerts designed to present live, professional music to school children.

Little Theatre Holds Tryouts

The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach will hold tryouts for its next show, Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire," Oct. 16 and 17 at 6 p.m. at the theatre, 24th Street and Barberton Drive.

"The Heiress": 1961

"Hay Fever": May, 1962, marks the theatre's 20th anniversary.

Trippin' With Fritz

Last December, I read about this cartoon that was being made based on Robert Crumb's famous feline character, Fritz the Cat.

Rolling Stone claimed it to be a "first" in cartoon entertainment, one that my age group could identify with simply because we had or were having the same crazy experiences that Fritz found himself having.

Crumb's full-length X-rated cartoon came to Virginia Beach last week, playing at the Princess Theatre. Everyone in the audience for the first showing was mentally prepared and Fritz didn't let us down.

I was mesmerized by the colors, seeing for the first time "trails" in the screen, that I had seen before on different occasions. With a dynamic beginning, the cartoon couldn't go fast enough. It screamed with political overtones, racism and middle-class morals.

Fritz only has one thing on his mind and that is to be free. He burns his textbooks then thinks,

"What are my parents going to say when I flunk out of school?"

He's not satisfied with just one chick; he has to have them all. When he gets bored with the whites, he trucks down to Harlem for a piece of the action.

Crumb uses different animals to represent different peoples. For example, I saw crows that looked just like blacks, I held my sides laughing at the police characters that were pigs, and one that was Jewish!

Fritz makes a mess of everything he does, but it always comes out OK. He escapes police, responsibility, education and religion.

He's into masochism, destruction, drugs and women.

Sound familiar? If you ever read Zap Comix and that's where your head is, you see Fritz the Cat. It's entertaining, but most of all it's more than likely a reminiscent journey.

Fritz will make the scene at the Princess Theatre, the Commodore in Portsmouth and the Garden in Norfolk through Oct. 17.—Patli Cole

It's Fun Under A Colorado Sky

Wednesday TV

OCT. 18, 1972

It's fun, fun, fun, fun, fun. It's the Little Theatre of Virginia Beach production of "Little Mary Sunshine."

"Little Mary" is the young and innocent owner of an inn in the Colorado Rockies who triumphs over the bad guys and finds true romance with a handsome Forest Ranger.

Rick Besoyan's musical is definitely not subtle and the Beach players, under Phil Uher's direction, milk it for all it's worth.

The bad guys are really bad, the good guys are really good, the innocent young ladies are so innocent it hurts and everyone lives happily ever after under a Colorado moon.

Everyone had fun on opening night last week — both the cast and the audience. There are many clever touches in "Little Mary," and the audience loved them all.

A few of the players and scenes worthy of special note: The amazing scene, where nine of the young ladies from Eastchester Finishing School actually swing out over the audience, is especially good.

The "Mata Hari" number, again featuring the female chorus and Margie Miller as Nancy Twinkle, strikes just the right note of vamp and camp. Jay Justice as Forest Ranger Pete is so much fun to watch. Justice has a most devilish grin, especially when he's pursuing a young lady of his fancy, and seems to be having a high old time all the while he's on stage.

Bruce Leipold plays Capt. "Big Jim" Warrington just right. He's a bit of a stuffed shirt and pompous in his position but his stalwart Forest Ranger heart always melts at a glimpse of Little Mary.

Gary Wills as Cpl. "Billy Jester, another Forest Ranger, is perfect. He plays an earnest young man off on a dangerous mission, with his cold feet evident throughout. Wills isn't bad on his singing and dancing, either, especially when he's proud of becoming an adopted "Heap Big Indian."

Joan Marie Evans as Mme. Ernestine is the most professional of the players. She has a gorgeous voice, just right to play an opera singer from the old country. Incidentally, Miss Evans is required to play her part with a pronounced accent, which she accomplishes with ease.

Bob Beard as Gen. Oscar Fairfax has a small, delicious part as a lecherous old man. His "Say 'Uncle'" number is full of outrageous comic touches and he plays it for all the laughs he can get.

Two other small but effective parts: Randy Abbey's Fleet Foot is a howl and Fran Peterson's Yellow Feather is properly savage and villainous.

As for Carolyn Cox as Mary, there's a problem and it may be just not-quite-right casting. While everyone else on stage is camping it up outrageously, Mrs. Cox seems to be taking the part a little too seriously. Her singing and dancing are more than adequate for the role but her "innocent heroins in distress" characterization is unconvincing.

One other small criticism: Some parts of the play seem amateurish, even taking into consideration the fact that the players are all amateur actors. But don't let any of these small things keep you from going to see "Little Mary Sunshine." It's still fun.

And the handsome forest rangers will still be wooing and winning their innocent young maidens under a Colorado sky this weekend and next (Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays) at the Virginia Beach Little Theatre on 24th Street. — Donna Hendrick

Council Action Arbitrary

City Council's denial Monday of a use permit for a football parlor in the Bayshore Borough has apparently prompted legal action against the city.

Legalities entered the picture when the application of Nicholas S. Michael to operate a football parlor at the intersection of Pleasure House and Thoroughgood Roads was denied while two other applications were deferred.

Michael's attorney, Grover Wright, said, "The city's action could be considered arbitrary. You deferred action on other applications and we request the same treatment." He added, "Acting arbitrarily is something the law does not like seen done."

When Wright was asked after the Council meeting if he is contemplating legal action, he replied, "Yes sir." He added, "The fact the city has two separate zoning ordinances, and whether a use permit is required on commercial property depends on what use would be permitted under former County or City ordinances. This constitutes denial of equal protection to property owners and I intend to raise this question in court."

Furthermore when the new zoning ordinance goes into effect, Wright concluded, "You could operate a football parlor on this property."

The deferred applications referred to by Wright were those of John Small and Happy Hot Dogs, Inc. The question of deferring action on the applications arose when Councilman J. Curtis Payne said, "I would like information on all aspects of this type operation before ruling on them." Councilman John A. Baum added, "If we're going to rule on these matters we should have further information. This is the start of something, and we need all the input possible. I can understand the location of these, but that's about all."

Primary opposition to the football parlors came from nearby merchants, who contended patrons of the parlors congregated about their business blocking customers way, overcrowding parking areas, harrasing store customers and employees, and the general loss of business. Council requested City Manager Roger M. Scott to determine if these facilities might be permitted to operate in a fashion similar to those of a number of family billiard parlors in the City. Scott was also asked if police reports on facilities such as those under consideration reflected any degree of area disturbance or illegal activities, such as drug trafficking? Scott replied, "None of these today."

Mayor Robert B. Cronwell, Jr., told Wright he didn't think Council's action was arbitrary. Councilman Clarence A. Holland, who made the motion to deny Michael's application, told Wright he made the motion on individual merits of the application. Wright said he understood Council agreed to hear all applications but to defer action on each pending a review of them by the City. He added, "To turn this one down could be considered arbitrary." Payne said, "I think this action, was more inconsistent than arbitrary."

Vice Mayor F. Reid Ervin said he agreed with Wright and made a motion to reconsider Michael's application. His motion was lost for lack of a second.

Councilman Donald H. Rhodes suggested that in light of the pending study on football parlors Council allow the application to be withdrawn and resubmitted at a later time. Council took no action on the suggestion.

Aid Sought For Storm Repairs

Federal and State officials have inspected the oceanfront beach and bulkhead, severely damaged in the September 21 storm, to determine qualification for Federal financial aid.

The City has estimated it will cost $800,000 to replace the sand lost in the storm, and $400,000 to repair the bulkhead damage.

Tom Nichols, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and John Graff, Virginia Department of Conservation and Economic Development, inspected the beach and bulkhead between 42nd and 46th Streets. Their concern with the beach was determining how much sand had been lost on the beach as a direct result of the storm action. They were not only concerned with a complete collapse of the bulkhead, such as occurred near 43rd Street, but with the condition of the bulkhead piling, and portions of the bulkhead which have started leaning seaward.

Nichols and Graff indicated they were attempting to determine how much damage to the bulkhead was directly attributable to the storm's action, as opposed to that of deterioration resulting from natural elements over many years.

Asst. City Mgr. George Hanbury, who toured the bulkhead with Nichols and Graff, expressed his opinion on the Bulkhead's failure that, "...if it failed due to deterioration it didn't fall until the storm damage." He indicated he felt the bulkhead would qualify for federal repair funds on grounds of preservation of property in the interest of the public's safety and welfare.

Hanbury says a request is expected to be placed before City Council soon to authorize an appropriation to repair the damage. Following repairs action would be taken to obtain a federal reimbursement of as much of the expense as possible.

Hanbury added, "We would have liked to go ahead with the repairs but could not do this prior to the Federal and State inspection."

The City is reviewing the Corps estimated cost to repair the damage, and damages recommended as qualifying for Federal aid.

Mennonites In Gradual Exodus From Beach

By HELEN CRIST
PRINCESS ANNE — Gradual exodus has been the story of the gently yet strong Mennonites in our midst.

Urbanization, worldliness, high priced land and zooming taxes have made it difficult if not impossible for the younger generation of Mennonites to secure a living from the farm.

Farming has been a way of life for the well-disciplined Protestant sect since its establishment in Zurich, Switzerland in 1525. It received its name from Menno Simons, the Dutch Catholic priest who denounced his faith and became a forceful leader of the brethren in 1536.

Mennonites are known to have settled in Warwick, Norfolk and Princess Anne County at the turn of the century. Attracted by the favorable climate of the Tidewater area they took advantage of the inexpensive land that had been allowed to go undeveloped since the Civil War.

Primarily at the Beach, they settled in Kempsville.

"At one time we had at least 75 families here, now there are just under 30," said Valentine E. Miller, a farmer who has been here since 1927.

Stocky and heavily grey-bearded, declarative in speech, amiable — Miller invited us last week into his home on North Landing Road. It's surrounded by 230 acres of productivity...the taxes on which have doubled in the past five years, he says.

As twilight signaled the end of the working day, brown and white Guernsey cows were patiently waiting to be admitted to the barn for milking.

Deep flower boxes surrounding the spacious brick house presented a burst of color, a tribute to Mrs. Miller's green thumb.

She was not at home, but in Ohio, where she is caring for her 85-year-old mother. A daughter, Martha, came into the house after cutting the wide lawn with a riding power motor. She put on a plain but attractive pink dress, and with a little prayer hat on the back of her head, she was off to a baby-sitting job.

All Mennonite women wear the white prayer hat. Adhering strictly to the Bible, as they do, they believe that "...every woman that prayeth with her head uncovered dishonoureth her head...For if the woman be not covered, let her head be shorn or shaven, let her be covered."

In a study adjoining the living room, a son, LaVern Miller, was typing, tabulating the business of the day. The farm supplies milk to Yoder Dairies, a corporate owned by several Mennonite families. Valentine Miller is president.

Today, the milk is delivered by truck. In the past, however, many Princess Anne residents recall the sound of the horse and buggy as it slowly made the rounds depositing milk at the door.

"We expressed surprise at the frequent use of automobiles...usually a conservative bloc, to be sure, but forbidden, we thought, by the Mennonites.

Miller was amused. "Can you imagine a horse and buggy on Virginia Beach Boulevard?"

"When I came here we used the buggy, up until 1938. But it wasn't safe to continue. We used to hire people then to drive our products into Norfolk to be sold. Then we figured what was the difference between that and driving ourselves?"

So they did, as they always do when major decisions are to be made; they consulted the congregation and the bishop and the minister, and decided to turn to the automobile.

Using the automobile was, in fact, the reason for the first exodus of Mennonites from this area in the early 40's.

"They were the old order Amish," Miller said. A few didn't want to give up the buggy, so they moved to the valley of Virginia and established a new congregation.

Another group followed in 1953, this time, to Montezuma, Georgia. Others went to Kentucky and then, in 1960, still others to South Carolina.

We questioned the difference between the Amish and the Mennonites. And especially since a recent visit to the Amish community in Lancaster, Pa.

pointed up the austerness of the farmhouses; the lack of electricity or plumbing; the absence of pictures on the wall or rugs on the floor — indeed, the total absence of the most elementary of modern conveniences.

So different, we observed from the Miller household.

"The Amish sect is an offshoot of the Mennonite religion...but we are all Mennonites," Miller said, adding that there are conservatives and liberals just as one finds in any other religion.

"Right here we have three different branches: Conservatives, Progressives and the Beachy Mennonites." The latter, named for Moses Beachey, is the group to which Miller and his wife, Sylvia and their ten children belong. Each group has its own church and congregation, though all Mennonites here share close ties and seem more of one family.

Outstanding Officer Sought

The Virginia Beach Jaycees have announced plans to select the outstanding young police officer for 1972 in Virginia Beach.

"This annual award is given as part of a statewide Jaycee Program," said Ron Cundiff, Jaycee Chairman, "to spotlight the achievements and dedication of the professional police officers of our city."

Nominations will be judged locally by a panel of civic leaders. This year's judges are A. R. Mailhes, Executive Vice-President of the Virginia Beach

Chamber of Commerce; E. R. Ruminski, President of Council of Civic Organizations of Virginia Beach; Arthur G. Riddell, President of the Homestead Civic League; Owen B. Pickett, President of the Virginia Beach Bar Association.

The local winner will be honored at a special awards banquet and presented with an award.

Nominations for the award should be sent to: Ron Cundiff, 945 E. Piney Branch Drive, No. 201, Va. Beach, Va. 23451.

Charter Fishing Fleet Secure

By LES LEHIGH

The future of the charter fishing fleet appeared secure for the first time last Friday as a lone design bid, from McLeskey-Cohen Associates, was submitted for the commercial development of the city-owned marina property at Rudee Basin.

In discussing the bid MCA Attorney Grover Wright said, "It is the intent to develop this property for public benefit. We want the commercial charter fleet to remain at a figure they can stand, even if we have to subsidize them. We believe this will encourage the Army Corps of Engineers to take over the inlet and assist in maintenance."

Wright's statement appears to relieve commercial fishermen's fears of being forced out of the marina due to possible increased boat slip fees. It also relieves City concern over continued receipt of revenue produced by the fleet.

Another concern, that of legal action blocking the sale of the city property to private enterprise, was also relieved Friday. Circuit Court Judge Philip L. Russo dismissed a suit brought by the James L. Kitchins challenging City ownership of a portion of the marina.

The Kitchins contended they were forced to sell their property for $4,500 to the defunct Rudee Inlet Authority, which gave the property to the City, through condemnation threats. The Authority's condemnation powers were later overruled in court.

A countersuit in the amount of $4,000 charging the Kitchins with slander has now been filed by the City. This is expected to enter court next month.

MCA is comprised of F. Wayne McLeskey, Jr., and Lee D. Cohen in equal partnerships. Material in the bid proposal would indicate this is the first endeavor of MCA.

Cohen handed MCA's bid to City Purchasing Agent Carroll Clough in the City Council conference room at 9:58 a.m., two minutes before the specified bid deadline. At 10:04 a.m. Clough said, "If anyone else wants to present any bids it will have to be up to Council." No additional bids were submitted during Council's consideration of MCA's bid at 11 a.m.

Samuel E. Shelsky, marina planning consultant who assisted in preparing MCA's proposal, raised the question of the City's wisdom in selling the property. He told Council, "In my opinion the City would benefit more greatly by leasing it than selling it."

Councilman Charles W. Gardner told Shelsky, "I'm happy to see a man of your background disagree with the City disposing of valuable waterfront property, but the Rudee Inlet situation has become so misunderstood the people just want to get rid of it."

Wright warned, "Lenders in Virginia Beach will not loan money on leased property. To lease this property would be condemning it."

Mayor Robert B. Cromwell, Jr., said, "I don't believe we should enter into this discussion. We are here only to accept the bid. I don't think we should attempt to have Mr. Shelsky undermine his bid."

MCA proposes constructing a 140 unit motel, containing a restaurant, and 40 boat-slips at the site. This would represent an investment into multi-million dollars. Selling price of the property is $155,250, the value placed on the property by the City.

Shelsky told Council the property would be developed in three phases after the City's specified date of release of the property June 15, 1973. Shelsky said charter boats would continue their present operation. The first phase would consist of remodeling and consolidation of the boat operations would begin in the Fall of 1973 and be completed in the Spring of 1974, to accommodate a minimum of 23 charter boats under professional management.

Phase two of development projects a Spring of 1974 opening of the first section of the motel containing 80 units, with the second 60-unit section dependent on marketing conditions. Phase three is the addition of a T-pier with restaurant facilities as the market demands.

Wright raised the only question remaining in the planned development of the property. He said, "We remind you (Council) the property is not zoned for the use you project."

The City is expected to accept or reject MCA's bid during the November 13 City Council meeting.

Parents Anti-45/15

"I'm opposed to the way the schools for the 45-15 program were chosen," Mrs. Reba McClannan, Plaza Civic Group, told the Virginia Beach School Board Tuesday afternoon.

Holland, Plaza, Windsor Oaks and Windsor Woods Elementary schools were approved by the Board as pilot schools in the program at the September meeting. The schools were chosen because they were "in relatively compact geographic area with pupil populations that will necessitate additional housing for the 1973-74 school year" according to a report released at that time.

Mrs. McClannan said she felt the pilot schools selected would not give a true sampling on which to base a decision regarding the feasibility of the program on a city-wide basis since the schools are located in the same general area.

Students in Plaza and Holland Elementary schools have been subjected to a number of pilot programs in the past and she felt it was unfair to continue using them in such program, Mrs. McClannan said. Other schools should be selected for the implementation of 45-15.

E.E. Brickell, superintendent, explained that it would be necessary to change the mandate on which the schools were selected as other elementary schools did not have the over-crowded conditions of the pilot schools.

Mrs. McClannan indicated the parents she represented and she had not protested prior to the final selection because they felt the School Board members "would use better judgement."

POLITICS in a NUTSHELL

By KIRT BABUDER

"My opponent in this campaign is insensitive to the importance of agriculture to the economy of Virginia," claims Senator Spens, "he has opposed legislation that means bread and butter to every farmer in Virginia."

In a rally Wednesday, Spong pointed to his opponents' opposition to the Agriculture Appropriations Act of Fiscal 1971-72, a measure that includes funds for the peanut, tobacco and dairy price support programs. The measure also included money for much-needed agricultural research.

Spong claims that throughout the campaign his opponent "has sought to divert attention from his record — which obviously is against the best interest of the thousands of Virginians who make a living from farming."

Throughout the speech Spong showed examples of his support for the farmers of Virginia and asked that they give him support in the coming election.

Horace (Hunk) Henderson, independent candidate for the U.S. Senate, feels that unless the voters in Virginia and the nation "wake-up and get involved in the election, the nation is headed for political dictatorship or nuclear suicide."

Henderson claims that "boring candidates and dead campaigns must not cause the voters to abandon their responsibility to give life and fiber to the survival of the democratic process."

The Independent candidate, said "on one hand we have a President who will not campaign and discuss the vital issues before the nation, and on the other hand we have a candidate for President who has kick-peddled and vacillated so, much public confidence in his leadership has been shaken. It is a national tragedy that most Americans will vote for the lesser of two evils rather than have a choice between the kind of leadership and statesmanship this nation sorely needs when our economic strength is imperiled and opportunities for strengthening world peace are promising."

Henderson feels that it is sad and disturbing that the only thing his opponents have stirred up is indifference to the coming election. He warned that the American people are fed-up with this type of leadership.

Delegate Robert E. Gibson, 4th District Congressional candidate, has renewed his call for "the restoration of an adequate level of income to every retired American."

Gibson, in a press release covering the problems of the elderly, stated that the recent 20 per cent increase in Social Security will go a long way towards helping senior citizens recover from the recent effects of inflation, and urged that the Social Security income limitation be done away with.

"To deal explicitly with the inadequate housing inhabited by almost half of our elderly, I urge the Congress to restore the HEW direct loan program designed specifically for the elderly. Providing funds to upgrade housing is the best way to correct the shocking fact that 40 per cent of our elderly live without hot bath or shower facilities," stated Gibson.

"Welfare is out of hand," charges Robert Hardy, 4th District Congressional candidate, "Finding several generations of deadbeats on welfare isn't rare and both national parties are only offering more of the same."

"It's time welfare changed its direction from making recipients degraded wards of the state and started training these people to earn their own way."

Hardy continued his speech in Petersburg by adding, "let us take second place to no one in sharing what we have with the less fortunate, but in so doing, let's not create an army of free-loading leeches who live high off the sweat of those willing to work."

"The ticket of my opponent, the McGovern-Gibson ticket, is eager to tax those who work for a living," claims Bob Daniel, 4th district Republican Congressional candidate.

Daniel, speaking to a group of supporters in Virginia Beach, stated that his opponent Robert E. Gibson had introduced six tax increase bills in the 1972 General Assembly session. Daniel pledged to support President Nixon's promise to avoid tax increases.

"I think tax increase requests should be met with skepticism, not enthusiasm," Daniel added. Daniel, a Prince George County businessman and farmer, is seeking the seat vacated by retiring Rep. Watkins Abbit.

L. Charles Burlage, 2nd District Congressional candidate, has renewed his attack against G. William Whitehurst for receiving campaign funds from V. H. Monette.

Burlage has charged Whitehurst with receiving contributions amounting to several thousand dollars from Monette who is a military supplier — this, according to Burlage, is in direct violation of the 1971 Federal Election laws.

Armed with research done by a member of his campaign staff, Burlage charged that Monette has also donated monies to the campaign of Bob Wilson, 36th district of California — the San Francisco area.

Both are members of the Congressional Armed Services Committee.

Burlage feels Monette, who supplies millions of dollars worth of supplies to FX's located on military bases, is trying to gain favoritism from the two Congressmen for his company.

Wilson's area in San Francisco includes the largest naval base on the West Coast, according to the Burlage supporter who did the leg work on which the charges are based.

The Buena Vista City Council has past a resolution honoring Senator William B. Spong for his actions in making the Buena Vista Flood Control Program a reality at the earliest possible date.

Quoting the Buena Vista news: "Senator Spong was primarily responsible for us getting the Buena Vista plan cut out from the James River Basin, said Wilford Ramsey, Chairman of the Buena Vista Flood Control Committee. "Without his help we could not have had our program ready for consideration for at least another two or three years."

The resolution recognizes Spong's valuable service to the project and his aid in making the flood plans a reality. The resolution honors Spong for the time, energy and knowledge he used in aiding the completion of the project as well as his help in simplifying Congressional red-tape for the Committee.

A Personal Story

It is not customary to devote the editorial column of this newspaper to a letter to the editor, for the contents of this column must reflect the opinion of The Sun. But this is National Drug Abuse Prevention Week and the editor feels this letter says it all. It is a true experience, the letter has been authenticated (even though the name is being withheld) and it will surely touch many lives:

To the Editor:

I am a drug mother. I have one son in custody at a work farm for the sale of drugs, another "in trouble" for possession. It is not a problem of myers. But the problem has become a part of my life. And though I may not understand its reasons, certainly I understand its consequences, its effects.

Perhaps others will read my story, will benefit from it and will try to understand that they are practically helpless in the face of drug abuse, that they are not totally to blame for all that has gone wrong in their lives and the lives of their loved ones.

This is a very personal story. It is told now only because it may, just may, help others. Perhaps it will help only in letting others know that I speak for many hundreds of other parents who have experienced the heartbreak of drugs and I can tell them that "I understand". If this is the case, then the story is worth the pain in its telling.

The son in custody was a college student in another part of the state when drugs finally caught up with him. He was married. He needed money. He took the "easy" way out. He sold some drugs to an undercover agent... a former summer policeman at the Beach... whom he had befriended. When my son was arrested, he then became the befriended for the police officer did all in his power to make the experience less traumatic; he managed to free my daughter-in-law of all involvement, even though she was there at the time of the sale.

All though school my son had fought for the 18-year-old vote, believing that the younger age group had the right to elect their leaders. He hoped to be an attorney, and with his intelligence and gift of verbal expression, he would have made an excellent one.

That's all changed now. This boy, this man, has lost many of the privileges of being an American, privileges we take for granted. He turned twenty-one in the prison farm, just about the time Congress approved the 18-year-old vote. "At last, he can vote," I told myself, only to realize, suddenly, he cannot vote. He is a felon. His ambitions for a legal career? Gone. Along with many other professions he is intellectually qualified for. I wonder now about his future. But I still have faith that he will succeed in whatever his chosen field.

Several Sundays a month are spent with my son at the Farm. I take him his favorite home-cooked dishes and we sit at a table in a crowded room, cramming into one hour together the little things that happen between visits, the nonconsequential things that make our lives personal.

The parting is always difficult. Even after a year and a half it is difficult. He walks inside the high-fenced yard to see that I get to my car. We wave. He slowly turns away, his arms loaded with goodies from home, and he heads to his low-key existence. I drive away, back to my pressured existence, carrying an emptiness that cannot be described. And I cry.

My son's wife divorced him as soon as he went to prison. He has lost touch with most of his friends. His only college contact now is an extension course from the University of Virginia. But he has learned much that must come from inside. He has learned a new set of values. He has learned tolerance and patience. He has matured well. And we are both thankful he was exposed to a penal system that stresses rehabilitation rather than restriction. He speaks now of God and love and a desire to help his fellow man. And, because of an advanced system of penalty, he recognizes his own mistakes and harbors no bitterness.

As for me, the pain persists. Not in bitterness, for I am thankful for what he has learned. But the paternal instinct aches for what he can never achieve, for the burden he, we, must bear in the years ahead. It is a deep unquenchable pain.

And now there is the second son and he, too, is blighted by association with drugs. Not so seriously now, but I cannot help but wonder...will it stop here? Has he learned so little from his brother's experience?

Why has it happened? Why must it be? These are the questions I keep asking myself. But I find no answers. And if I had it all to face over again, I still would not have the answers. A parent is helpless, cast adrift, when confronted with drugs. There is no solution, no solace, to a problem that cannot be understood.

I try to rationalize that my son's need for money, to provide his young bride with what she most desired, prompted him to break the law, that my other son is merely caught up in the trials of today. But do I attempt rationalization merely because they are my sons and I find reality too painful to accept? I don't know. Does any parent? Do you?

Sincerely,
 A Reader

Mind Your Money

By Peter Weaver

There are times when you can't live with it and there are times when you can't live without it. What is it: sex, food, politics? None of these. It's the humidity — or lack of it. Too much humidity (water in the air) can make you feel rotten when it's hot outside. Too little humidity can make you feel rotten when it's cold. Aside from making you feel uncomfortable, humidity extremes can also run up your fuel and energy bills. In an effort to cut down fuel bills, the Defense Department is now ordering the installation of humidifiers in many of the armed forces' base housing units.

Let's see how they figure it. It's a known fact that the more humidity in the air, the less heat the body needs to be comfortable. In summer, if it's hot and humid, we turn on the air conditioner. Our bodies want less heat when there's more moisture in the air.

In winter, when there's enough humidity inside a home, you can actually turn down the thermostat several degrees and still not feel the cold. But turning down the thermostat, of course, you can save money on your fuel bill. It's been estimated that you can save as much as 10 percent on your monthly fuel bill by turning the thermostat down five degrees.

How do you know whether your home needs more or less water in the air? An easy way to find out is to buy a good precision hygrometer. Taylor makes "wet-bulb, dry-bulb" hygrometers for home use that give accurate humidity and temperature readings. They cost around $13.

The next question: What's the proper humidity for the inside of a home? Experts say a relative humidity reading of around 35 will keep you comfortable and will help keep your utility bills down. Unfortunately, in winter, homes that have to be heated usually have humidity readings down around 10 or 12.

When the humidity is this low, you not only have to keep your heat up higher to be comfortable, you also discover that the membranes in your nose and throat dry up. Some doctors say this dryness can make you prone to catching winter colds.

There are various types of humidifiers available — some good, some bad. If you live in an apartment that has no central humidifying system (and most don't), you have two choices. You can get a portable humidifier for $100 or less. It heats up water in a tank and blows it into the room. You have to keep filling it with water, and slime tends to form inside. The slime breeds spores and bacteria that cause allergic reactions in some people.

For homes that have a central heating system, spray-type or pad-type humidifiers are the best. They cost around $100 to $300 installed. The spray-type can put out plenty of humidity and has a good drain system so water isn't left standing to form slime deposits. Spra-Kleen, Lennox, Mistricon and Aqua-Mist are the major manufacturers of spray-type units.

The pad-type humidifiers trickle water from a filter pad where it is blown into ducts by the furnace fan. Aprilaire and Autofo are the two major manufacturers of the pad type.

Campaign Expense Is Of Interest

As evident from a large number of responses, Virginia Beach citizens definitely favor placing limits on campaign expenditures by candidates running for federal offices.

Every individual reply sent to the SUN office favored such limitations on spending.

"The total amount should vary with the size of the electorate, but should be reasonable." There is too much being spent now. As important as amount is the identification of all donors and the financial and business holdings of the candidates," commented one reader.

The SUN was also very pleased to again hear from Government classes at Bayside High School. J.E. Weirich reported that 31 of his students voted yes to the question, 14 voted no, and 17 were undecided.

As we have often stated in this column, the Sun Survey welcomes questions from our readers and, in the past, fulfilled a community need by posing a question requested by groups or individuals.

The new question is one of those requests. Little theatres in the area are pondering the possibility of eliminating reviews, relying on pre-show promotion to attract patrons.

The amateur groups are con-

BIG BROTHER IS WATCHING

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON—For some time now, Uncle Sam has been developing a Big Brother complex.

We have documentary evidence that federal agencies have almost unlimited access to confidential information on citizens. Income tax returns, social security files and confidential bank records are all open to federal snoops.

Not even the mails are inviolate. Almost any government agency can ask the post office for a mail check to find out who is writing to whom.

Government agents have even resorted to poking into people's garbage. For a while, garbage collectors in the District of Columbia had a list of 50 persons whose trash was set aside and delivered in burlap bags to a special room in a government building. There, unidentified men would come at night to spirit away the bags for scrutiny.

So, it came as no surprise the other day when we spotted two government agents, dressed as civilians, lugging large plastic bags filled with trash aboard an airliner in New York City. The plane was bound for Washington.

Mother Is Concerned

To the Editor:

Excuse me if I make mistakes, but I've never written to a newspaper before. I am so nervous and upset about the situation I am writing about which concerns two little babies that died in Des Moines, Iowa.

I believe that the ones that removed the headstones from the babies' graves were wrong in doing so.

You may talk about rules. What rules? Rules are broken sometimes.

Why did they wait from March 8, 1971 until now? Why in heavens did they have the time and the money to remove the headstones, but refuse to pay the cost of resetting the headstones? Why didn't they come

Speed Limits

To the Editor:

I wonder if we can't persuade the Virginia Beach Police to enforce the 30 m.p.h. speed limit in Kings Grant, or just hoist it to 50 m.p.h. and forget all about it.

ton Agency is now analyzing the results of surveys conducted last spring and summer in 15 countries. According to sources inside USAIA, the preliminary results show that U.S. prestige rose in 12 countries surveyed following the President's trip to Peking last February. At the same time, we are told, U.S. prestige dropped in Japan, Mexico and Lebanon.

The White House is expected to leak favorable statistics from the surveys before November 7. But the White House will probably keep under wraps another section of the USAIA study which indicates American prestige is on a downward trend.

The upward move generated by the President's historic trips is only a temporary phenomenon, say our USAIA sources. The general downward drift of American prestige abroad can be expected to continue into the 1980s.

—Computerized Congress—

In the 91st Congress, 435 representatives wasted 190 hours—or five work weeks—while their names were read slowly aloud to record their votes. With push buttons on their desks, the congressmen could have voted and been recorded in five seconds each time.

It now appears that Congress will at last get voting buttons. An electronic voting system has been installed and House computer czar Frank Ryan says the system will soon be in operation.

However, initial tests of the system have backfired and Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio,

Washington Money-Go-Round

who oversees the operation, has told us he doesn't plan to sign any of Ryan's vouchers until the system proves A-Okay.

—Routine Briefing—

Several months before the Cambodian invasion, a ranking general trooped up to the New York offices of Chase Manhattan to brief a roomful of bankers on the latest developments in the Vietnam War. One former Chase Manhattan official who was present has told us that the general strongly intimated that something big was about to develop in the war. He advised the bankers to keep their eyes on the supply lines in Cambodia and Laos. We asked our friend at Chase Manhattan whether he thought it proper for the Pentagon to brief dozens of bankers on sensitive military matters. "Whether it's right or wrong," he told us, "it's certainly routine."

Luxurious Living—The Navy's is spending over $100,000 a year to house off-duty sailors in plush apartments while their ships are being overhauled at the Newport News, Va., shipyard. The off-duty sailors relax in furnished, fully carpeted two-bedroom apartments in town. Most of the apartments have color TVs and access to swimming pools. Meanwhile, on-call sailors working in the dockyards continue to sleep in bunk beds on crowded barges.

Hard Work Merits State Honor For Kontopoulos

By LORNA ZILLER

James G. Kontopoulos of Pine Wood Road in Virginia Beach has been named the Virginia Easter Seal Volunteer-of-the-year.

A retired restaurateur, he has served on the state Board of Directors of the Virginia Eastern Seal Society for two years and has been a member of the Virginia Beach chapter for 18 years.

"The society met in my restaurant for dinner one night and the president asked me if I'd be interested in joining," Mr. Kontopoulos explained.

He was already involved to some extent in working with crippled children through the Rotary Club so he decided to join the Society. He also became active in the Beach Polio Foundation.

In explaining his interest in the organizations he said, "I always felt someone should help those who can't help themselves."

In the 18 years he has served with the Society he feels that the most significant change has been the addition of aid to persons with speech and hearing problems.

"He is especially proud of the new Easter Seal Center located on Magic Hollow Boulevard. Specially designed for the handicapped, the building was conceived by the local chapter which began a fund-raising campaign five years ago. The chapter is the only one in Virginia which owns its building, Kontopoulos noted.

"It was just like a dream when we began and every member of the chapter deserves credit for turning the dream into reality."

Kontopoulos helped to plan fashion shows and auction to raise money for the building. Eventually the state office added to the building fund to make the construction of the center at an earlier date. Now the Beach chapter is obtaining funds to furnish the building.

Among the services offered by the Society at the center is the loan of wheel chairs, walkers, crutches, and other such equipment to persons in the area, Kontopoulos said.

Kontopoulos was born, and spent his early childhood, in Greece. He lived in Norfolk for 20 years before moving to Virginia Beach in 1955 where he owned and operated a restaurant for 29 years. During these years in business he was active as a church and civic leader. The Daughters of American Revolution honored him 10 years ago with the Americanism Award in recognition of his contributions to the community.

In addition to being a board member of the Welfare Department of the City of Virginia Beach and a former member of the State Exon Commission, he is treasurer of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce and past president of the Rotary Club.

He has served the "Annunciation" Greek Orthodox Church of Norfolk for many years.

How Do You Handle A Topless Go-Go Dancer?

Councilman George R. Ferrell, during Monday's City Council meeting again questioned how the city should handle topless go-go dancers, and if they could become another source of revenue for the City.

Referring to the increasing number of requests for use permits for live entertainment, Ferrell asked if efforts to define live entertainment was aimed specifically at topless go-go dancers.

"I don't mind looking at them," he said, "but I think we ought to tax them more than we do."

He said topless entertainment is becoming increasingly popular and "We're going to have more of these."

Tax Application Deadline Is Near

Applications for real estate taxation based on use value must be completed and submitted to the City Real Estate Assessor by November 1.

Applications and information concerning land classified as agriculture, horticulture, forest, and open space to be assessed and taxed on the basis of use can be obtained at the Cooperative Extension Service, Building 12, City Hall.

City Manager Roger M. Scott said, "We're looking into the possibility of separating these from dance hall permits." Elaborating on this after the meeting Scott said, "We're working towards separating these from the special permit category which now includes dance halls. This would establish a definite permit for each specific type of live entertainment, be it combination individuals, or groups."

Mrs. Alexander Discusses Fashions At Club Luncheon

Mrs. Mildred Alexander, WTAR fashion commentator, briefly surveyed ladies' fashions over a 100-year period for 28th annual birthday luncheon of the Ocean Park Woman's Club October 11 at the Cavalier Hotel.

Her talk touched with humor. Mrs. Alexander began with comments on the changes in swimsuits from "Grandma's time" to the present. About 80 years ago, it took approximately 10 yards of wool to fashion a suit which included bloomers, capes, stockings, skirt past the knees and shoes.

When Bloomers of Swimsuits Mrs. Clay Speaks To ABWA Assn.

Samuel Clay, director of public libraries in Virginia Beach, will speak on "Our Libraries and Their Functions" at the meeting of The Lighthouse Chapter of American Business Women's Association at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Brass Lantern on Rosemont Road.

The woman of the month will be honored and a business meeting will be held. Dinner will begin at 7:30 p.m. following a get-acquainted half hour. The Association is for working women in the area. Anyone interested in making reservations may call 497-6156 on or before Friday.

Secretaries Assn. Sponsors Show

A style show will be sponsored by The Virginia Beach Legal Secretaries Association at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Boardwalk Inn at 26th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

The theme of the show which will be presented by Alexander Beagle, will be "The Working Girl's Day From Dawn to Dusk." Tickets may be obtained by calling Jerry Earnest at 427-2717 or 425-6164.

Harvest Dinner

The Faculty Wives Club of Old Dominion University will sponsor a pot luck harvest dinner Oct. 20 at 6 p.m. at the Webb Center Cafeteria. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. T. H. Gunter at 499-5585.

were finally allowed to go above the knee, they could still be no shorter than four inches above, a rule strictly enforced on many beaches. "Policemen patrolling the beach actually carried a yardstick so the distance between the knee and bottom of the bloomers could be measured if there was any question," Mrs. Alexander laughed.

In 1936 the bra top with shorts was considered quite daring. Finally by 1942 there were no special suit regulations but women returned to the one-piece suit.

"Women have fought for emancipation in swimwear," she commented. Today, of course, bikinis are popular and occasionally "skinny dippy." Noting that fall fashions today include nothing strikingly different, she said she felt the fashion world is in a precarious position. Fashion schools are not training people for creating as they have done in the past.

Distinctive styles have appeared on the fashion scene over the century. The 1870's universal outline was the bustle, with the S-shape look being in vogue from 1880 until 1910. The long narrow skirt with the tunic made its way into the world of fashion in about 1913. The skirt shortened and the female population was trying for the flat-busted look, Mrs. Alexander said.

The Dior look was a long wide skirt with shoulders appearing rounded and narrow. She also noted that women have a tendency to admire fashions 30 years after the original is stylish. Thus, fashions of yesteryear have a tendency to return to the fashion world.

Prior to Mrs. Alexander's talk, members of The Music Makers, a group of local musicians who sing at club and civic organization activities, veterans hospitals, nursing homes, schools and so forth, entertained the ladies with several numbers including "You're Goin' To Hear From Me."

Guests included presidents from other women's clubs and perspective members. The luncheon is the main social function of the club each year. Members concentrate on volunteer work and fund-raising for various charities throughout the year.

Mrs. David Whitaker is the current president.

Meeting Held

Fred Huette spoke on the care and pruning of shrubs at the October meeting of the Chesapeake Colony Garden Club at the home of Mrs. Carl Ritchie, with Mrs. James Ayers, serving as co-hostess.

Arrangements followed the theme "Autumn Leaves" and eight members won blue ribbons.

Mrs. L.A. Shinn will give a program on "Holiday Arrangement" at the next meeting.

Cheri Peete, 2, holds a doll from one of the booths at the fourth annual Home Craft Show and Sale sponsored by the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club Friday through Sunday at the Virginia Beach Civic Center. Cheri was fascinated with the dolls displayed in the booth "Darby Dolls handmade by Grandma", until the Sun photographer began taking pictures. Although a little camera shy, Cheri was finally persuaded to pose, with a little help from her mother, Mrs. J. U. Peete Jr. of Norfolk. The Darby Dolls were made by Mrs. Myra Carrington of Washington, D.C. The first rag doll she made was for her granddaughter, Darby Carrington of the Beach. Mrs. Pat Carrington tended the booth for her mother-in-law.

Mrs. Dunaja Gives Program

P.A. County Historical Society

Tour Sparks Historical Interest

By Helen Crist

There was many an eye on the weather map last week as Wednesday approached, and the Princess Anne County Historical Society prepared for its first historical bus tour.

"We go rain or shine," said Mrs. Alice McCaw, who suggested the tour at a Society meeting, and promptly found herself, along with Mrs. Lorene Turner, as chairman of the whole affair.

"But of course, the weather was perfect — clear and crisp, all of which pleased no end, the Society and six bus loads of tourists, plus some 100 more who made the tour via automobile.

drinks around) and welcomed the 36 passengers aboard.

We checked the Greyhound microphone over which we would read the history and description of the seven houses on tour, and with much levity, we pulled out of the parking lot.

On tour were: Upper Wolf-snare, Adam Keeling House, Weblin House, Francis Land House (Rose Hall, Va. Beach Blvd.), Poplar Hall, Burgess House and Pembroke Manor.

Of the 36 aboard, there were three men: Robert Selkowitz, with Mrs. Selkowitz; William Maxwell, Jr., with Mrs. Maxwell and James Killingsworth, of Hurd's Restaurant.

"Where's Ruth?" we asked Jim, knowing that his wife is one of the busiest leaders in the area. "Preparing for a state convention of the American Business Woman's Association," he said.

Mrs. A. C. Watson, of Crittenden, were keenly interested in Upper Wolfsnare as Lt. Cdr. Okey Townsend gave them a rundown on its restoration. He and his wife, Lou, who live there, have done a vast amount on the mid-18th century house for the Historical Society, owners of Upper Wolfsnare.

It was interesting to note an Australian's viewpoint of our history. Mrs. Elva Weiss, from the country-down-under, seated with Mrs. Marie Ball, a Beach resident, enthused about our culture. "You know America's past is really very romantic — it's fascinating. But I think particularly so is the very early Colonial period. That's the part I like best."

was there a century ago; +At Pembroke Manor, viewed only from the outside, for the inside is unsafe under the burden of many walking upon its floors...where lack of funds has caused a Georgian landmark to become so neglected that its future is in jeopardy.

We went back then, to the parking lot. All agreed that the day had been one to remember.

And there, as we disembarked, was Alice McCaw, walking her Saint Bernard about, with a watchful eye on the parking area, much as a mother hen watches for her chicks to come home.

"We were overwhelmed at the response," Alice McCaw said. "We had about 324, I believe."

As a matter of fact, Adm. Harold Page Smith (ret.), the Society's president, said he even received indignant phone calls from persons, quite incensed that additional buses weren't made available.

"But this reaction isn't really surprising. In May, when the Virginia Beach Sun organized such a tour for city officials and civic leaders to spark historical interest, there was the same affirmative enthusiasm.

And it was our good fortune this time to act as guide, with Alice Dubois, on bus No. 4.

We arrived at Pembroke Mall parking lot, where Mrs. Louise Strode and Rear Adm. M. P. Hotel (ret.) were checking out the buses.

Boarding ours, we shook hands with driver, Bob Truelove, stowed away our camera and bland bologna and cheese sandwich we'd prepared for lunch (this was a carry-lunch affair with free soft

So we promptly assigned Jim to ride shotgun with the bus driver, reading the detailed map directing us to the various houses. Which brought the responses as he read: "I've lived here all my life and I didn't even know that some of these houses were here."

As we rolled along the Expressway to Upper Wolfsnare, we discovered that not only local people were aboard. Mrs. Russell Hayden of Whitestone, Virginia and Mrs. Basil Spaulding of Irvington said they'd driven 100 miles to take the tour.

Mrs. Hayden has more than a casual interest in old houses. She and her husband have restored five, and are on the lookout for a sixth. "But it must be away from close neighbors, because we have animals to consider," she said. Their interest is in 18th century houses.

Mrs. Linwood Allsbrook and

There were memorable episodes at each stop:

+At Adam Keeling House, where the centuries old boxwood garden were so inviting in the sunlight, that many took a seat on the graceful iron benches to enjoy the garden;

+At Weblin House, which became somewhat of a treasure hunt, as our bus waited at the entrance to Moore's Pond Road to pick up a red flag on a pole, indicating that the way was clear to negotiate the narrow long land leading into the estate...and where, so many walked upon the second floor that the safety of the ceiling was debated, so that guests were then restricted to the first floor.

+At Poplar Hall, where owner William Copeland talked with guests as they waited to be admitted to the stately, elegant mansion overlooking Broad Bay, and where a leisurely walk around the circular driveway gave one a chance to stretch the legs and ponder on life as it must have been in a slower and easier age;

+At Francis Land House or Rose Hall, where we cautioned guests to hold on their purses lest the temptation to shop rather than observe, get the best of them...where the old part of this, the largest of the gambrel houses, is so solidly built that the sound of a jet overhead can't be heard;

+At Upper Wolfsnare, where the pillars have been removed from the porch, causing the house to more closely resemble the original structure...where, it was noted, the Virginia Beach Garden Club will do the job of landscaping when the proper time comes.

+At Burgess House, where we discovered that unknown to us, aboard our bus the whole time was Mrs. William Simpson, owner...and where Mrs. Ruth Van Buskirk and Mrs. John Tucker were still aghast at the earlier appearance that morning of a former owner, Mrs. Ruth Gornito, who stood in the pre-1773 house and told them fascinating stories of life as it

JANE, CLOSE THE REFRIGERATOR DOOR. QUICK.

You'll be on your way to a slimmer figure in more ways than one.

Because it's not the economical electricity you use that gets your bill out of shape; it's the electricity you waste. That refrigerator door you held open again. ## SBA Claims Approaching $1 Million Private property damage from the September 21st storm is expected to run from $500,000 to $750,000 in the resort city, according to Small Business Administrator Anthony Halmagyi. Halmagyi based the estimate on some 100 inquiries for federal assistance at the SBA office which has been operating in Virginia Beach for the past three weeks. He said, "Damage was chiefly to homes, including rental property classified as businesses, primarily to basements and lower floors of homes." Halmagyi said considerable damage to lawns, driveways, and walkways was also reported. "From what I have seen," Halmagyi added, "damage is comparatively small. These will be mostly grants below $5,000." He was referring to the SBA criteria that repair of damages up to $5,000 could qualify for federal grants, while larger amounts could qualify for low interest loans. In addition to structural damage repairs, the SBA is also accepting applications for financial aid to replace destroyed and/or damaged household effects and personal belongings. Applicants must fully establish amount of the loss claimed when applying for assistance. The SBA will then send an appraiser to each applicants home to inspect damage to determine its qualification for assistance. This could, according to Halmagyi, result in an increase or decrease in the amount of qualified assistance.

SBA Director Anthony Halmagyi joins his assistant Miss Louise Blocher in reviewing local applications for federal aid from those hard-hit by the September 21st storm.

Halmagyi said he felt that applicants should be notified of the approval or disapproval of their requests within one month.

Highlights The Harmon Football Forecast

For the fifth week in a row, the Oklahoma Sooners hold a very strong position as our number one team. They fortified the top spot with a powerful win over Texas last week, but now they move into conference competition which can be a whole new ball game. 11th-ranked Colorado is regarded No. 1 for the Sooners, and after the Buffaloes' win over Iowa State last week, they could be difficult. Oklahoma is favored by 31 points.

Also in the Big Eight, our new No. 3 team, Nebraska, plays Kansas, and Iowa State, dropped to 15th, meets Kansas State. The Cornhuskers will scuttle the Jayhawks by 43 points, and the Cyclones should whip the Wildcats by sixteen.

The Southeast Conference has already had some coronary provokers, and there's another one cooking on the front burner this week: Alabama versus Tennessee. The Crimson Tide has been in the number four spot in our ratings for five weeks. Tennessee is No. 13. It'll be a toughie, but the Tide should win by eight.

Taking a quick look at the forecasting percentage, we're almost up to date again. Getting the scores from all over the nation becomes more difficult every year. Thro Saturday, October 7th, we had forecast the results of 914 games. And we're not unhappy with our average of .759 based on 684 winners, 220 losers, and 20 ties.

In the annual "championship match" in the South-West Conference, it'll be a meeting between two one-time losers, Texas and Arkansas. We still rate the Longhorns No. 10 in the country, and they will beat the Razorbacks by 12 points.

Elsewhere among the nation's elite, 7th-ranked Notre Dame is a strong 30-point favorite over Missouri, and L.S.U., No. 6, is 28 points stronger than Kentucky. Penn State is in the No. 14 spot, and they'll subdue Syracuse by 22 points.

Gary Woodhouse, top ground-gainer for the Kellam Knights against Indian River, carries behind the blocking of John Malone (63) and George Irby (72).

Great Team Effort Gives Kellam 13-12 Victory Over Indian River

The big argument at the Kellam football practices this week has been: "Who won the football game? The offense or the defense?" No matter who "wins" the argument, the fact is that Kellam won last Friday night's football game by upsetting a very good Indian River team by a narrow 13-12 margin.

Indian River, the preseason favorite in the Southeastern District, is now 3-2 for the season. The Braves, after winning their first three games of the season, have been upset in their last two games by Great Bridge and Kellam. Kellam, now with a 2-3 record, won its second game of the season to end a three-game losing string which followed the opening season win over Oscar Smith.

The Kellam defense figures that it won the game. Kellam's first score came after a fired-up defense intimidated the Brave center to hike the ball over the punter's head. Although Indian River recovered the fumble, Kellam's defense took over the ball on the Indian River 25-yard line.

After the first Indian River score, the Braves tried a two-point conversion. The Kellam defensive unit stopped the runner, holding the Braves to just the six-point touchdown. The Kellam defensive unit then set up their team's second score when they forced a fumble and recovered the ball on the Kellam 36-yard line. Six plays later, Kellam had six more points.

The Knight defenders again stopped a two-point conversion run after the Braves' second score. This saved the win for the Knights. Defensive halfback Alan Kyker later intercepted a Brave pass on Kellam's own four-yard line on the last play of the game to insure the victory and to stop Indian River's last scoring threat. All in all, the Kellam offense that put 11 to claim that it won the game. Kellam's offensive unit is not taking the defense's claim laying down. After all, it was the Kellam defense has good reason points on the scoreboard to outpoint the Braves.

After a scoreless first period, Kellam broke the pointless dual when quarterback Bob Carter hit end Steve Scarcelli with a perfect 30-yard pass. Chuck Edwards booted the extra point, which eventually proved to be the margin of victory, and Kellam led 7-0.

A few plays later, a 24-yard pass from Fred Spellman to Ron Barnes gave the Braves their first score. A two-point conversion run failed, and the Knights were ahead 7-6 at the half.

Kellam put together a seven-play drive in the third quarter to march to the Indian River one-yard line. Gary Woodhouse took the ball the final yard, and Tim Terry picked up 17 yards in four carries, Brad Greenberg carried twice for seven yards, and Kim Brown carried once for five yards.

Quarterback Bob Carter completed three of six passes for 42 yards without an interception. Steve Scarcelli caught one pass, a touchdown, for 30 yards, and Sonny Blacknon grabbed two Carter aerials for 10 yards.

David Anderson had a good night punting. He punted three times, the longest going 55 yards, for 36 yards-per-kick average. Kim Brown and Frank Ludvik were the kickoff return men, and Brown returned two for 54 yards and Ludvik one for 14 yards.

Kellam defenders recovered one fumble and intercepted one Indian River pass. Alan Kyker intercepted the pass and returned it five yards before he was brought down, and Barry Davis recovered the fumble.

Indian River outflashed Kellam 10-6 and led in total offensive yards 266-186, but Kellam led in the most important statistic of all—points. Kellam gained 144 yards rushing and 42 yards passing. Indian River rushed for 206 yards and added 60 more through the air.

Bayside Loses 28-19 Despite The Heroics Of Roscoe Coles

Roscoe Coles played his best game ever in a Marlin uniform and was clearly the game's hero when he led his Bayside team to a thriller to tough Deep Creek 28-19. Outstanding on both offense and defense, Coles, a 5-10, 158 pound junior halfback and defensive back, was the game's leading rusher and pass receiver on offense and had two interceptions to his credit on defense.

Roscoe Coles also scored the three Bayside Touchdowns. Bayside scored first, taking the Hornet defenders for six more points. The two-point conversion attempt failed, and the game ended with Deep Creek in front 28-19.

In addition to the 45-yard touchdown pass to Roscoe Coles, Osborne hit Steve Greaff once on a 26-yarder, Leandis Hodges once for six yards, and Steve Landy four times for 36 yards. Coles also caught another pass for 12 yards.

Vernon Hyman had a good night as the Marlin punter. Hyman punted six times, averaging 37 yards per kick with a long punt of 48 yards. Sylvester Carrington thrilled the Marlin fans with a kickoff return of 16 yards.

The statistics were closer than the score. Bayside churned out 311 yards of offense, just four yards less than the victorious Hornets. Deep Creek led in rushing 240 yards to 186, but the Marlin led in passing offense 125 yards to 75. Deep Creek made 14 first downs to Bayside's 11. Both teams lost two fumbles, and the Hornets gave up two interceptions.

Phillip Jones and Tom Willie recovered the two fumbles for the Marlin. Roscoe Coles made the two interceptions. The loss puts Bayside's record at 1-4-1 overall and 1-3-1 in the Eastern District.

Coles finished the night with 270 yards gained. As the game's number one rusher, he picked up 157 yards on 15 carries. As the game's leading pass receiver, he caught two passes for 45 yards. He returned two kickoffs for 30 more yards, and he intercepted and returned two Hornet passes for 53 yards.

Joe Osborne had his best night passing, of the season, completing eight passes for 125 yards.

In the meantime, Deep Creek was plastering the scoreboard with 28 points. William Windley was the main offensive weapon for the Hornets. He carried 21 times for 138 yards to move the ball into scoring position for teammates Marvin Saunders and Alexander Smith. Saunders rushed for 80 yards and scored 16 points and passed to Smith for six more. Windley scored once to climax an 82-yard gallop.

During the 82-yard romp, Windley was hit behind the line of scrimmage and two or three more times just beyond the line of scrimmage. The Bayside tacklers just could not hold on.

Deep Creek led 8-7 at the end of the first quarter, and 14-7 at the end of the half. A 14-point outburst in the third quarter gave the Hornets a 28-7 lead at the end of three. Bayside held the Hornets scoreless in the final quarter while scoring twice themselves for the final 28-19 score.

Leandis Hodges carried the ball 11 times for 41 yards and caught one pass for six more yards. Hodges also returned two kickoffs 22 yards and a punt return two yards. Quarterback Joe Osborne connected on 8 of 22 passes for 125 yards, with two interceptions. This was Osborne's best night of the season.

opening kickoff and moving it to the Hornet 35-yard line in six plays. Coles then took the handoff, skirted left end, and raced the remaining 35 yards for six points. Don Harold booted the extra point, and the Marlin had a 7-0 lead with the game less than three minutes old.

The Hornet defense blanked the determined Marlin during the middle two quarters of play. Then an explosive 12-point comeback attempt was led by Coles and quarterback Joe Osborne in the final period of play.

Down 28-7, Coles scored his second touchdown of the night on another long run, this time a 30-yard dash up the middle on a delay. The Bayside two-point conversion pass attempt failed, but Bayside had narrowed the gap to 28-13 with nearly five minutes left to play.

Bayside got the ball back with just seconds remaining in the game. With the scoreboard clock showing just one second, Osborne uncorked a 45-yard pass to Roscoe Coles. Coles, in the end zone, made a spectacular catch between two Roscoe Coles thrilled the crowd with an exciting performance. He had the best game of his varsity career, but he could not quite salvage a win for his Bayside team.

Bad Weather, Fair Fishing

Well, another week has come and gone, and the weather has not been any better to the fisherman.

There have been a few nice puppy drum and trout taken from the surf and creeks and very few flounder.

With the wind being in the north and blowing at the rate it has been, the boats in the marinas are collecting barnacles and their skippers are collecting grey hairs.

The fellows are catching some beautiful grey trout at the second island and third island and also landing some nice bluefish in the 3 to 5 pound class along with flounder and striped bass (rock fish) at late evening and early morning.

I was present at the Virginia Beach Anglers Club meeting this past Thursday, October 12, when they gave out their annual awards for their fishing tournament. It was a very nice affair, and I was very fortunate to receive two of their awards.

Bob Phillips was fishing on the beach at 67th Street and was able to pick up about 12 to 14 nice puppy drum and Charclis of the Plantation Motel did very well himself.

This past Friday during the blow there were some nice blues taken from the wooden pier at 15th Street.

The spot seem to have all gone and are headed further south for the winter.

The fellows around the lake seem to be doing pretty well on bass and speckle perch—I have yet to receive any names and weights so far. If anyone does have a nice catch, I wish they would call me at the Virginia Beach Sun or else at my home (phone 428-9144). I would be very glad to write them up so that everyone will know what is going on in the fishing world.

As First Colonial's Rick Lavrischeff turns the left end of his line and heads upfield, the rest of the action looks to be over. Cox's Bill Summs (76) is pointing toward Lavrischeff and appears to be saying to teammate Terry Roche (51). "There goes Lavrischeff! You'd better stop him boy!" The whistle had just blown, and although some of the players had ceased play, Lavrischeff took no chances and continued with the ball.

Cox Defense Scores Eight Points In 9-7 Victory Over First Colonial

"Our defense did a great job. Anytime the defense can go out and outscore the other team's offense, they did a great job." This was how Cox head coach Al Habit summed up his team's thrilling victory over neighbor First Colonial minutes earlier. Cox's defensive unit scored eight of their team's nine points and defeated First Colonial 9-7.

The first quarter ended in a scoreless draw. Near the end of the first period, First Colonial began a drive that ended 32 seconds into the second quarter with a touchdown. Senior halfback Dave Bumgardner went off tackle from two yards out for six points. Steve Selby followed with a conversion boot, and First Colonial went in front 7-0. That ended most of the offensive scoring for the rest of the game.

Minutes later, First Colonial was forced to punt from their own end zone. Just as Patriot punter Barry Boyer put his foot to the ball, a hard-charging Falcon defense rushed in. Rod Robbins got his hand on the ball and blocked the punt and teammate Ray White fell on the ball in the end zone for the touchdown. Falcon kicker Brooks Williams came into the game and booted the extra point to tie the game at 7-all. Williams' one-point conversion was the only point scored by the Cox offense during the game.

Three minutes into the second half, Cox's Jim Basnight punted, and teammate David Swingle downed it on First Colonial's one-yard line. On the second play from scrimmage, First Colonial's speedy halfback Tyrone Little was trapped in his own end zone by George Jones, Bill Summs, and Randy Robinson for a safety. The Cox defensive unit had scored two more points, and Cox went ahead 9-7. The next 21 minutes was a scoreless battle, and the game ended with Cox the victor by the narrow 9-7 margin.

Both teams played well enough to win. First Colonial finished the game with 205 yards offensively and 15 first downs. The Patriots gained 100 yards rushing and 96 yards passing. Cox had 152 total offensive yards, 122 on the ground and 30 through the air, and 9 first downs.

The defensive unit of both teams played exceptionally well. Just as the first half ended, the First Colonial defense made a determined goal-line stand. A Bill Ittner to Brooks Williams pass was good for 17 yards and moved the ball to First Colonial's six yard line. It was first down and goal to go. Cox's Danny Weinbrecht swept around his left end and made it to the two. A quarterback sneak by Ittner went for no gain. On third down, Randy Robinson made it to the one yard line before the left end of the First Colonial line stopped him. On fourth and one to go for the score, Robinson tried to go across the middle, but the middle of the Patriot line held the big 220-pound fullback. The Patriot took over the ball on the one-foot line.

quarter, but a determined Cox defense stopped them cold. On fourth and twelve, Patriot quarterback Chris Swecker hit split end Chris Paphites with a perfect strike. Paphites caught the pass, which was good for 25 yards and a first down on Cox's 10 yard line. A holding penalty moved the ball back to the 20. Still first down, Swecker threw a perfect pass into the end zone, but Cox' Ray White got his hands on it at the last minute and broke up the near-score. Dave Swingle broke up a second-down pass play from Ittner to Paphites on the 10. On third down, it was Ray White again who broke up an Ittner pass on the eight yard line. Bill Span broke through the line and got a hand on Ittner and slowed him up enough for teammate George Jones to arrive and down Ittner on fourth and still twenty. With 4:30 left in the game, Cox had stopped a strong First Colonial drive and had taken over the ball.

Cox was forced to give up the ball two minutes later, and the Patriots began another drive. Dave Swingle broke up a key third down pass to make it fourth and five with 1:43 left to play. Swecker then hit Paphites on fourth down for 15 yards and a first down. Two plays later, Swingle intercepted an Ittner pass and returned it 10 yards to give Cox the ball with just 56 seconds left to play. Cox ran out the clock to preserve the win, a crowd-thriller uncertain until the final gun.

The Cox defensive unit was led by tackles Bill Span and Bill Summs, guards George Jones and Kevin Rothenberg, defensive ends Brooks Williams and Randy Robinson, linebackers Gary Merrell and Terry Roche, and defensive backs Dave Swingle, Perry Hill, Ray White, and John Zimmerly. All made key tackles throughout the game. Gary Merrell made one particularly notable tackle when he sacked the Patriot quarterback for a big loss on third down and forced a punt one play later.

Randy Robinson was the leading rusher for the Falcons. Bill Ittner completed two of five passes for 30 yards.

Rick Lavrischeff was the leading rusher for the Patriots with 54 yards in eight attempts. Tyrone Little gained 22 yards in a dozen carries, Bill Harris carried twice for 12 yards, and Dave Bumgardner carried four times for 96 yards. Chris Swecker completed 5 of 14 passes for 96 yards and gained 12 yards in eight carries. Chris Paphites was the leading receiver in the game with four receptions for 88 yards. Swecker also passed once to Bill Harris for eight yards.

Jimmy Basnight had an exceptional night punting. The Cox punter booted the ball four times and averaged 44 yards. Barry Boyer punted three times for the Patriots and averaged 23 yards.

Ball-carrier Randy Robinson is stopped on the one-foot line by a stiffened First Colonial defensive unit. The Patriot defense made a successful goal-line stand after Cox had moved to the Patriot's six-yard line with a first down. Larry Holbert has Robinson from behind as Scott Davison (50) and Mike O'Reilly (88) move in from the front to assist.

Unbeaten Pilots Down Cavaliers 38-22

Princess Anne became the fifth victim this season of the unbeaten Norview Pilots last Friday night. Most of the fireworks came in the last half, and when the field cleared, the Pilots were on top 38-22.

Norview and Princess Anne battled to a scoreless tie in the first quarter. In the second period, Allen Rose tossed a 35-yard pass to Gerald Pequeuse for the games first score. Pequeuse ran in the two-point conversion, and Norview took the lead 8-0. That ended the scoring in the first half.

The second half was another story. 52 points were registered on the scoreboard in the final two periods. Unfortunately for Ralph Gahagan's Cavaliers only 22 of the points belonged to them.

Norview's big quarter was the third. The Pilots scored four times, all touchdowns coming on long gainers. Larry Lamb scored following a 20-yard run. Dwight Sweat then galloped 28 yards for a touchdown. Rose then tossed a 30-yard pass to Harry Mosley for another score. Mike Morse then intercepted a Cavalier pass and returned it 50 yards for the fourth touchdown of the period. Three two-point conversions added six points to the tally, and the Pilots had thrown 30 points on the board in the third quarter to give them a huge 38-0 lead.

Princess Anne's big quarter was the fourth. Led by the passing of Lanky Mike Ange, the Cavaliers put 22 points on the scoreboard. Ange completed 10 of 18 passes for 200 yards during the quarter, passing for one score and setting up two others.

Mark Wilcox gave Princess Anne their first points with a four-yard run. Wilcox also ran the ball in for a two-point conversion, and Princess Anne had eight points.

Mike Casey scored from six yards out minutes later. A Mike Ange to Tom Brown pass was good for two points on the conversion, and the Cavaliers added eight more points to narrow Norview's lead to 38-16.

Less than a minute later, Princess Anne scored again. Ange found Brown open and drilled him a 30-yard pass that was good for six points. A two-point conversion try failed, and the Cavaliers ended the quarter and the game with 22 points.

Mike Ange enjoyed his best passing game of the season. Ange completed 12 of the 22 passes he attempted for 220 yards and one touchdown. Mike Casey threw one pass that was grabbed for a 10-yard gain.

Mark Wilcox's one pass attempt did not find a receiver. The Cavaliers were held at 65 net yards rushing, 60 yards of which was churned out by Carl Makley in a dozen carries. Rob Edwards carried seven times for a dozen yards, Mike Casey had 10 yards in three carries, and Mark Wilcox gained five yards in three carries. Ange was caught five times by a rushing Pilot defense and lost 20 yards in the process.

Tom Brown was the leading pass receiver of the night with seven catches for 120 yards. Brown had one reception that went for a touchdown and one that was good for a conversion. Statistically, Norview had 17 first downs to 15 for Princess Anne. Norview led in total offense with 445 yards to Princess Anne's 295. Princess Anne got most of their yardage through the air, 230 yards, while the Pilot ground game was their top gainer with 310 yards.

There will be an Open House at Virginia Beach Junior High on Tuesday, from 7:30 until 9 p.m. for parents of students attending this school.

Maury Edges Scrappy Kempsville 24-16

Maury's Commodores were lucky to escape with their scalp last Friday night on the Chief's reservation. The Commodores breezed into Kempsville last Friday night expecting another sure victory, but a roused band of Kempsville Chief's nearly pulled the upset of the season. It turned out that Maury won its fifth straight two years the streaking Commodores back was held without a touchdown. A week earlier, Woodhouse had score three touchdowns and passed for three others. The Chiefs held him to just four points, the result of two successful conversion runs. Maury led at halftime 9-0. David Jones ran the ball in for the Chief's end zone for their third touchdown of the night. Woodhouse ran into the conversion, and the Commodores increased their lead to 24-8. With just 2:03 showing on the clock, Brian Catlin put the Chief's back in the game with his exciting 29-yard touchdown run. Frank Welch ran in another two-point conversion, and the Chiefs were back within a touchdown, 24-16.

The Chiefs could not get the ball back for another try, and the game ended with Maury the 24-16 victory. Though they lost, the Chiefs had scored more points on the Commodores than any other team this season. Maury had only allowed one touchdown in three of their games, and the fourth Maury win was a shutout. The Kempsville defense had also held the Commodores to one of their lowest scores.

Kempsville finished the game with 8 first downs and 153 yards total offense. Frank Welch only completed one of his three pass attempts, and that resulted in a loss of three yards. Kempsville rushers netted 156 yards on the ground.

Brian Catlin was the leading Kempsville ground-gainer with 87 yards in 13 carries. Bill Dragas carried the ball six times for 52 yards. Frank Welch picked up 17 yards in eight carries.

Kempsville's entire defensive unit played good, hard-nosed football. Although the Chief's allowed 261 yards on the ground, 79 through the air, and 19 first downs, they stopped Maury on the big play. David Campbell and Brad Clemens recovered fumbles to stop Maury drives.

Brian Catlin outraces most of Maury's defenders and scores after an exciting 29-yard run.

previously undefeated Kempville. Cox is also undefeated, but they were tied by Bayside earlier in the season.

Amy Fisher, Tyler Doyle, and Teresa Byrd scored the goals for Cox. Sandy Conkright had two assists.

Willie Townes Wins Moto-Cross

The first annual Silver Trophy Race, delayed for a week because of rain, was held last Sunday at Mid-East. The Virginia Beach riders had a good day in preparation for the $1,550 purse to be given this coming Sunday afternoon. Willie Townes may not have won a race all day, but consistency over three motos gave him the best score and first place in the 100 class. Bill Mayers from Glen Allan, the hot one in this class in winning two of the motos, was involved in a crash in the second moto. He recovered but came in near last, losing too many points to place.

Besides winning the 100 class, Willie earned a third in the 250 event again with consistent riding. Willie tied with Mark Green of Norfolk, winner of the 125 class and third man in the 100st. who, after borrowing money to enter the race, came in fourth in the 100 class. Maybe this week he will earn some money at the richest ever motocross in Virginia.

More silver came to Virginia Beach in the hands of Ken Cromwell for a third in the 100 class, Jimmy Allan also earned a third in the 125 event, and Frank Tehel was the number two man in the open event.

But in May, 1972, the Supreme Court ruled, in a Wisconsin test case, that the state does not have the authority to force Amish parents to send children to high school. It stated that it was the Court's unanimous opinion that the state of Wisconsin was in error in attempting to label three Amish parents as criminals because they refused to send their children to high school.

Miller himself, came here from Welchfield, Ohio, because his father saw no reason for his son to attend public high school. A confrontation with the law resulted, and his father sent him to Princess Anne County to join two other brothers living here.

"But there are many Mennonites who go on to high school now and college too," Miller said. They feel however, that the closer a young person is kept to the home and away from worldliness, the stronger the religion becomes.

Whitehurst To Speak

Rep. G. William Whitehurst will speak at the regular monthly meeting of the Aragonna Civic League, October 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the Aragonna Recreation Civic Center on DeLaura Lane. The public is invited to attend.

Television and radio have no place in the Mennonite household. This brings worldliness directly into the home and makes a permanent impression on young people, it's felt. "But there are some beneficial and good programs," Miller said.

The young people here have no drug problems. Tobacco and the use of alcohol is forbidden. The Mennonites live 24 hours a day by the Bible. They are non-resistors, as the Quakers are. "We do not believe in war," Miller said. "Our men are subject to the draft, but they give alternate service."

Miller's son, Raymond, for instance, served two years in a Florida hospital, working closely with doctors, even in the operating room.

And what of the women? The role of the Mennonite man and woman is clearly defined. The Bible forbids that women should be the head of a household, Miller says. He quotes Titus in part "...women should be discreet, chaste, keepers at home, good, obedient to their husbands, that the word of God be not blasphemed."

Clean Water Campaign Begins

The Nader "Campaign Clean Water" has officially started in Virginia, with the announcement of an organizational meeting to be held in Richmond on Sunday, October 22. The meeting is open to all Virginians who want to work as Campaign Clean Water organizers.

Ralph Nader's office, the Fisherman's Clean Water Action Project, is assisting the campaign by: "providing advice and help in organizing, public education, fund raising and recruiting the best in professional talent to assist citizen volunteers in their fight against water pollution and providing our skills and expertise where needed, now and in the future," according to DeLoss.

"Campaign Clean Water is an intensified action campaign being initiated by Virginia citizens to combat the destruction of Virginia's water resources," according to Gary DeLoss, a lawyer on the Nader staff in Washington.

The group, with advice from DeLoss, has started to raise a seed fund of $2,500, half of which has been donated or pledged to date.

The "seed" fund will be used to finance the operations of an action group of professionals who will help Virginians in the fight against pollution," states DeLoss. "This phase will climax with a statewide fund-raising drive for three weeks between November 27 and December 17."

Mixed Reaction On Use Permit Application

Despite a strong opposition Council Monday approved the construction of 200 motel efficiency units on property between Galilee Episcopal Church and the Cavalier Hotel.

Acquisition Inc., had requested planning 600 motel units on the Pacific Avenue site.

Council's approval carried the stipulation that Acquisition be permitted to apply for additional units, above the approved 200, in the future.

Alfred L. Wood, Linkhorn Park Civic League president, lead the opposition from surrounding residents. Referring to approximately 75 persons who stood-up in Council chambers to signify their opposition, Wood said, "These are all voters of Virginia Beach and they should be recognized."

Other Planning Commission applications approved by Council included those of:

+Terry Corp. to construct 207 townhouses for sale in the Timberlake Planned Unit Development in the Kempville Borough. Terry's original request for 241 townhouses was reduced by the Planning Commission.

+The application of Dr. B.B. Bateman to construct three apartment units near the intersection of Arctic Avenue and 25th Street. The original request for six units was reduced by the Planning Commission.

+The application of Evangel Assembly of God to construct a church in the Pungo Borough, on Princess Anne Road in the area of Gum Bridge Road.

+The application of Likhorn Yacht Sales to operate a marine pleasure craft sales and service in the Linkhorn Shopping Center.

Applications which were denied, in addition to that of Nicholas S. Michael to operate a football parlor in the Bayside Borough, included that of Steel Fishing Pier, Inc., to operate a movie theater at the intersection of Atlantic Avenue and 2nd Street.

City Accepts Bid For Rudee Basin Development

Milton J. Weller's design bid for purchase and development of a portion of city-owned property at Rudee Basin was accepted by City Council Monday. Acceptance of Weller's bid was recommended by Dept. of Economic Development Dir. A. James DeBellis.

DeBellis said Weller had conformed with specifications outlined in the City's Design Bid procedure, and that he has performed satisfactorily in development of a marina presently owned by him.

DeBellis pointed out that in addition to meeting the City's desire to locate a marina at the site, referred to as Parcel B, his proposal included construction of a restaurant to be leased by others, and "... will allow development of this Parcel in the best interest of the City by accommodating and expanding the charter boat fleet."

Mayor Robery B. Cromwell, Jr., informed Council he had received another bid on the property from Cason Barco, adjacent property owner, and questioned whether it could be accepted.

City Manager Roger M. Scott pointed to the submission and opening of bids on Sept. 15 and said he felt acceptance of Barco's bid would be "... illegal after the bid's opening."

DeBellis added the bid procedure stipulated placing a $15,000 deposit with the City as a development good faith no later than Sept. 15.

Vice-Mayor F. Reid Irvin questioned requirement of a performance bond from Weller to assure his full compliance with his proposed development of the property. DeBellis assured him this would be incorporated into contract for sale of the land to Weller.

Council accepted Scott's recommendation to accept Weller's bid on a motion from Councilman Robert H. Callis, Jr., seconded by Councilman Charles W. Gardner.

VIRGINIA BEACH. Where The Living Is Lovely

Convenience Is The Word For Mayfair Apartments

Mayfair, a new apartment complex, just opened its doors the first of October for inspection and rentals. Located on the Virginia Beach side of Newtown Road between Route 64 and Virginia Beach Toll Road, Mayfair Apartments can offer you fast commuting to downtown Norfolk, Virginia Beach and Military Bases. The design is contemporary and set-up to relate a feeling of privacy which is commonly lacking in apartment complexes of this size.

Mayfair's 152 apartments consist of one-bedroom to four-bedroom units for family living with the spaciousness of an individual home but without the irksome responsibilities and expensive maintenance that plague homeowners. You won't have to leave the beautifully landscaped grounds for swimming, tennis and loafing with congenial neighbors on your own patio. And golf, fishing, boating, theater and the beach are just minutes away.

To make sure you have all the time in the world to do the things that make life fun, here are some of the conveniences you get at Mayfair: eat-in kitchen, wall-to-wall carpeting, sound and air conditioning and private patios with electric Char-B-Que. One of the most impressive features of Mayfair is the kitchen facilities. All apartments contain a frost free two-door refrigerator, continuous cleaning oven, dishwasher, garbage disposal and vinyl-covered woodwork and cabinets which wipe clean with a swish. Whether you're a can-opener cook or a master of the culinary arts, you will appreciate this freedom from clean-up drudgery.

Mayfair Apartments were designed by Thomas Morrisette of Dudley, Morrisette, Cedquist & Associates, Architects, and were built by Martin Rosen and Julian Rashkind. Managed by Larasan, of course, the on-site rental manager is Billie Jack Sheppard.

Life is short enough so why not live it to the hilt. You will find everything to make living a joy at Mayfair. Come by...look the complex over...and compare.

The Mother Hubbard would be envious of Mayfair's gourmet cupboard with its work saving kitchen appliances and gay vinyl covered walls and cabinets.

VIRGINIA BEACH — Fishing and Hunting.
The trophies are running at Virginia Beach.

Sport fishing at Virginia Beach is just about anything you want it to be. Four different, exciting types of game fishing all in one place, Virginia Beach.

Charter a trip into the Atlantic's fabulous Gulf Stream. Record catches wait along the continental shelf. Or hide in the reefs and sunken ships.

Virginia's inshore waters boast the all-time, all-tackle sport fishing records for Channel Bass, Cobia and Black Drum.

Stay on land and fish from a pier. Or stand in the foaming surf and cast for gamesters running just off shore.

Go crabbing in the Chesapeake Bay, famous for being one of the world's largest fish traps. Bring in a record catch where fish enter and leave the Bay. At Virginia Beach.

Inland, Virginia Beach's Back Bay region and lakes and streams are havens for all kinds of freshwater game fish.

For sport fishing at its best, saltwater or fresh, it's hard to find a better location than Virginia Beach.

Fowl hunters come by the thousands every year to Virginia Beach's Back Bay areas. Where game birds come in such numbers they actually cover the bays at times.

Back Bay is located in the mainstream of the famed Atlantic Flyway. And is a stopping off and wintering place for migrating birds. Blinds are available from local guides that offer some of the best fowl hunting spots in the world.

Test your skills against game birds like Canada geese, mallards, green-winged teal, black ducks, gadwalls, pintails, American widgeons, scaups, canvasbacks, ruddy ducks, coots and redheads.

Back Bay marshes also provide plenty of sporting excitement for fox, opossum, raccoon and rabbit hunters.

BY DEE RAE FERGUSON

Dave Miller Realty, located at 1789 Virginia Beach Blvd., was founded by Dave Miller in 1955 and dealt primarily with residential sales and rentals.

"Now there's a get-back-to-the-land trend," Dave Miller Jr. said, "and that's why we have the highest rural gross sales in the area."

He contended that the only growth for Virginia Beach is in the southern rural areas. This demand for rural property is essentially for speculative and residential purposes.

This rural trend doesn't appear to have any consecutive traits according to age, occupation or income, but one common characteristic seems to be ownership of a horse.

"Five to 10 acre parcel is the magic phrase. This size lot gives the owner plenty of land to tend and love his horse on his own property. The buyer's demand for rural property has appreciated its value at least 25 per cent in the last year," stated Nelson P. Brock.

Brock is the rural specialist associated with Dave Miller Realty. Four brokers help make up the sales staff where the average real estate experience exceeds 10 years.

When asked about foreseeing any governmental influence in the real estate field, Dave Miller Jr. said that after the election there might be an increase in the mortgage rate. The monies would be made as readily available as they

The commercial move-to-the-land trend, Dave Miller Jr. said, "and that's why we have the highest rural gross sales in the area."

The effects posed by the military in Virginia Beach on real estate caused Miller to comment, "There's a tightening of transfer money. Less transfers coming in and going out means less available homes on the resale market because of the mobility. Virginia Beach now has only a 10 per cent turnover rate. A good mobile market has been a 30 to 40 per cent rate. I think that by spring there will be an increase in the number of transfers, then mobility will return to the resale market."

Dave Miller Realty has always been active in its industry. Dave Miller served two consecutive terms as president of the Virginia Beach Board of Realtors as well as holding various other offices and being on the board of directors.

Members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, Virginia Association of Realtors and the Virginia Beach Board of Realtors. Dave Miller Realty also is associated with the Realtors Multiple Listing Service of Tidewater, Inc.

Timbuctoo or Kalamazzo?

For the third month this year, Womble Realty, Inc., of Virginia Beach, has placed among the top ten real estate firms in the country, members of Inter-City Relocation Service, in number of referrals produced. I.C.R.S., a national organization of Realtors, who refer "transferred families" across the state or cross-country, has reported a 39 per cent increase in business in 1972.

"Whether a family is moving to San Diego, California, Honolulu, Hawaii, Jacksonville, Florida, or Kalamazoo, Michigan, we either have a member or correspondent available to provide advance information," said Jack Robertson, Vice President of Womble Realty. "In fact, we recently referred a family to our member in London, England, and helped a doctor from Australia find a temporary home in Charlottesville so he could bring his family while he took advanced studies. What we do," said Robertson, "is provide advance information on housing, schools, shopping, auto licenses, voting requirements, taxes, etc. We also find temporary housing." All of this service is designed to ease the problems of relocation for the military or civilian family.

By using the direct dial long distance telephone service, we can get the transferee information in one day.

It must work because the service gets bigger each year.

Virginia Photographers In Show

Works by 15 Virginia photographers, both color and black and white, are currently being exhibited at the Village Gallery in College Park.

The exhibit will be open to the public, at no charge, through Nov. 6.

Many of the 140 prints are for sale, either framed or unframed. Prices range from $20 to $700, with the average prices around $30.

The works represent a cross-section of what is being produced by Virginia photographers. Most of the artists are either teaching in the photographic medium or in some other area of the visual arts.

Others are "nonprofessional" in the sense that their basic livelihood is not derived through teaching or the sale of prints.

A THREE-DIMENSIONAL work by Dale Quarterman of Richmond sells for $700 and is one of the highest-priced pieces at the Village Gallery photographers' exhibit.

"Man of La Mancha," the musical story of Don Quixote, has been chosen by the Tidewater Dinner Theatre as the show to initiate the theatre's opening on Nov. 8.

Alan Sader is owner and manager of the new dinner theatre at 6270 Northampton Blvd. Formerly of Raleigh, N.C., he was manager and part owner of the Village Dinner Theatre there for four years. He has been in the dinner theatre business some seven years in Florida, Georgia, and North and South Carolina.

"Man of La Mancha" will be directed by Jay Huguley, who this summer worked with Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Paul Green, as director of Green's outdoor drama "Wilderness Road" in Berea, Ky.

Huguley, a graduate of the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts, London, has over 300 shows to his directing credit.

He has cast "Man of La Mancha" out of New York with the exception of a few minor roles.

Shows in consideration for future production at the Tidewater Dinner Theatre include "Promises, Promises," "Company," "Show Boat," "Step the World," "Twigs," and "Prisoner of Second Avenue," subject to release by the publishing companies.

Head chef for the new operation is John Sheehan, a chef the last three years at the Metropolitan Museum of Park Avenue, New York.

Bookings for holiday season parties at the theatre can now be made through Joe Worrall, group sales representative. Worrall, recently retired lieutenant commander, USN, has lived in the Virginia Beach area for nine years. He has been active in local Boy Scout and Cub Scout organizations and in community theatre.

A Poet Makes Music With Words

By DONNA HENDRICK

"The music of language has always turned me on," says Bruce Guernsey, who is poet-in-residence at Virginia Wesleyan College.

"Poetry is a way of making me live my life a little more fully. It makes me more aware."

Guernsey is a poet, but he's also involved in many other things in the creative arts. He teaches creative writing at the college, edits a poetry magazine, writes a poetry review column for the Virginian-Pilot, prints his own books, broadcasts and postcards, gives readings all over the country and is soon coming out with a new full-length book of poems.

Guernsey discussed his work at his home recently as his attractive wife Janet kept their active baby, 10-month-old Brendon, occupied in the other room.

They have a lovely blue house with a white picket fence outside and walls decorated with Barclay Shanks paintings inside. (Shanks is associate professor of art at Virginia Wesleyan.)

"Why do I write poetry?" Guernsey pondered the question. "You certainly don't write it for the money. I write it because I like to. It has a lot to do with a love of words and a desire to see how they work."

Guernsey is now in his second year of teaching at Virginia Wesleyan. He started a new course there, "The Experience of Poetry," which he described as "really a poetry appreciation course." The course is a requirement for an English major.

He is also editing the annual Inlet magazine, published in conjunction with the college's Creative Arts Festival in the spring.

"We solicit work from well-known writers around the country," Guernsey explained,

"and we also solicit student works. The only qualification for Inlet is excellence."

Last year, Guernsey started a Visiting Poets series at the college. This year, Dabney Shemantah magazine and the author of two collections of poetry, was the first to visit the college. He read selections from his two books, "Diving Bell" and "A Particular Place" at the college on Oct. 5.

Guernsey is well qualified to teach poetry at the college. He holds two masters degrees, one from the University of Virginia and the other from Johns Hopkins University.

He taught previously at the College of William and Mary and at Johns Hopkins. He graduated from Colgate in 1966 with honors in English.

Incidentally, his wife Janet is a nurse and is planning on going back to work as soon as Brendon is a little older. She worked at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore in pediatrics and at Eastern State Hospital in Williamsburg in mental health. She holds BS and RN degrees from Cornell University.

Guernsey has published three slim books of poetry, "Shaded Flesh," "Hour of the Wolf" and "Biological Clock." Janet designed the cover for "Hour of the Wolf" and Bruce printed it on his hand press which he bought in England.

Hand printing is very time consuming and Guernsey said he does not plan to print any more of his own books, although he is still printing postcards and brochures with poems.

Guernsey's press is on the second floor of his house in what he calls the "loft." The press is very small, about 24 inches by 12 inches and weighs 31 pounds with no type in it.

He sets the type between pieces of wood called "furniture." The type is then locked in, the paper is put on top, the rollers are inked and a round ink plate turns. After this fairly complicated procedure, an original printed page appears.

"It's really only a hobby with me," Guernsey said, "although I am starting this postcard series with poems on the cards instead of pictures."

In 1973, Guernsey's first full-length book of poems, "Lost Wealth," will be published by Basiliak Press in New York.

"They have a very nice poetry series," Guernsey said. "I sent them the manuscript and this summer they called me up and said they had accepted the book."

Guernsey also recently attended, for the second year in a row, the Breadloaf Writer's Conference in Middlebury, Vt. He won a scholarship to attend the conference, which is considered the most prestigious in the country.

"It was founded by Robert Frost," Guernsey said, "and what it is is a group of writers getting together and talking about their craft. They include writers of poetry, fiction, non-fiction and children's literature."

"It is the oldest and best-known conference and you must be nominated by another writer to attend. This year, I was nominated by William Meredith, who is one of the best-known contemporary poets in the country."

"In a sense, you're paid to go. They pay all expenses except transportation. So I took the summer off in Vermont and got to indulge in a lot of trout fishing which is one of my great loves."

Guernsey described how he goes about writing a poem, which is considered one of the most difficult forms of writing. "You start with an image or a relationship you have never seen before. Something you see or feel sets off patterns of words."

"For example, 'Fresh Daily' (included in his book, "Hour of the Wolf"), came out of a TV news show. I saw bodies of dead from Vietnam in those plastic bags. It just opened me. It swished and swirled around. Then it struck me. It's an American way of the novel things about American life is white people. The three original relationships are one. Into the work comes.

"That poem that book are pretty neat," Guernsey said. "I tried to read the poem. Sometimes I don't get the idea of my second poem are about it. They're easy to read."

As an example of his own domesticity in poetry, Guernsey wrote the following previously unpublished poem:

THE SWIM

PRINTING BY HAND

"First you put the type in," Bruce says, demonstrating how his hand press works (left). The pieces of wood holding the type in place are called "furniture." Then Bruce closes the press (right) and uses a little "tamp" to make a clear impression. He has printed one book of his own on the hand press but has abandoned it except as a hobby because the hand printing method is both time consuming and tedious.

Disney Characters On Parade

If you saw "Disney on Parade" last year at Scope, you have an idea of what's in store this year when the show comes in town Oct. 24 to 29 for 10 performances.

This year's show is entirely new, different. Last year when Scope first opened, you'll remember your favorite Disney characters came to life to recreate special Disney stories singing and dancing on stage. This year they're back again, but with entirely new stories. Highlighting "Disney on Parade" this year will be Winnie the Pooh, the Aristocats, Sleeping Beauty, and the Three Caballeros — that means Donald Duck and his friends traveling south of the border.

Tickets to the big show are available at the Scope box office and all Ticketron outlets. Evening performances will start at 7:30, plus five weekend matinees, Friday through Sunday.

Knowledge gained from two years' tour before millions of people has led to a careful blend of Disney music with magic on stage.

To establish the story, each of the production numbers opens with a specially created brief film segment on a large screen above the storybook castle which fills one end of the immense stage. Then the story comes to life with a cast of nearly 100 actors, actresses and specialty performers.

At the show's opening, all the Disney characters walk right into the audience to shake hands with children and adults. The star of the show, Mickey Mouse, introduces a musical review which includes comical Clarabelle Cow, Horace Horse-collar and Goofy in a ballet for three.

Donald Duck dons his Liberace-type outfit to accompany a famous opera star, Clara Cluck, in a hilarious piano-singing solo.

The entire story of "Sleeping Beauty" is recreated, complete with the evil witch Maleficent, whose curse causes the princess to slumber until awakened by "love's first kiss." The entire cast joins the happy couple and the courtiers in a triumphant waltz adapted from the Tchaikovsky ballet.

Goofy changes the pace with an encounter with his favorite partner in comedy, Herbie the Love Bug. And this year, the pair is suggested by Herbie's lovely wife, the petite Gloria, and their spitting offspring, Junior, complete with Muskeeter ears and all.

"The Aristocats," a memorable although recent Disney tribute to the Gay 90s life of Paris, comes to life through the eyes of Duchess the cat, her three kittens, and O'Malley, a scruffy alley cat who has never been

Thank the Park authorities for making possible this unique experience. Support it, please. Buy one, Buy Two, Buy Three and Buy Four.

"Disney on Parade" has become world-famous for a very special ending called Small World. This colorful and rhythmic finale somehow spins magic that attracts boys, girls, and their parents from the audience right to the stage as the show ends.

PLUTO IS ONE of the "Disney on Parade" characters appearing at Scope for 10 performances beginning Oct. 21.

Norfolk Theatre Center Has New Children's Play

The Norfolk Theatre Center will present a new children's play, "Skits," this Sunday, Oct. 22, in two performances, 2 and 3:30 p.m., under the direction of Montague Gorman.

The show consists of a three-part series of vignettes, including the Mad Tea Party from "Alice in Wonderland," the story of the Cowardly Dragon and a trip into the charm of American folklore.

The show is designed for audience participation and children in the audience will be performing particular roles to perform. Hugh Bergerson and Ed Jones, members of the center's repertory company, and newcomers Camellie Jennings and P.J. Smith are featured.

Admission to "Skits" is 50 cents for children and $1 for adults (over 12). Reservations may be made in advance or tickets may be picked up at the Norfolk Theatre Center, 245 W. Eisenhower Street.

The program is also available for leasing. Birthday party bookings may be made for the performance, too. Arrangements for bookings or tour shows may be made by calling the theatre box office, 627-1234.

'1776' Now On

The theatre is at Marine High School in Portsmouth, Elmhurst Lane near Chickadee Road.

The cast includes Gordon Creecy as John Adams, Tom Stacey as Ben Franklin, Jim Davis as Edward Rutledge, Ray Waller as John Dickinson, Lu Ann Nelson as Martha Jefferson, Lucille Donahy as Abigail Adams and Larry Bashford as Thomas Jefferson.

Big Band Sound Returns Sunday

Frankie Carle, Bob Crosby, Freddy Martin and Margaret Whiting are the stars of "Big Band Cavalcade," the Columbia Artists Theatrical Corp. production in which each star will recreate in person his greatest hits during an evening of musical memories at the Chrysler Hall at Scope on Sunday, Oct. 22, at 7:30 p.m.

Such memorable sounds as Martin's "Tonight We Love," Crosby's "Big Noise From Winnetka," Carle's "Sunrise Serenade" and Miss Whiting's "Moonlight in Vermont" will characterize the nostalgic mood of the show.

The stars will be supported by 15 musicians recruited from the ranks of their original bands for this 12-week national tour. Each leader will take his turn conducting this aggregation through a generous sampling of his own modern classics.

Martin will conduct the production's finale, a montage of the memorable hits of such other great bands as Benny Goodman, Glen Gray, Tommy Dorsey, Harry James and Woody Herman.

Meanwhile, Miss Whiting's contribution to this revival of big band sounds will be selected from among the dozen hits which earned her gold records.

The "Big Band Cavalcade" Production was inspired by Martin. He suggested that the current resurgence of national interest in recordings of the 30s and 40s dictated in-person performances of the big band sounds, as well. Columbia agreed and plans for a national tour followed.

The subsequent choices of Carle, Crosby and Miss Whiting to join Martin resulted when Columbia determined that this line-up would offer a comprehensive view of the styles of the period.

Martin, who became the leader of his first big band in 1931, is the veteran of the line-up. Through all of the trends in popular music styles since then, Martin's very special brand of music has never been out of demand.

Often called the most melodic of the sweet bands, Martin's crew produced such lasting hits as "Warsaw Concerto," "Why Don't We Do This More Often" and the "Hut Sut Song," all featuring the leader's "silver-tone" saxophone.

Carle, although he began his professional musical career in 1918, did not lead his first big time aggregation until 1944 when he left his featured piano spot with the Horace Heidt band to go out on his own.

He had long been recognized as a distinctive stylist and composer and launched his new aggregation with his own composition "Sunrise Serenade" as its theme.

Crosby, after serving his apprenticeship as vocalist with such leaders as Anson Weeks and the Dorsey Brothers, took over leadership of the old Ben Pollack Band in 1935. The Crosby crew made its lasting imprint on the big band era with its unique Dixieland Swing style which brought fame, as well, to the band within the band, the Bob-Cats.

Miss Whiting can claim the title of the youngest of the big band singers. She made her professional debut at the age of 12 with Gordon Jenkins. Her extraordinary career has continued uninterrupted, ranging from the record charts, to nightclubs, television and the legitimate stage. Last season, for example, she starred in the off-Broadway production "Do It Again" in which she sang a panorama of George Gershwin melodies.

All of the stars of the "Big Band Cavalcade" have, in fact, held their own in the entertainment spotlight through the years since their initial successes. Martin is still in demand for tours and special performances. Carle records regularly for RCA-Victor, and Crosby continues to display his talents in television and on film. Tickets for the "Big Band Cavalcade" concert are $6.50 and $5.50. The Scope box office is open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

"DAME FOLLY SPEAKS" is an original wood engraving by Fritz Eichenberg. It is one of the many original graphic art works on exhibit at Chesapeake College Oct. 25.

Original Graphic Art In Chesapeake Exhibit

Chesapeake College will sponsor an exhibit and sale of original graphic art by contemporary and master artists Wednesday, Oct. 25.

The exhibit, on display from 1 to 8 p.m., was arranged by the Ferdinand Roten Galleries of Baltimore.

Included in the exhibit will be more than 1,000 etchings, lithographs and woodcuts by artists such as Picasso, Chagall, Miro, Dali, Goya, Renoir, Koltwitz and many others, including contemporary American, European and Japanese printmakers.

Prices start at $5, with the majority priced under $100. Chesapeake College is at 1428 Cedar Road, Chesapeake.

Norfolk Little Theatre Presents 'Dames At Sea'

The Little Theatre of Norfolk opened its 47th season Oct. 13 with "Dames at Sea," a musical which received the Outer Circle Critics award as best musical of the year. It will run through Oct. 21.

The second play of the season will be "Speaking of Murder," Dec. 8-16, a sinister but fun whodunit.

"You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running," one of the most successful comedies in Broadway history, will be presented Feb. 9-17.

A picture of modern urban life, "The Cocktail Parly," will be the fourth play of the season, April 6-14.

Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire" closes the season, running May 18-26.

A Romp Through Campsville

Ruby Keeler, happily wholesome and appealing, appearing her way into the hearts of Mr. and Mrs. America; Dick Powell, boyish and appealing in his sailor suit, singing his way into stardom; Amy Blondell, the sidekick who brings the two wholesome kids together in the Broadway jungle, ventriloquing her way into the stereotyped character that inevitably is a musical catalyst...it's all there for those who remember the lavish movies of the 1930's and for those who just enjoy a good romp through campville.

The show is "Dames at Sea," a production that lives up to its originator, the beloved Keeler-Powell-Blondell flicks of yesteryear. It's all there...the music, the dancing, the pathos, the fun, the color, the sparkle, the memories...in the Little Theatre of Norfolk's opening show of its 46th season. And it's just too good to miss.

The technical end of the show, directed by Ernie Johns, is a treat in itself. The stage changes (an excellent set) to a Navy battleship, each converting to various production numbers by use of suspended drops. A terrific piece of work, most effective to the overall show.

It is, in fact, the staging by Paul Dicklin, musical direction by Jeffery Parker and choreography by JoAnna Smetsler that brings "Dames" so close to professionalism. Their combined talents have created a fine product.

The singing and dancing in this show is anything but simple. It's styled after those complicated musicals of 30 to 40 years ago when PRODUCTION was all by golly that's what it has, one production number right after another. It's fun for the audience but it surely must be challenging to the cast.

They handle it well, however, and if the acting isn't quite up to the song and dance routines, well what does it matter anyway? It's all for fun. And that's what it is.

Hugh Copeland as the song writing "Dick" and Nina Alison Hindlin as the wise-cracking Joan are outstanding in their roles, although Copeland, as well as his sailor buddy "Lucky" (Cary Huff) are far too made up to be believable. Copeland and Huff can belt out a good song and cut a wicked tap step.

Miss Hindlin has a good role but her own interpretation lends the necessary touch of sensitivity so often overlooked in creating this type of character. And she does equally well in her musical routines.

This show is fun and one that any age group would enjoy. And the NLT has done an excellent job of putting it together. "Dames" will continue through Saturday.—Ruby Jean Phillips

Pleasure House

Creek Dredging Questioned

The Virginia Beach League of Women Voters has questioned the City's renewed plans to dredge Pleasure House Creek...

The project has been planned for more than five years, but was never undertaken, and this year was incorporated into the City's Master Dredging Program...

Questions raised concerned the cost to the City, what property would be used to deposit dredged material, what the benefits would be to the City and its citizens, if this would create another potential flood zone...

The original permit for the project issued to the City by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers June 23, 1967, has been extended to December 31, 1973...

Last May the City requested enlarging of the area planned for dredging to 10,000 feet long, 100 feet wide, 10 feet deep, and removal of 1,100,000 cubic yards of material. The revision was based on original dredging being "inadequate for present requirements"...

Community Services Director W. W. Fleming, Jr., said the selection of McLeskey's property as a disposal area was in line with agreements to replace sand removed from the property in recent resort beach replenishment. Fleming also expressed doubt if the dredging would ever take place. He described present moves as "just to protect the permit"...

City Engineer A.W. Berger said the original dredging permit was never exercised due to more pressing projects requiring the use of city dredging equipment. He added, "The project was basically intended to provide a waterway to Shore Drive," and to provide all property owners with access to navigable waters. As to the time of requesting an enlargement of the area involved, Berger indicated this was based on the City's review of a number of future projects which might be affected by the Wetlands Legislation.

An Army Corps of Engineers public notice seeking sentiments for or against the proposed project makes note of the disposal area being privately owned and contemplated for future development for residential housing. The Army has set November 20, as deadline for submission of comments on the project.

Noreen Chase, senior at Bayside High School, waits in pensive anticipation for Homecoming Queen announcements at Friday night's game with Maury and was overwhelmed with surprise and joy as her name rang out through the crowds.

Zoning Maps On Display

Planners Concerned With Orderly Development Of City

Creation of a central business district for Virginia Beach, protection of single family residential areas, attempts to assuage safeguards against an overabundance of multi-family dwellings, and an expansion of industrial and commercial development are reflected in the City's new zoning maps.

The maps are on display for public inspection in the City Administration Building in the Princess Anne Courthouse Annex, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays. They will remain on display for a month then be subjected to a public hearing about mid-November.

Planning Director Charles C. Carrington says, "The maps are an effort to rezone the city to reflect the zoning districts as outlined in the new Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance." Carrington added, "We hope to correct any mistakes we've made within two weeks. During this period the public is invited to advise the Planning Department of any changes they might desire in the maps." He also indicated the zoning maps reflect public desires obtained through workshop sessions on the CZO text.

In reviewing the maps City Planner Dave Forkner said the maps generally follow proposals outlined in the recently compiled Land Use Plans. "Present zoning is 95 per-cent of the residential districts," Forkner continued, "is not affected. These will merely involve a conversion to different terms."

Forkner pointed out, "It appears to us the Pembroke area is taking on a constitution of a 'downtown' area." A major commercial district, business-financial-trade-cultural center, is planned in the Pembroke area. This will hopefully include a large variety of retail outlets connected by enclosed pedestrian malls. Future plans also include linking Mt. Trashmore, with its amphitheatre and recreational facilities, with this commercial center by similar malls. "These moves," Forkner said, "will place Virginia Beach in a competitive position with other surrounding cities."

In explaining controls over future apartment development in the city, Forkner said, "The number of allowable apartments will be determined will be determined by the LUI (Land Use Intensity) Scale relating to the amount of land usable as living space." This will be determined after subtracting sufficient land for such uses as open space, parking, etc., from overall lot size.

This LUI application according to Forkner, "will make it economically unfeasible to build any apartments in districts zoned below A-1. It will also stop development of residential land for apartments in single family areas," Forkner added, "and will require larger lot sizes for high

Community College Needs Help

By DONNA HENDRICK Virginia Beach's Tidewater Community College needs help. The college will be getting a new, permanent campus in 1974, but right now, the physical look of the school is fairly grim. The college is temporarily housed in barracks at Camp Pendleton until the new campus near Green Run is ready.

building itself isn't any worse than the other buildings here," Dr. Kerr said. "We bought some used furniture from the student activities fund and we have a couple of pingpong tables." Dr. Kerr said that the lounge needs easy chairs and curtains and that the college had contacted some local furniture dealers for donations, with no results.

The heating system is not too good because the buildings aren't insulated. I guess you could say we're roughing it out here." Even though the college environment is drab, Dr. Kerr said the students and faculty are not too concerned about the physical situation. "I think we're doing very well, all things considered," he said. "Everybody understands that this is just the way it is until we get situated in the new buildings."

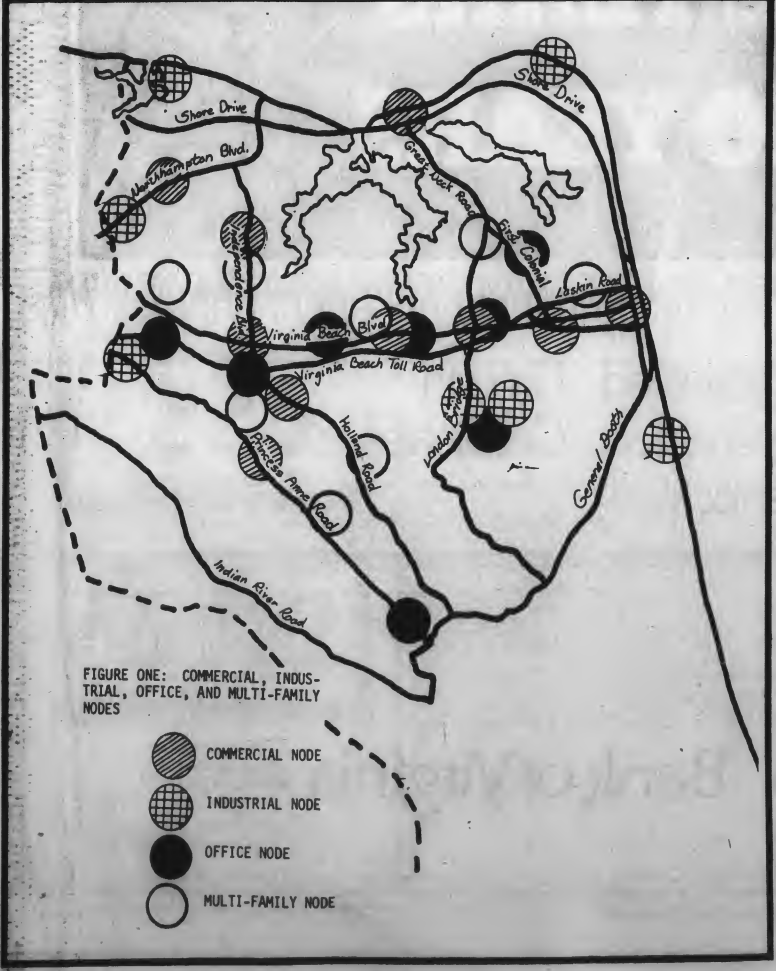

Dr. Kerr said that the lounge is the one building the students are most interested in improving. "We would like to improve on it very much," he said. "The students are really doing it themselves right now. They've even brought some things from home." The school is interested in donations of furniture for the student lounge. Donations should be made to the Student Government Association. "Anything that's donated should be given to that association and not the college itself," he said, "since giving a gift to the college is giving a gift to the state and it increases the paperwork so much."

According to Dr. Timothy Kerr, dean of student services, the area needing the most help is the student lounge, where the students spend their leisure and recreation time between and after classes. "We have very little furniture in the lounge, although the

The classrooms are in better shape than the lounge, according to Dr. Kerr, although he described the look of the buildings as "Spartan." "The classrooms are well lighted," he said, "and the exteriors have been painted."

"I think our greatest problem was that we didn't anticipate the enrollment. It has gone up more than expected. At one time, we wanted to cut it off at 1,500 but then we thought we wouldn't really be serving the community if we did that. We've just expanded a little faster than we had originally thought."

Anyone wishing to donate any items of furniture or other accessories for the student lounge may call Dr. Kerr at the college, 428-0055.

J.P.'s Moving Toward Uniformity

The Virginia Association of Justices of the Peace is attempting to create a uniform method of operation of all J.P.'s in the State, marking the first such move in the 18 year history of the J.P. system in Virginia.

The action would be accomplished through the creation of a manual to serve as a master training guide and outline of responsibilities and operational procedures for all J.P.'s. The move coincides with future intentions to elevate J.P.'s to the position of Magistrates, which will lessen the work-load on courts by empowering Magistrates to act as judges in certain cases which presently require court procedures.

At the suggestion of Richard N. Harris, Director, Division of Justice and Crime Prevention, J.P.'s from throughout the State were appointed to a committee to draft the manual text. Entitled the Committee for the Continuing Education for the Justices of the Peace of Virginia its membership is comprised of A. L. Rodgers, Chief J. P., Virginia Beach; Thurman Pierce, Norfolk; F. M. Barron, Norfolk; Joe Davis, Newport News; Milton Alexander, Fairfax; Ben S. Lane, Richmond; David Lyon III, Petersburg; M. L. Partlow, Loudoun County; D. D. Hudson, Albemarle County; and Floyd H. Hayes, Nansemond County. A manual which Rodgers compiled sometime ago which has served as a guide for J.P.'s of Virginia Beach, and a similar document by Alexander, have been chosen to serve as guides in developing the new material. Douglas Landsford, Coordinator of Courts of the Judicial Conference of Virginia, has been named to coordinate creation of the manual into a finalized form. While the regulatory status of the manual will be sanctioned at the State level, localities will be given options of revision to meet circumstances unique to them. It is anticipated the manual will be ready for use by next April.

Possible Extortion

The FBI is conducting an investigation in connection with a reported extortion attempt against banker Earl Slatum, president of the Atlantic Avenue branch office, Virginia National Bank. The incident allegedly occurred last Friday. Police and FBI officials have declined to discuss any details of the incident. When asked to verify the report an FBI spokesman said, "An investigation is being conducted to determine any violation of federal law, namely the Hobbs Act concerning extortion." Authorities have verified no one was injured in the incident.

BARBARA CRUTSINGER, 17-year-old senior at Cox High School, was named Homecoming Queen Friday night during half-time activities. The happy queen saw her team defeat the Kempsville Chiefs 3-6 after she was crowned.

Mayor Cromwell is joined in reviewing his Guidance Week proclamation by area educators (l. to r.) Mrs. F.C. Hudgins, Mrs. Ruth Swann, J.V. McGowan, and Mrs. S.L. Gray.

Public Services Available

Virginia Beach is participating in the observance of National Career Guidance Week, in an effort to acquaint the public with services available to assist them in choosing an occupation of their liking.

The program is sponsored by the National Vocational Guidance Association.

Major Robert B. Cromwell, Jr., urged all citizens to become "...better acquainted with services offered by professional counselors and the extent to which each citizen can benefit."

HRPGA President James V. McGowan, who is also Coordinator of Admissions and Records at Virginia Beach Campus Tidewater Community College, said that organization, "...is attempting to develop a local awareness of the need for career guidance and of the availability of trained counselors in the public schools,

Suspect Apprehended

Police Officer William Goodson has been credited with the apprehension of a suspect Monday night, shortly after the reported armed robbery of the Holiday Inn, 25th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

The suspect has been identified as Jeffrey Whit Mack, 22, Woodland Ave., Norfolk, Va. Police say he has also been charged with recent armed robberies at the Econo Motel, Northampton Boulevard, and Lafayette Electronics, Atlantic Avenue.

Goodson witnessed the auto pass him at the 22nd Street entrance to the Expressway, gave pursuit. The auto wrecked at the Lynnhaven Road exit of the Expressway, where Goodson took the suspect into custody.

Officials say a 44-calibre Magnum and the motel cash receipts were recovered from the wrecked auto.

Mack was ordered held in lieu of bond pending legal proceedings.

Fairytale Fun For The Family

Childhood's favorite Disney characters came to life Tuesday night at Scope as "Disney on Parade" presented a professional, polished musical show which delighted the youngsters in the audience.

"Disney on Parade" is a show designed for the whole family. Some parts of it may be too slapstick for the adults, but the kids will love it. Other parts may be too mushily romantic for the very young, but their parents can enjoy it.

It's all music and comedy and dancing and fairytale happily ever after, as it should be.

Walt Disney was the personification of wholesome entertainment and "Disney on Parade" lives up to his belief in family fun.

Everybody was there—Donald Duck, Pluto, Goofy, Winnie the Pooh, the Aristocats, Sleeping Beauty, Prince Charming, Mickey Mouse, et al. The huge cast performed a 2 1/2-hour show full of lively action. There's never a dull or unplanned moment.

Watching the show, one gets the feeling that it's an ice show without the ice. The dancers are so polished and smooth that they seem to glide across the floor.

Insurance Association Honored

The Norfolk Association of Independent Insurance Agents was recently honored by the National Association by the presentation of the Walter H. Bennett Memorial Award for outstanding achievement as a local board.

Ralph P. Hamilton, President, accepted the award on behalf of the Norfolk Association. The award is the top award made by the National Association and is sponsored by the New Orleans Insurance Exchange. It was established in 1967 to honor the memory of the former General Counsel and Executive Secretary of the National Association. It is presented to the local board which has been outstanding in its achievement during any one year, or on the basis of continuous maintenance of high standards over a period of years.

The Norfolk Board was presented the award in recognition of outstanding service in the areas of public relations, advertising, education, legislation and civic contributions. Included in this are over three years work on the Tidewater Burglary Prevention Program, which featured voluntary inspectors calling on hundreds of merchants to encourage them to strengthen security measures; sponsoring TV programs each year to educate merchants and the general public on the need for security; expanding the program State-wide in 1972 and instituting Virginia Burglary Prevention Week; adding Operation I.D., a continuing program in which the Norfolk Association bought 100 electric engravers to lend to the Norfolk, Portsmouth, Chesapeake and Virginia Beach Police Departments, who, in turn, lend them to individuals for use in engraving identification on valuable possessions. This program was backed by promotion on TV, radio, newspapers, bus cards and billboards.

Another program sponsored by the Norfolk Association is Safety City where traffic and home safety are taught to school children. A third program presented TV discussions by top authorities on the causes of insurance costs. Finally, the Association has been outstanding in its support of the Norfolk Fire Department, Fire Prevention Bureau. In December 1971 the Association saluted the Norfolk Fire Department's 100th anniversary by sponsoring a TV documentary on the history of the fire department.

The Norfolk Association of Independent Insurance Agents has been the recipient of the B.P. Carter cup for 1970, 1971, and 1972.

WHEN YOU SELECT ELECTRIC HEAT, YOU MAKE LIFE A LITTLE MORE COMFORTABLE. FOR EVERYONE.

Not just your family. Though with clean, quiet, even, odorless electric heat, they're bound to be blissfully comfortable.

Everyone. Because the more electricity we provide in the wintertime, the closer we come to balancing the demand for power. And the closer we come to balancing the demand for power year 'round, the better we're able to keep your rates down.

In summer, you see, when everybody's air conditioner is going like mad, the demand for electricity is at its peak. And we must have enough turbines and generators to meet all that demand.

Then, when winter rolls around, the demand for power drops. About 17%. Which means that a lot of that expensive equipment isn't being fully used.

But we still have to maintain that equipment, pay the operators, and pay the interest on the money we borrowed to buy it. And since our customers are our one and only source of operating income, you wind up paying for these things. And paying higher summer rates if you are a high summer-use customer.

That's why we encourage people to select electric heat through advertising. To help balance the demand for power. To keep that equipment busy all year 'round. To see that it pays for itself.

So next time you hear that someone's chosen electric heat, give him a loud and lusty cheer. He's doing your pocketbook a favor.

Not to mention his family.

IF MORE PEOPLE USED ELECTRIC HEAT, IT WOULD HELP KEEP RATES DOWN YEAR 'ROUND.

League Seeks Answers For Voters

To the Editor:
The League of Women Voters has presented three questions to each of the Senatorial candidates for their consideration and reply: We do this for all candidates in each election to help inform the electorate on a non-partisan basis.
If it is possible and if you are interested, would you publish the questions and answers in the Virginia Beach Sun before election day? We feel that this is the best way for us to reach the public in our city.
We thank you for any help you can give us in this matter.
Sincerely,
Mrs. John A. Stansley
Voters Service Chairman

I had some friends over for Pepsi the other day. All were a little young for anything stronger—they're 7 and 10 years old.
But, as with any group while drinking, the conversation turned to politics.
And the hottest thing on the political scene is the presidential race.
"Who's going to win?" I quired.
"The man who's in there now—Nixon I think," quipped Robert, a spry little 10-year-old, between mouthfuls of potato chips.
That was the consensus of opinion.
"Why Nixon?" I asked between gulps of Pepsi.
"Nixon—he's going to win," Robert replied with a little sif-fening.
"I'm for McGovern—I like the underdog," quipped Bubba, who was working on his second Pepsi.
"Nixon, he's going to end the war," stated Robert in a serious tone of voice.
I put my two cents in and explained that both men wanted to end the war.
"Really huh," Bubba had switched to potato chips and could't talk very well. "Well what's the difference between them?"
I told them Nixon was working for Welfare reforms—but then so was McGovern.
And that McGovern wants the economy to improve—but then so does Nixon.
"I don't see much difference," stated Bubba.
The way I explained it there wasn't.
So I explained it's like football: There are two schools, one team passes the ball to gain ground and the other team runs the ball.
"Yeah, but if you pass the ball you have too many chances to lose to the other team and if you run it it takes too long to get to the goal," answered Bubba, who plays midget football.
I had to bow to that remark.
"Which guy passes and which one runs?" questioned John.
I had to think about that one.
I explained that, I thought, Nixon probably ran the ball and McGovern probably passed it.
"I want a guy who runs and passes the football—my coach says that's the way to win," stated Robert, who was hinting towards Nixon and going for his second Pepsi.
I bowed on that remark, too.
Everybody jumped on that bandwagon and wanted to know which candidate passed and ran the football.
I had to agree, I wanted a candidate that ran and passed, but I didn't know where to find him.
"Joe Namath" quipped Bubba.

Jail Is Free

The Virginia Beach City Jail has received a stamp of approval from the State Department of Welfare and Institutions, bringing to a close months of strained conflicts over the jail's operation.
Following the public hearings in Richmond over alleged violations of the State's operational requirements, City Jail personnel have undergone training to better understand their jobs and to bring the facility up to proper standards.
Sheriff John Marr and his staff are to be commended for their cooperation with the State supervisors, for obviously without their willingness to learn and to apply what has been learned the SDWI would not have smiled so favorably.
The jail has now been freed of the stigma that has plagued it for so long. The controversy and allegations and ill feelings are hopefully a thing of the past. The newly initiated standards for State penal institutions was probably not an easy goal to reach in such a short time. But the City Jail did it. And credit is due Sheriff Marr and his staff for having achieved this goal.

Mayor's Youth

The Mayor's Youth Council may prove to be one of the most beneficial bodies in the city in solving some of the problems associated with today's young people. If it serves no other purpose it will at least give a representative group of the young citizenry an opportunity to express views and to explain needs that are too often overlooked.
One of those long neglected needs was brought out in the council's first meeting: a recreation facility, a "place to go, especially on Saturday nights", for the under eighteen crowd.
The high school and junior high school youngsters are cast adrift in their leisure hours. They gather in front of the convenient shopping stores, frequent the football parlors, gang up on parking lots and crowd the street corners. And they get in trouble for doing these things because they are, by nature, unruly, restless, irresponsible and rambunctious. Or underage.
The suggestion for a place of their own came from one of their own, a high schooler, but it might have come out of the past, from a bygone day when youngsters did, indeed, have a youth center. In that day the restless ones gathered at the center after school for a gab fest or ping pong or a record listening session. And on Friday nights after the football game and on Saturday nights they had their own volunteer band for dancing. A parent or two might be on the premises but the policing was primarily done by the youngsters themselves. And volunteer students manned the snack bar.
Such a youth center was usually provided by the city and interested groups and private citizens. It wasn't lavish but it was comfortable. It was a place where young people could be young people.
Things are different today, admittedly. There's drugs and militantism and rebellion. But the kids still don't want to gather on a street corner or hang around places they're not wanted. They want, and need, "a place of their own" to take a date or to meet with friends. It's been tried here before and it has failed. But as long as there is a desire it's worth another try. Perhaps now the time is right.

Tidewater Community

The Tidewater Community College needs a bit of help at its Virginia Beach Campus. This valiant group of educators is quietly suffering the throes of temporary quarters at Camp Pendleton and, discarding their own inconveniences, seeks only to equip and furnish the student lounge. A few pieces of furniture, some drapes, the necessities to make it warm and comfortable so that students might relax in their off-hours. Donations of these items is just one small way citizens can help this long awaited college, to make the temporary facility more enjoyable to the nearly two thousand students taking advantage of its presence. It is hoped the citizens will heed this call...and supplement the furnishings the students themselves are bringing from home to furnish their lounge.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR U.S. SENATOR: SALARY: $42,500 — At least 30 years old, 9 years a citizen of the U.S. and an inhabitant of Virginia.

1. WHAT DO YOU CONSIDER THE TOP THREE NATIONAL PRIORITIES FOR THE NEXT CONGRESS? WHY?
2. WHAT CHANGES, IF ANY, WOULD YOU MAKE IN THE WELFARE PROGRAM AND ITS FINANCING?

SENATOR SPONG: Change is certainly needed in our welfare program. The existing programs satisfy no one; the people whom they are designed to serve or the people who pay the taxes to support them. Both groups feel short-changed. Three new programs are under consideration. I find disadvantages in each of the proposals. We should know more about the cost, effectiveness and work requirement of the proposed legislation. Consequently, I would prefer pilot projects of the family assistance program or versions of it in selected representative areas prior to the enactment of national legislation. This would help prevent us from making massive and far-reaching changes which might prove to be as "flawed" as the programs which currently exist. Any new program must assure, as much as possible, against fraud and that work requirements are rigidly administered.

MR. SCOTT: 1. Controlling inflation. 2. Reduction of the cost of government, and 3. Conclusion of war in Vietnam.
MR. HENDERSON: 1. ECONOMY: Restructure national economic policy for full employment attacking critical domestic problems such as housing, pollution, hospitals, schools, mass transportation, unemployment, trade and balance of payments deficits, etc. Reconvert economy to non-war basis to include tax reforms, reduction of military-defense spending utilizing funds thus generated to meet domestic problems without increased taxes.
2. HEALTH: Good health and care is basic right of every citizen and of basic importance to the general welfare of the nation. A National Health Insurance Plan, voluntary for those who can pay, with aid for those who cannot pay, is essential since staggering costs for severe illnesses can destroy families financially.
3. LOCAL-STATE GOVERNMENT: Overwhelming financial burdens threaten local and state governments with bankruptcy and collapse of public services. Revenue-Sharing, tax reform, regional governmental structures and the consolidation of services must be studied and undertaken for relief.

MR. SCOTT: 1. Controlling inflation. 2. Reduction of the cost of government, and 3. Conclusion of war in Vietnam.

CONGRESSMAN SCOTT: Benefit payments under welfare should not be so high as to encourage people to remain on welfare rather than to work for a living. Such a policy has been unfair to the low-income worker. America has always been anxious to look after the people unable to take care of themselves, but we should attempt to re-constitute the work ethic where those who can will plan their own destiny and take care of their own interest.

MR. HENDERSON: 1. ECONOMY: Restructure national economic policy for full employment attacking critical domestic problems such as housing, pollution, hospitals, schools, mass transportation, unemployment, trade and balance of payments deficits, etc. Reconvert economy to non-war basis to include tax reforms, reduction of military-defense spending utilizing funds thus generated to meet domestic problems without increased taxes.

MR. HENDERSON: It is essential that the present wasteful and inefficient welfare structure is revised. National eligibility standards should be established, training facilities must be provided, jobs must be created, day care centers are necessary and means must be found for those who can work to get jobs and be taken off the welfare rolls. Obviously 15 million persons requiring 18 billion dollars in welfare last year, an increase of 23%, is a national disgrace. The welfare rolls can only be reduced through the development of employment opportunities and the increasing costs can only be met by the development of increased revenues, either through Revenue-Sharing or tax reforms which may generate additional funds.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION OF VIRGINIA

On November 7, 1972 the Voters of Virginia will be asked to vote upon two amendments to the Constitution of Virginia. The questions will appear on the ballot in the following form.

QUESTION: Shall Section 1 of Article II of the Constitution of Virginia be amended so as to change the minimum age for qualified voters of the state from twenty-one to eighteen?
 Yes
 No
The minimum age for voting in Virginia is now 18 years of age under the federal law. This amendment simply brings the Virginia Constitution up to date.)
QUESTION: Shall the Constitution be amended to include in the definition of "city" any incorporated community which became a city as provided by law before noon on July 1, 1971?
 Yes
 No
(In this section a city is defined as "an independent incorporated community which has within defined boundaries a population of 5,000 or more and which has become a city as provided by law." There are presently cities (namely Lorton, Va.) which do not meet the population criteria. By the insertion of a date, which is all this amendment does, said cities will remain cities, but all cities formed after said date — noon of July 1, 1971 — must meet the specified criteria.)

FROM THE CANDIDATES:

In a recent speech to the Chesapeake Jaycee's, Delegate ROBERT E. BIGSON, 4th District Congressional Candidate, renewed his pledge to "resist any efforts by Congress to raise taxes whether they are requested by the President or by the leaders of Congress."
Gibson feels that his record on the House Finance Committee of the General Assembly reflects that this move would be in-tune with his political beliefs. He feels that serving on the House Finance Committee provide him "with the experience necessary to resist wasteful Government spending because it was my duty while serving on this committee, to find new sources or revenue."
Gibson also gave his support to the $250 Billion spending ceiling passed by the House of Representatives and feels that it is time that the Congress participated in a program restraining government spending.

BOB DANIEL 4th District Congressional candidate, has called for the portability of pensions in a speech to union leaders Hopwell County.
Daniel explained that employees who switch jobs should not lose their pension rights.
"An employee should retain his partial share in a company pension fund after he switches to another company," explained Daniel. "He contributed to the pension fund. He deserves to keep his share."
Daniel continued his attack against heroin smugglers. This has been a main plank of the Daniel campaign, and reform of the Federal Judiciary system as part of his program to combat crime and drugs.
Daniel said "Swift, sure justice is the best deterrent to those who would profit for the sufferings of others."

"Candidates talk about problems but Congressmen must talk about solutions," claimed ROBERT R. HARDY, 4th District Independent Congressional candidate, during a speech last Wednesday.
Hardy noted that he and the other candidates for the Fourth District Congressional seat all appear to be against forced school busing, drug abuse, crime and pollution.
"But being opposed to something isn't enough," Hardy said, "one must offer solutions."
Hardy feels the solution to crime is not a policeman on every corner and control or a guaranteed income. "The answer lies with our courts which more often seem more concerned with the criminal's rights than with his victim's," Hardy stressed.
Hardy commented that the only cruel and unusual punishment in our society is perpetrated by the criminal upon his victims and feels that "Society should reserve itself the option of the death penalty for capital crimes."

L. CHARLES BURLAGE, 2nd District Congressional candidate, has called for the spending of $100 million dollars for the promotion exportation of American products abroad.
Speaking to the Davis County Civic League, Burlage said "We need to appropriate $100 million dollars to engage in a massive national advertising program to sell American products to a world that is lacking in almost all necessities of life."
Burlage feels that the promotion of the export trade would further utilize the port of Norfolk, and help to promote full employment in the United States.
Burlage pointed to the auto industry as an example, stating "The automobile products on a national basis are no different. If our exports reach at least 10 per cent of our Gross National Product, we would figure to have prosperity in America and full employment."

Virginia Congressman WILLIAM L. SCOTT, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, has called on his opponent "to abandon his role as the Silent Senator from Virginia."
In a recent press release, Scott charged that his opponent and Senator McGovern vote alike on many of the issues and stated "We know Mr. Spong is opposed to the programs and policies of President Nixon. His votes to override every Presidential veto in the past four years is evidence of that."
Scott questions where Spong stands on many of the important issues and whether he will support or oppose the programs advocated by his party's candidate if he and McGovern are elected in November.
Scott feels the people will not know where Spong stands if he is allowed to continue his role as "the silent Senator from Virginia."
"My opponent badly serves the people of Virginia by his silence on the crucial question of his support or opposition to the programs and policies of George McGovern," Scott stated, "I believe he should let us know where he stands."

Letters To The Editor

45-15 School Choice Questioned

To the Editor: Tuesday October 17, 1972, I appeared before the Virginia Beach School Board. They listened courteously to my objection concerning selection of Plaza Elementary School as proposed to Brookwood Elementary School for implementation of 45-15 school program. These two schools are located on the same piece of property—within steps of each other, yet Plaza Elementary, not air-conditioned, was chosen, while Brookwood Elementary, already air-conditioned was passed over. A price tag of $75,000.00 to $80,000.00 to air-condition Plaza Elementary is to me, as a truly concerned citizen of Virginia Beach, exremely unfair to the taxpayers who must foot this bill! Upon learning of the choice of schools, I immediately voiced my objection to Dr. James Mounie. I went to Dr. Mounie's office, viewed the maps concerning the geographical zoning boundaries and, quite frankly, came away as unconvinced as when I went down there! $75,000.00 - $80,000.00 could do a whole lot in a City like Virginia Beach. To spend such a sum on a building readily adjacent to an already air-conditioned facility, for a "pilot program," causes me to question the School Administration Staff and the School Board's normally sound and good judgement. ASTRO-ADVICE By Raymond Williams Licensed Virginia Beach Astrologer with offices in the Byer Building.

QUESTION: If you can predict the stockmarket and all those other things you say you can, then tell me why it is that someone like my husband, who never gave me any hard time in his life, should be called some of the that the young people he tries to help call him. He is a policeman and tries to help bring the young people to a better understanding of the law to keep them from getting into trouble but they show no appreciation at all. Signed MC, Los Angeles California.

ANSWER: It is a very welcome surprise to get your letter. We used to have readers in California but thought we had lost them. To answer your question I need to bring out a couple of points that are not acceptable to the general public. First, the idea of reincarnation, the belief that man lives more than one life, explains so many things that can not be explained any other way. I have stated this idea in several ways in the past. The fact that we are seeing the rebirth of the Roman Empire at the present seems undeniable. The hair styles, the toga parties, free love, the Roman hand clasp and many other things are evidence of this rebirth. I can not help comparing the football players of today with the gladiators of that time and of course the book, "The New Centurians," is rather obvious.

One of the most obvious facts of the Roman Empire was the almost total breakdown in law and order. (Is the phrase familiar?) Now if the idea of reincarnation is a fact and if we carry certain personality traits, such as temper or a good sense of humor, from life to life, it is not unreasonable to assume that we would carry other traits such as a disrespect for law from one life to another. What astrological configuration would we look for if we were trying to pin-point a group of people reincarnating? In this case, since the law is involved, we would look for something in the sign Libra, since Libra is the sign of law. Now what would cause a large group of people to disrespect the law. Might it be Mars, the war lord, I think not in this case because Mars would bring more violence. The very nature of the planet Neptune fits the description of the young people of today. Neptune is a very confusion we often find disrespect. If I do not understand someone or something I am very likely to feel dis-interested or doubtful, (another good word for Neptune) about that person or thing. Other astrological configurations would determine how I reacted to that feeling of uncertainty.

Since the summer of 1942, for a period of about thirteen years, there have been millions of children born with Neptune placed in Libra. Libra is the sign of war, and these children would naturally reject the idea of war, as is evidenced by their reaction to the Viet Nam situation. Of course the individual horoscope has to be considered to get the individual reaction of each person.

New Hospital May Hurt Existing Medical Facilities

The building of another hospital in Virginia Beach, in addition to Virginia Beach General hospital, will raise hospital bed costs, duplicate health care services now available and drain the pool of experienced medical personnel available, according to Earl Willis, general administrator of Virginia Beach General Hospital.

Willis' report also stated that overbedding would be costly to the public, that duplication of facilities would be a factor and that the new Extendicare hospital will take away trained personnel from Virginia Beach General.

"Our hospital has always worked on the concept of good patient care," he said. "We must have well-qualified, trained people with experience. When this new hospital comes in, it concerns us that we may have difficulty obtaining qualified personnel."

Willis said that the Tidewater Health Planning Council had previously reported that there is an oversupply of hospital beds in the Tidewater area.

"We also supported the Planning Council's proposed moratorium" Willis continued, "and we were surprised that City Council is not listening to a body it supports financially and to which it appoints members."

"We feel, in our biased way," Willis said, "that City Council has condemned Virginia Beach to second-class medical care."

Why Punish The Children

To the Editor: Why is it that our youth are always the losers? Their surfing area gets more restricted, they can't stop and talk to their friends without getting picked up for loitering, and now the big hassle over football.

It's a strange situation when the "victims" of the crimes are the ones being punished. How do you explain that to your kids? How also do you explain how two football parlors with so much opposition get 30 day deferments while the other one with so little opposition that it didn't even have one parent with enough concern to appear in court to openly oppose it, was denied? This is Justice?

My main concern is if we are going to take everything away, what are we going to give them as a substitute? We just seem to be trying to solve one problem but in the process are creating new ones. They are like cockroaches being chased from one place to another. Where the next place will be is anyone's guess as we are not making any constructive offers for anything better.

What's so bad about football? It's a great game, the authorities say but—They say the establishments draw undesirable and vulnerable for drugs. Why single out the football parlors? Granted, it may be true but it is also true in every walk of life.

I detest drugs and all that is detrimental to our youth but I would rather have the kids playing a game of football than frequenting topless establishments, R and X rated movies, and gawking at and reading the filthy materials displayed in our stores.

So wake up City of Virginia Beach. If we are going to be concerned about our children as we all should be, let's show them we mean it. Let's offer them something for good clean healthful living. Let's be fair, honest, and set some good standards ourselves. This is a government of the people, by the people, and for the people and God knows CHILDREN ARE PEOPLE.

Undesirables are in our fire depts, our schools, our professions, and even our government. Drugs? They have been found in our schools, fire department, professions, drivings, hotels, scope etc. so why is football being the scapegoat for things that have existed for years?

So wake up City of Virginia Beach. If we are going to be concerned about our children as we all should be, let's show them we mean it. Let's offer them something for good clean healthful living. Let's be fair, honest, and set some good standards ourselves. This is a government of the people, by the people, and for the people and God knows CHILDREN ARE PEOPLE.

Hospital Voting Questioned

To the Editor: The recent decision by Virginia Beach City Council approving a use permit for Extendicare to construct a hospital raises questions as to the motives of individual councilmen. The vote was 6-3 in favor. Only Donald Rhodes did the obvious and could hardly have done otherwise as a lawyer for Terry Corporation.

of Virginia Beach when six councilmen voted to approve the project? The public debate resolved into the issue of whether to act in the interest of Virginia Beach General Hospital above the interest of those who might be treated at the proposed hospital. Nothing was said about the interest of those who will construct the hospital on land made available by a use permit.

Why was John Baum absent at the time of an important vote? Why did the three who voted against the use permit think that such a hospital would be contrary to the best interest

Tourist Opposes Hospital

To the Editor: The following is a letter I have recently sent to the Mayor and City Council concerning the proposed new hospital opening. Dear Sirs: As a regular summer tourist (7 years) to Virginia Beach, I have had occasion to use the facilities of your fine General Hospital. The care and understanding I have received have been excellent. The confidence given to me and my family (wife and 3 boys) is one of the reasons we have returned to Virginia Beach year after year.

Scott, and help resolve the issue. Now when someone stands up to be counted, it is referred to as a "Hasty Decision". Council could stand for a few more Reid Ervin's who are not afraid to make decisions. Then maybe Virginia Beach wouldn't have so many wistful washy problems confronting it.

I do not believe that an additional hospital is either needed or could be supported in Virginia Beach. It would take some of the utilization from your General Hospital and undoubtedly increase the costs and reduce their service. Discussion with some of the doctors and staff at General Hospital while I was there (1971) indicated that the winter months are quite slow which further reduces the desirability of constructing another hospital.

Hot Dots, small circles of reflectorized tape about the size of a penny, will stick to books or clothing and reflect auto headlights for distances up to 600 feet. The Hot Dot program is a statewide program launched by the Highway Safety Division of Virginia in an effort to make pedestrians more visible at night.

I urge you to deny the application for an additional hospital and continue active support of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. Sincerely, Robert J. Armstrong Paramus, New Jersey

Ervin Is Congratulated

To the Editor: Vice Mayor Ervin should be congratulated for his so called "Hasty Decision" (Sun 10-12-72) on the Virginia Beach-Norfolk water issue.

The water problem was around long before Mr. Ervin became a member of city council. As the years passed Council shelved the issue apparently hoping it would go away, instead of making a decision that would give guidance to city manager Roger Make Halloween Safe!

The time of ghosts and goblins is once again here and the Insurance Information Institute would like to alert the public to the many hazards before, during and after Halloween. Before "Hollow Eve's" night, parents and storekeepers should make sure that costumes are not made of highly flammable material. Holes in face masks should be large enough so children can see, breathe and speak easily.

Costumes should not be too big or too small, and should have some bright coloring or reflecting tape to allow drivers to see trick-or-treaters at night. Children can trip on oversized costumes and ones that are too small will inhibit their movements. Safely conscious "trick or treaters" should use HOT DOTTS or some other reflective material as part of their

The big push for Christmas sales this year is to motorize the kids. Minibikes have caused an increasing amount of parental concern. Now they're selling minismotocycles and even mini-ATVs (all-terrain vehicles) "specifically designed and marketed for the child on the go."

Some parents are buying these mechanized monsters on the dubious theory that a product "designed for children" must be safe. It's true that manufacturers have been trying to make their motorized toys safer with protected gas tanks, less sharp edges and other engineering pluses. But the big questions are: Where will the children use these machines, and how will they use them?

The sad story of minibikes is well known. The little motorcycles aren't permitted to be used on most streets and there are precious few other places they can be used. So kids ride them on the streets anyway and accident statistics pile up at an alarming rate.

With the minismotocycle and ATV, it's the same story. Manufacturers piously say the machines are not to be used on streets, but where do you think many children are going to use them? Aside from the risk of being mashed by a car or truck, children also face the danger of being burnt or blown up by gasoline that can hit a hot exhaust manifold. Even under normal, off-the-road use, these little machines are often unstable and easy to tip over.

Malcolm W. (Mac) Jensen, director of the Bureau of Product Safety, Food and Drug Administration, asks: "Must we motorize everything? Must we conspire with our children to break the law? There are fewer and fewer places where these machines can be used without breaking some law."

The FDA is pondering the possibility of banning the sale of some motorized wheel and ski vehicles for children unless they're sold to some sort of organization that will supervise their use. To gather more evidence, the FDA ordered the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory in Buffalo, N.Y., to study the engineering dynamics of minibikes.

Ray Rice, Cornell engineer supervising the study, warns that "the learning process for children using minibikes and other gasoline-driven vehicles is much longer and much more complicated than for a bicycle." Rice and others contend that many children aren't mentally or physically ready to use gasoline-engine vehicles in a safe and responsible manner.

Still, some parents feel they can readily supervise their child's use of minivheel or miniskit vehicles. Daddy pours the gasoline and both parents supervise the initial rides.

Later, the child begins to pour the gasoline when daddy is away and rides off further and further astray. Neighbor kids want in on the act. Somebody spills gasoline on a hot engine part or somebody whizzes down the driveway into the street. Then you read about the "tragedy" in the papers.

Who's to blame? The manufacturers? The parents? Perhaps both. If you must buy your child a gasoline-driven machine this Christmas, ask yourself the big question: Where can we use this thing legally and safely?

To help cope with this and other problems in the buying of toys, I've helped compile and revise a booklet called "Toy Buyers' Guide." The guide also contains a carefully reviewed list of toy catalogues and an "age chart" for specific kinds of toys.

Zoning Ordinance-Map

Del. Glenn McClannan has questioned if the public interest is being served through the method by which the City is handling the adoption of the new Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance and accompanying maps, and if the City is acting within provisions of the State Code.

McClannan told the SUN, "I am making a specific request for a public hearing to be held at which time the (zoning) text and maps will be available for public inspection."

He added, "My concern is that the zoning ordinance text has been all worked out without the public benefit of viewing zoning maps to determine how their particular parcel of land is really affected."

McClannan requested an opinion from State Attorney General Andrew Miller as to whether the City is violating provisions of the State Code. He asked Miller, "May the City legally hold the public hearings(s).....on the new zoning ordinance without the proposed new zoning map being available at the same time for viewing by the public? He also asked Miller, "May our City Council legally adopt a new zoning ordinance without the zoning map being available for simultaneous enactment?"

In replying Miller referred to that portion of the State Code outlining procedures for adopting zoning ordinances and/or maps. He said, "This section requires the local zoning commission to present the proposed ordinance or amendment including the district maps to the governing body together with its recommendations and appropriate explanatory materials. Thereafter the governing body must hold a public hearing on any zoning ordinance before approving and adopting the same."

Miller concluded, "The district maps are a part of the proposed ordinance presented to the governing body. They must be available at the public hearing for viewing by the public. I therefore answer your questions in the negative."

McClannan advised Mayor Robert B. Cromwell, Jr., and Planning Commission Chairman J. Harry Mote that while the City may still technically comply with the State Code, he is still concerned with the public interest. McClannan also told Cromwell and Mote, "I sincerely hope that special efforts will be made to afford all the

The Front Burner

Rice Appears In Many Desserts To Satisfy The Sweet Tooth

Rice pudding is a familiar dessert to most people. However, rice pie, frozen rice casserole or a rice-and-gelatin mold probably does not appear often of the dinner table of most homes.

Many homemakers do not realize there are a variety of rice desserts that will satisfy any sweet tooth.

The following desserts have been prepared in the Test Kitchens of the Rice Council for Market Development.

Minted Pineapple and Rice Parfaits
 1 package (3 oz.) lemon gelatin
 1 cup hot water
 1 cup ginger ale
 1 can (1 lb.) minted pineapple chunks, drained
 1/2 cups cooked rice
 1 cup chopped nuts
 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
 1 cup chocolate cookie crumbs
 Dissolve gelatin in water. Stir in ginger ale. Chill until slightly thickened. Beat gelatin mixture until frothy. Add pineapple, rice and nuts. Fold in whipped cream. Spoon into parfait glasses layering with cookie crumbs. Return to refrigerator to set. Garnish with extra whipped cream and pineapple chunks or maraschino cherries, if you wish. Yields 16 1/2 cup servings.

Creamy Rice Pudding
 1 quart milk
 1 cup uncooked rice
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
 1 egg yolk, beaten
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 cup light cream
 Combine milk, rice, salt and vanilla in top of double boiler. Cook covered, over boiling water about 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. (Rice should be tender and milk almost absorbed.) Mix egg yolks, sugar and cream; stir into rice. Remove top of double boiler from water and cook rice mixture over low heat, stirring constantly, until it just reaches boiling point. Remove from heat. Serve warm or cold with fruit, cream, toasted slivered almonds, coconut or preserves. Makes 8 servings.

Honey Rice
 two thirds cup honey
 1/4 cup dark corn syrup
 4 cups cooked rice
 1/2 cup raisins
 1 1/2 teaspoons grated lemon rind

1 1/2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice
 1/4 cup sherry (or orange juice)
 one third cup nuts, toasted and chopped

Heat honey and corn syrup in a heavy pan; add rice, raisins, lemon rind and butter. Cook about 5 minutes. Pour into well-buttered shallow baking dish. Cover and bake at 350 degrees F. about 40 minutes or until golden. Remove from oven and stir in lemon juice and sherry. Serve topped with chopped nuts. Rice may be cooked in orange juice for more flavor. Makes 8 servings.

Ramos Peach-Rice Pie
 1 1/4 cups peach nectar
 1 package (3 oz.) lemon-flavored gelatin
 1 pint vanilla ice cream
 2 cups cooked rice
 1 can (1 lb., 18 oz.) sliced peaches
 1 cup heavy cream
 2 tablespoons sugar
 A few drops of almond extract
 1 9-inch Gingersnap Crumb Crust

Heat peach nectar to boiling. Pour over gelatin and stir to dissolve. Cut ice cream into pieces, add, stirring vigorously. Add rice. Chill. Meanwhile drain peach slices. When rice mixture is thickened (in about 30 minutes), fold in half of drained peach slices. Turn into prepared crust and chill firm, again about 30 minutes. Whip Cream, adding sugar flavoring. Top with whipped cream. Use remaining peach slices to garnish pie just before serving. Yields 6 to 8 servings.

To prepare Gingersnap Crumb Crust: Mix 1/2 cup melted butter or margarine with 1 1/4 cups finely crushed gingersnap crumbs. Press into 9-inch pie pan. Bake at 325 degrees F. for 10 minutes. Cool before filling.

Pink Ladies Aid Hospital Staff And Cheer Patients

She may be found reading to a patient, playing a game with a small child, typing letters or filling, assisting in the emergency room or one of many non-technical duties found in a hospital.

Who is she? She is the pink lady of the Auxiliary to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. She works anywhere and everywhere possible in the hospital with the approval of nurses or doctors on duty.

Formed in October, 1962, the Auxiliary had 117 volunteers called pink ladies because of their uniform color, by Nov. 21, 1963. From May through August of 1972, 168 volunteers including 36 teenagers gave 7,664 hours of services as nurses' aides, messengers, clerical workers and receptionists at the hospital. Volunteers are also trained to assist nurses in the laboratory and emergency rooms.

Mrs. Margaret Belote listens as nine-year old Ron Falkner explains how he made the picture on the electro-board. Ron's stay in the hospital is a result of a broken leg acquired in a game of "tackle". He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Falkner of the Beach.

The pink ladies help to relieve the anxiety of a new patient a little fearful of the unfamiliar surroundings. Their presence creates warmth and a more pleasant atmosphere for shopping from her bed with the help of a pink lady who made the necessary purchases. Mrs. Margaret Belote related.

Mrs. Roberta Hamovit, who has been with the auxiliary for a year, puts a report together.

A pink lady works in the emergency room to help persons coming in any way possible. Often she takes care of the other children in a family while the mother or father of an injured or sick child remain with him while he is receiving treatment.

"With a nurse's or doctor's approval we push patients in chairs, do errands, anything we can do to help," Mrs. Spencer Lott, newly elected president, said. "Everyday we check to see where we can be of the most service."

Tourists as well as residents having to go to the hospital are soon aware of the auxiliary volunteers. Mrs. J. H. Waters, who is in charge of the visitor services, provides transportation for persons whenever necessary, finds accommodations for members of a family who must remain in Virginia Beach because of an injury or illness to another member of the family and has even traced relatives for a patient.

"Many visitors who have had to go to the emergency room comment on how nice our hospital is. I feel the auxiliary has helped nurture the atmosphere as the ladies have the time to do the little extras hospital personnel do not have time for," Mrs. Belote commented.

Pink ladies take a book cart and a cart of candy and notions to patients who are unable to visit the gift shop which is supported by the auxiliary and operated by Mrs. C. W.

Walker. They deliver all mail and flowers.

Favors are placed on each patient's tray on all holidays. Each child entering the hospital receive a bag made by auxiliary members which contains a coloring book and crayons. Receiving blankets and bonnets fashioned out of handkerchiefs also are stitched up by members to be used whenever necessary.

A pink lady will see to it that a new mother has a selection of birth announcements to look over while in the hospital if she wishes.

"There are an awful lot of things that make the job," Mrs. Helen Jefferson noted.

The teenage volunteers of the Auxiliary includes girls and boys, many of whom go into medicine or obtain a paid job at the hospital.

"One teenage girl, who totalled 60 hours this past summer, had to be made to stay home in order to keep her from working a 24-hour day, she became so involved," Mrs. Belote explained. "It's a great way for teenagers who think they are interested in some phase of hospital work to find out first hand."

Teenage volunteers must be at least 16 years old and are required to take a training course.

They have been involved in the work almost since the Auxiliary was organized. Among the first teenagers were three boys interested in medical careers. Their high school principal contacted the Auxiliary to see if the boys could volunteer their services.

Time is not all the auxiliary contributes to the services of the hospital. Recently, a fetal monitor and a portable Isolette were given to the hospital.

The monitor helps to prevent death or brain damage to babies at birth by detecting such problems as a cord wrapped around the baby's neck. The Isolette is used to transport babies, particularly premature ones, who need help breathing.

Last year a Colonofiberscope which helps prevent unnecessary abdominal exploration and a cardiac arrest cart were added to the hospital's equipment.

The main fund-raising project of the Auxiliary is an annual horse show. It was initiated in April, 1963, with the help of Mrs. Gerry Ashburn. The proceeds the first year were used to purchase the first air-conditioning units.

Other early fund-raising efforts included two piano concerts by Clifford Herzer, a travel talk by Mrs. Lawrence Tucker and a midsummer fashion show of knits shown through the courtesy of Mrs. Margaret Fantone. Monies from the gift shop also go into such purchases.

Membership dues also help increase the fund. At present there are approximately 450 members, according to Mrs. Lott. Mrs. W. B. Baldwin is the membership chairman.

The Auxiliary usually meets once a year but members are notified of any special events. The first annual meeting of the hospital Auxiliary was May 11, 1962, with Mrs. Preston F. Hix, president, presiding.

The work of the Auxiliary is under the direction of Mrs. Sue Brooke.

Highlights

We're coming into the eighth week of the college football season, and for the first time this season we have a new name at the top of The List. Southern California is now riding high as the nation's number one team with two one-time losers, Nebraska and Oklahoma-both with fantastically high power quotients-breathing hard in second and third. That Big Eight show-down between the Sooners and Cornhuskers, as last year, will take place on Thanksgiving Day...another day of cold turkey! And before that little fracas, Nebraska has a date with Colorado one week hence. Big things cooking!

Alabama, beating off all challengers in the Southeast Conference so far, is still in the number four spot, with unbeaten Michigan 5th and upsetter Colorado in sixth. L.S.U. is 7th, and the Alabama-L.S.U. confrontation is just two weeks away. Ohio State, still with a spotless record, is no. 8 with U.C.L.A. and Texas rounding out the top ten. They're all familiar football powers, and the odds are good that most of them will still be up there when the season closes in just one month.

Looking ahead to this Saturday for possible trouble for any of our top group, there doesn't appear to be very much. However, there didn't appear to be too much trouble last weekend either, and the roof literally caved in! Arizona State moved back into the Top Twenty this week, and immediately runs into an enemy, the Air Force. The Falcons were upset by Navy last week, but could be real trouble for the offense-minded Sun Devils, ranked no. 10. We'll pick Arizona State by seven points.

Another team in the top group that will have its problems is Penn State, ranked 14th. The Nittany Lions meet West Virginia, and in a series that goes back 39 years, Penn State has won 29 times. The Lions are favored by only 7 points.

Players sprawl and feet fly in all directions as a Bayside tackler brings down a Maury runner.

Maury Ekes Out 14-6 Victory Over Defensive-Minded Bayside

A very determined Bayside defensive unit played their best game of the season last Friday night before a near-capacity homecoming crowd. The Marlin defense held the unbeaten Maury Commodores to just 28 total offensive yards and no first downs in the second half, but the Marlin offense could not overcome Maury's first-half lead, and Maury won 14-6.

Bayside won the coin toss and received the opening kickoff. The Marlin could not move the ball, and on third down a Bayside fumble was recovered by Maury's Robert Curry on Bayside's 35-yard line. Minutes later, George Woodhouse ran the ball in from five yards out and then ran in the two-point conversion to put Maury in front 8-0.

The Bayside defensive unit was led by tackles Mike Lukaszewicz and Keith Drake and Tom Willie. Joe Osborne and Vernon Hyman, Osborne recovered a Maury fumble, and Hyman intercepted a Commodore pass and returned it five yards before he was brought down.

Roscoe Coles was again the offensive leader for the Marlin. Coles rushed for 102 yards in 21 carries and caught three passes for 24 more yards. He also returned one punt eight yards and two kickoffs forty yards.

Vernon Hyman netted 13 yards in five carries, and quarterback Joe Osborne carried six times for a minus nine yards. Osborne completed six of 12 passes for 56 yards without an interception.

Bill Archer caught one pass for four yards, and Steve Landy grabbed two for 28 yards. Landy also returned a kickoff four yards for the Marlin.

George Woodhouse, as usual, was the leading rusher for the Commodores. A tough Bayside defense, however, held him to his lowest offensive yardage of the year, just 79 yards in 21 carries.

Princess Anne Comes From Behind To Defeat Kellam In 22-16 Thriller

There was one whale of a ball game last Friday night in Kellam Stadium. Kellam won the first half 14-0. Princess Anne won the second half 22-2. Since the Princess Anne Cavaliers scored more points in their winning half, they won the game, defeating the Kellam Knights 22-16.

Kellam scored once in each of the first two periods. Sophomore halfback Gary Woodhouse capped a 75-yard drive with a touchdown when he drove through the middle of the line from two yards out. Quarterback Bob Carter led the drive with his own 20-yard scramble and two 10-yard passes, the first to end Sony Blackmon and the second to halfback Kim Brown. A conversion boot by Chuck Edwards split the uprights, and Kellam jumped into an early 7-0 lead.

Less than six minutes before the halftime ceremonies, Tim Terry added six more points to Kellam's score when he drove into the end zone from one yard out. This time the 65-yard drive was led by passes of ten yards to Kim Brown and to Steve Scarcelli and runs by Gary Woodhouse. Tim Mishkofski made a crunching tackle on Woodhouse the play before Terry scored. Another Chuck Edwards kick was good, and Kellam led 14-0 in their half of the game.

After intermission, Princess Anne returned to the field looking like a different team. The Cavaliers led 14 points on the scoreboard in the third quarter and eight more points in the final period to win the game.

Princess Anne coach Ralph Gahagan agreed. "It was two ball games tonight. It was Kellam's game in the first half and Princess Anne's in the second," Gahagan commented.

"What made the difference? I've been driving the boys pretty hard all season. I can't stand losing," said Gahagan. "At halftime, I told the boys that a win was up to them. The defense held Kellam, and the offense scored 22 points."

Three minutes into the second half, Princess Anne got on the scoreboard. Mark Wilcox ended a 45-yard drive when he drove into touchdown territory from two yards out. Carl Makley ran the two-point conversion to cut the Kellam lead to 14-8.

Three seconds less than four minutes remained in the third quarter when Mike Casey led a pitchout from quarterback Mike Ange and raced 98 yards to score. The line of scrimmage was the two. Casey was in the end zone when he got the Ange pitchout. Casey ran along the goal line behind the line of scrimmage, cut around left end, and ten yards later cut back across the field and headed for paydirt. No one could catch him, and Princess Anne had six more points to tie the game at 14-all. Isom Young recovered the Cavalier fumble on the conversion attempt to thwart Princess Anne's effort to go ahead.

10:23 was left in the game when Mike Ange led the game for the Cavaliers. Ange kept the ball and ran seven yards over right tackle for a touchdown. Carl Makley drove through the

to pull the game out of the fire late in the game. Carter passed 17 yards to Scarcelli to move the ball into Cavalierland. A good defensive effort by Danny Allen possibly prevented a Kellam score when he batted down another Carter to Scarcelli pass that was right on the money near the Princess Anne ten yard line.

Bob Carter hit seven of 16 passes for 91 yards. Steve Scarcelli was his leading receiver, but Sony Blackmon and Kim Brown also had receptions to their credit.

Kim Terry nosed Gary Woodhouse for Kellam rushing honors. Terry gained 57 yards in 10 carries, while Woodhouse picked up 52 yards in 19 attempts.

Mike Casey was the game's leading rusher with 146 yards in a dozen attempts. Carl Makley carried the ball 13 times and gained 61 yards for the Cavaliers, and Mark Wilcox was credited with 22 yards in 10.

Mike Ange completed three of seven passes for 24 yards.

Kellam began another drive that stalled at the Princess Anne one. Carter hit Scarcelli with a 25-yard pass to move the ball to the Cavalier seven. Two plays later, Rob Edwards picked off a Carter pass with a diving catch on the one yard line.

Princess Anne took over the ball, and on the second play from the line of scrimmage, Kellam's Kim Brown tackled Princess Anne's Carl Makley in the end zone for a safety. The safety gave Kellam two more points and ended the scoring for the game with Princess Anne ahead 22-16.

Dave Winecoff Named "Player Of The Week"

Quarterback Dave Winecoff, who has performed commendably all season, has been named Chowan College's outstanding player for his play in the Braves' 6-0 win over Lees-McRae Saturday.

Winecoff rose to the challenge of penetrating the tough Lees-McRae defense, the conference's best. He did it for Chowan's and the game's lone score on a seven-yard pass to tight end Freddy Knight early in the third quarter. A key 22-yard pass to Knight set up the touchdown strike. In all, he completed eight of 12 throws for 95 yards.

Winecoff was praised by head coach, Jim Garrison, for his alert play and leadership. "He did a good job holding the ball club together and carrying out the game plans," remarked Garrison.

In Chowan's six games, Winecoff, a sophomore from Virginia Beach and first Colonial High School, has completed 34 of 70 passes, close to a 50 per cent accuracy mark. His passes have accounted for 373 yards and six touchdowns.

This was the first time Winecoff had been named "Offensive Player of the Week."

Brooks Williams' Field Goal Gives Cox 9-6 Victory Over Kempville

Cox played their usual game Friday night and tied a school record in the process. In not finishing their fifth win in seven games, a 9-6 victory over Kempville, the Cox Falcons tied a school record for the most wins in a single season. It was a typical Cox game in that the defense played exceptionally well and the offense just put enough points on the board to win. Perry Hill was the big story. His punt and kickoff returns thrilled the homecoming fans, put six points on the scoreboard, and set up Brooks Williams' field goal.

First Colonial Swamps Bookers

First Colonial put on an awesome display of scoring power in last Friday night's game with Booker T. Washington, defeating the Norfolk visitors 46-6. Seven different First Colonial players scored in the tilt.

Pontes ran in the two-point conversion to run the Patriots in front 33-21. The Bookers finally scored. With just eight minutes left to play, quarterback Dave Armistage chucked a 53-year pass that was caught by Andy Evans for a score. The conversion pass failed, and the Bookers had their only six points of the night.

Pontes earned runner-up honors in total yards gained for the Patriots. Little carried 4 times for 46 yards, while Pontes carried his 46 yards in three carries. Dave Bumgardner carried twice for 15 yards.

Rick Lavrischeff, the leading rusher in the game with 113 yards in nine attempts, scored first. With 2:01 left in the first quarter, Lavrischeff broke loose for an yard romp. Steve Selby's conversion boot was good, and the Patriots led 7-0, never to trail throughout the game.

Tyrone Little broke loose early in the second quarter for 32 yards and a score. Four minutes before the first half ended, quarterback Chris Swecker hit Chris Paphites with a 25-yard scoring pass. The conversion attempt failed after both touchdowns, but the Patriots enjoyed a comfortable 19-0 halftime lead.

Defensively, Mike Hughes intercepted two Booker passes, and Chris Paphites, Tracy Moon, and Clay Phillips intercepted one each. Al Humes recovered two fumbles and Brain Reiss one. Reiss returned his 22 yards for a touchdown. Humes returned one 85 yards for a touchdown and the other 18 yards.

SPORTCETERA

By T. Jay Brumbley

Virginia Beach's Terry Laney, now a middle guard for the Wofford College Terriers, is having an outstanding season at the South Carolina college. Laney recovered a fumble in Wofford's big 28-23 upset of 11th-ranked and previously unbeaten Presbyterian College. Even though he had an injured knee, Laney had a role in the big 21-0 surprise win over Newberry two weekends ago. That win gave Wofford the Little Three (Newberry, Presbyterian, and Wofford) title. A defensive starter, head coach Jack Peterson credits Laney with doing a tremendous job in their first five games. The Terriers have won two of their five games.

Another Beach athlete, Bo Killen, is on the Wofford College basketball roster. He is a 6-2, 200-pound center. Wofford basketball coach Gene Alexander rates this year's Terrier schedule as the toughest ever, with opponents like Davidson, Furman, and The Citadel. Wofford finished last season with a 14-16 record, and coach Alexander figures his team's quickness and speed will bring him a winning record this year.

Chesapeake College looks as though it is building a real winner on the basketball court this season. The Cougars have added five scholarship freshmen to the five returning lettermen. Robbie Cook, who led Bayside High School's team last year, is one of the outstanding freshman additions. The latest is Mike Cotton, a 6-3, 190-pound forward. Considered a vicious rebounder by Cougar head coach John Meyerhoff, Cotton was named to the Georgia Scholastic All-State team and to the All-Navy championship team at Philblant. As his name is becoming known, the Cougars are hearing from tournament committees and colleges wishing to schedule them. Chesapeake has just accepted an invitation to play in the Appalachian Christmas Classic on December 29th and 30th. The tourney is hosted by West Virginia Tech, the alma mater of former Virginia Squire Mike Barrell. Other teams in the field are Ohio Dominican and the University of Missouri. Preseason workouts are in their fourth week at Chesapeake, and optimism is high that the Cougars can improve on last year's 11-16 mark.

The Ramada Inn is running a deluxe chartered bus from its 7th and Ocean front location to all home (Scope) games of the Virginia Squires and the Virginia Wings. The bus will leave the Ramada Inn one hour before game time. For the round-trip fee of $1, you can enjoy your trip to and from exciting professional games. It is impossible to drive a car to Scope and back and pay parking there for under a dollar.

Billie Jean King, who had already clinched the top prize, climaxed her run-away victory in the women's segment of the 1971 Commercial Union Grand Prix of tennis by winning the final tournament of the season, the Virginia Slims of Phoenix, Arizona. Billie Jean defeated longtime arch-rival Margaret Court 7-6, 6-3 in the final. Mrs. King's final total was 719 points, 319 ahead of second-place finisher Evonne Goolagong. The top twenty women, in order of their finish are King, Goolagong, Rosemary Casals, Nancy Gunter, Kerry Melville (5th), Margaret Court, Francoise Durr, Chris Evert, Virginia Wade, Lesley Hunt (10th) Wendy Overton, Valerie Ziegenfuss, Helga Masthoff, Pat Pretorius, Linda Tuero (15th), Betty Stove, Helen Gourlay, Julie Heldman, Pam Teeguarden, and Olga Morozova (20th). Two tournaments remain in the men's division, and the three men still in contention for the top prize are leader Ilie Nastase, followed by Stan Smith and Manuel Orantes.

Another former Virginia Beach player who has been having an outstanding season is Clinton Graves. A flanker on Temple University's football team, he leads the team in pass receptions with 29-catches for 523 yards and two touchdowns. His best game of the season was the Temple-West Virginia game two weeks ago when he snagged eleven passes for 115 yards and a touchdown. Temple upset highly-regarded West Virginia 30-36, with Graves' score being the difference. He played for First Colonial High School during his scholastic career.

Copies of the colorful new Virginia Motorboat Owner's Guide have been distributed to Game Commission license agents and marine dealers in the area. The guide contains the new boating regulations that went into effect October 1st, tips on navigation, and other bits of information. Copies are free. If you cannot find a copy locally, write the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, P.O. Box 11104, Richmond, Virginia, 23230.

The Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries will meet in Richmond on November 3rd. Although persons with special items for consideration may speak, no changes in regulations or other items of general public interest are scheduled. The meeting, which is expected to involve routine internal matters, will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Game Commission's conference room at 4010 West Broad Street.

Sonny Allen has his Old Dominion basketball team undergoing daily workouts in the ODU fieldhouse. The season opener is scheduled with Western Kentucky on November 27th, and it looks as though this is the toughest schedule that the Big Blue has ever faced. Two former Virginia Beach scholastic standouts are in uniform for Allen, returning 6-4 junior forward Ricky Michaelson and 6-3 freshman guard Billy Smiley. Both Michaelson and Smiley starred under coach Leo Anthony at Princess Anne.

Perry Hill was the big story. His punt and kickoff returns thrilled the homecoming fans, put six points on the scoreboard, and set up Brooks Williams' field goal.

Cox won the toss and elected to receive. Perry Hill took the opening kickoff and raced downfield 65 yards, making it to the Kempville 20-yard line before he was brought down. The Kempville defensive unit held the Falcons for three downs, forcing Cox to try a field goal on fourth down. Brooks Williams put the ball right between the uprights, putting three points on the board and Cox ahead 3-0 just three minutes into the first quarter.

With a minute and a half remaining in the first period, Perry Hill received a Chief punt and raced 70 yards downfield to score. Hill's scamper was helped by a couple of key blocks and great second-efforts that enabled him to slip a couple of tackles. Once the speedy halfback cleared the line of scrimmage and the Kempville linebackers he was home free. The conversion kick failed, and Cox ended its scoring for the night with their 9-0 lead.

Kempville did not get on the scoreboard until late in the third quarter. Quarterback Frank Welch engineered a dozen-play march that ended when Brian Catlin drove into the end zone from one yard out. The conversion attempt failed, and Kempville ended its scoring for the game and lost 9-6.

Kempville threatened again in the game's final two minutes, but the stubborn Cox defense stopped the Chiefs on downs and took over the ball on their own 10-yard line.

Another Kempville march was stopped near the end of the first half when Perry Hill intercepted a pass. Hill returned the interception 23 yards before being brought down.

Community Basketball League Meetings Set

A meeting for area recreational chairmen and coaches for the purpose of reorganizing the Community and Adult Basketball Leagues will be held on Wednesday, November 1st, at 7:30 p.m. at Union-Kempville Stadium. Since all phases of the basketball program will be discussed, all area chairmen are requested by the City's Athletic Office to make a special effort to attend.

Aragona-Pembroke Little League Needs Volunteers To Help Youth

The Aragona-Pembroke Little League needs volunteers for the upcoming 1973 season, such as reporters for each team, scorekeepers. Managers and umpires are urgently needed. Anyone interested should contact Bob Dickason at 497-0617 or Bob Culligan at 499-4510.

Randy Robinson was the leading rusher for Cox. Robinson carried the ball a dozen times and netted 63 yards, nearly half of which came on one 31-yard outburst. Weinbrecht gained 30 yards in seven carries, which included a fine run of 21 yards. Ray White carried once for three yards.

Billy Ittner completed four of seven pass attempts for 52 yards. Brooks Williams caught three Falcon aerials for 23 yards, and Perry Hill hauled in one for 29 yards.

Brian Catlin led the Kempville and game ball-carriers with a whopping 157 yards in 25 carries. His longest run was a fine 38-yard effort. Bill Dragas carried 18 times for 70 yards, and Rick Bleise carried once for 23 yards.

Frank Welch completed three passes in eight attempts for 34 yards. All of the passes were hauled in by Brian Catlin.

Both teams have excellent defensive units, which is reflected in the low 9-6 score. The Cox front line is probably the biggest in the area and is led by tackles Bill Summa and Bill Span. Brooks Williams and Randy Robinson played well at defensive end, and the defensive secondary did not allow many big plays. Perry Hill intercepted a Frank Welch pass, and Bill Ittner recovered a fumble.

Kempville's defensive unit also played hard-nosed football. They effectively contained the Cox attack, except for the two long returns by Perry Hill. Jim Spoor intercepted a Falcon pass, and Jake Powers and Jim Everett were credited with fumble recoveries. Terry Lassiter made a number of key tackles.

Duane Fant, Jay Kaufman Win Moto-Cross Bike Races Sunday

It was a marvelous Indian Summer day for Mid-East's $1850 Moto-cross. The riders came from far and wide to earn a little cash for the trip home. Mickey Boone from Winston-Salem was the big winner of the day, taking first in the 100 and 175 class and finishing third in the 250 class.

With three new turns and a 1000 feet more of track this week, everything was in great condition for the ever-tough 250 class. In the first moto, Bruce Lembee and Pat McCafferty of the Beach came out of the hole in first and third. Tony DiStefano, only 15-years-old and down from Pennsylvania, took the lead in lap two. Pat, while holding off the eventual one and two overall winners, took the first moto when Tony's gas line fell out and Bruce slowed with faulty brakes.

In the second moto, Bruce came in fifth while Pat collided with Jim Tripp, one of the more unfortunate riders from Virginia Beach with mechanical problems, and dropped to tenth. For the final moto, Bruce moved another notch up and earned fourth overall, while Pat finished fifth in the moto and for the class.

Jay Kaufman, of the Beach, on his hot mini-bike had it all together, and he was able to out-duel Johnny Price to sweep the junior-crossers' division. Returning after a long absence and plagued by bike problems during recent races, Larry Ambrose of Virginia Beach took third place, earning a little money for the first and only time this year, that cash instead of trophies was given to the younger bikers.

As an example of the stiffer competition this week, Frank Tehel took second place last week in the open class, but this week he barely finished in the money with a fifth place. Many other Beach riders could not quite earn any money, but their next chance will come November 5.

Duane Fant upset the co-favorites, Danny Brown and Jimmy Stallins, to give Virginia Beach the mini-crosser division. It looks like Virginia Beach will be ready with the top riders in the future.

Duane Fant and his bike take a jump on the way to his first-place finish in the mini-cross class.

Mackerel And Blues Are Biting

The surf fishermen and pier jockeys have been catching a very good mixed variety of fish for the bait.

This past Tuesday and Wednesday, King Mackerel and blue fish were working the ocean front off Virginia Beach, from Cape Henry to as far south as the eye could see. They were looking for small fish, cut bait, and anything else that moved. They have been talking plenty of puppy drum in the surf at 69th Street, at the wooden pier, and between the Inlet jetties and the street pier at the ocean front.

At long last, the round head (Kingfish) have arrived in the surf. They are running small, but a few big ones are mixed in. I am sure most of our spots have gone south for the winter, but I have seen some very small ones about 1/4 pound or smaller, caught this week.

Fellows fishing around the second and third islands are really latching on to some gray trout early in the morning and late in the evening. They are also picking up some big blue fish and rock along with them. With the cool weather coming on, it looks like we are going to have more beautiful fishing around our Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel.

For those who don't have a boat, I would suggest they share some time with a friend who will take them out to enjoy one of the greatest thrills of their lives while latching on to a big gray or speckled trout.

Rudee Inlet has been very quiet this past week with very few trout or rock being caught. I have been listening to the conversations around the tackle shop on 17th Street. The Old Timers, who have been catching speckled trout for many years seem to be wondering where the trout are.

I guess everyone is waiting for a season like we had in October of 1971. Then all you had to do was be on the beach at Lynnhaven Inlet, anywhere outside the bridge on either shore, and you could catch more than you could carry away. I have noticed that many fishermen are not fishing on the piers this time of the year when we really have our best run of roundhead, big blue fish, and flounders.

It seems after all the spot stop running, everyone takes it for granted that there is no more fishing to be done. This is far from the truth. Our best fishing has always been in the months of October and November when the water and weather becomes cooler.

I hate to say this but I am sure we have too many "sunshine" fishermen. These anglers don't know what they are really missing. The piers might be closed after this month, but all you have to do is get out in the surf and cast. I visited the Owl Creek boat ramp Sunday afternoon when all the boats had come in from off-shore. They really creamed the big blues and mackerel at the Chesapeake Light Tower and down at the 4A buoy.

Walter Wells shows off some spot that he caught last week in Rudee Inlet.

THIS IS SOME BARGAIN!

Why Do They Come? Youth Council Urges Recreation Spot

By Thelma Barrett

Robert Cayce, famed seer of Virginia Beach, left a legacy of more than 24 thousand psychic readings at his death in 1945. Since then the Association for Research and Enlightenment, where the readings are housed, has played host to thousands of visitors from all over the world. Why do they come? The answer seems to be varied as the readings themselves.

Dr. Brewer

Dr. Robert G. Brewer nearly passed up a surgeon's scalpel in favor of a mechanic's wrench. "I always had an interest in how things work," he said, "and this aptitude for mechanics nearly sidetracked me into the car healing business instead of the business of healing people."

Chief of Surgery at Suburban Hospital in Bethesda, Bob claims it was his father who encouraged him to use his head and his hands. "If you have it in the head or the hands," he used to tell me, "you'll never have to rely on someone else." And his father was a living example of this philosophy. Called to Washington by F.D.R. after the depression to set up FHA, he suffered a heart attack soon after. "At 43," Bob said, "my father became a semi-invalid—cardiac cripples, we call them today. But he simply turned his attention to real estate work and was very successful."

Bob feels he's been a good surgeon but there have been times when all of the knowledge of his head and his hands have not been enough to save a patient. At these times his scientific mind has been impressed with the way some patients faced and accepted death. One in particular, a young minister's wife, exhibited such faith and courage and serenity that Bob was extremely impressed. "I'm going to keep in touch with you," she promised, just before dying.

But it wasn't until three years later, after he met Donna his upcoming wife, that he had any occasion to recall these last words. Reading a book, Donna had come across a reference to a sitting that Arthur Ford had with some clergymen during which a young minister's wife kept interrupting the sitting—trying to break through with an important message. "I wondered if there was any connection at the time," Bob recalled, "but then I sort of forgot about it."

Six months later, however, they were attending a minister's lecture and the minister spoke of having been present at that particular sitting. "I couldn't resist asking him the name of the woman who kept trying to get through," said Bob. It was the young minister's wife who had made him a promise.

As part of his questing and seeking for spiritual truths that would satisfy his scientific mind, Bob Brewer attended ARE's First Doctor's Conference at its clinic in Phoenix, Ariz. in 1970. "I was impressed by the calibre and the extent of practicality and related open minded material." Not only the readings but the focus of the spirit of the readings impressed Bob Brewer as a doctor. "The focus was on getting at the cause rather than treating symptoms."

More and more Bob is seeing in the areas he is researching that professional people are becoming less competitive and more sharing. "I feel the time is ripe for total programs of healing which would involve all healers." And the Cayce concepts, Bob feels, provides a basis for truth. His own sights are set on this kind of healing center in the near future. "Because," Bob says with feelings, "a sincere cooperative effort of this kind could end the health profession shortage in a meaningful way."

By LORNA ZILLER

The Mayor's Youth Council voted at its first meeting October 19 to "take over" the city government for a day in the spring of 1973.

Members will substitute for city officials on the student government day which is still in the initial planning stages. It was felt that experience would give members a chance to learn first-hand about the city government so they will be able to better understand problems.

Mayor Robert B. Cromwell told the Council it should establish "obtainable goals" if it is to have "meaning and purpose". He said he noticed in reports that some members of last year's Council felt it was "a token organization".

Since the term of mayor is now two years instead of four, Mayor Cromwell said he did not think it would be good for the continuity of the Council for the mayor to play a major role. "There is a possibility of a new mayor every two years."

The council should formulate tangible ideas which can be achieved and schedule a meeting with the City Manager Roger Scott and himself, Mayor Cromwell suggested.

In addition to approving the student government day, the Council discussed at length the need for bicycle paths in each Borough and from outer Boroughs to the Beach Borough. Members felt the matter should be studied to determine how the Council can help in obtaining such paths.

Gay Andrews of First Colonial High School, co-chairman of the Council, also suggested the Council with the Beach Safety Council in communicating safety rules and regulations to students in each school.

Grady Hedgespeth of Kempsville High, co-chairman, brought up the need for commercial recreation places for persons under 18, particularly on Saturday nights. He pointed out that Portsmouth is the only city in the area which has such a facility for minors.

"There are just no places for entertainment for people under 18," he commented. "There is a definite void that needs to be filled."

One member explained that juniors and seniors especially would appreciate a place to go on dates other than school dances and activities all of the time.

The fact that many students are not familiar with the Youth Council and its purpose was mentioned by another member. Gay felt the placing of suggestion boxes in each school for student ideas and thoughts on the city government might help determine what the students are thinking.

Meetings at the schools for students to air opinions on city government to Council representatives was also suggested.

The Council elected Tim Miskofski of Princess Anne High School as secretary of the group. The next meeting will be the third Thursday in November.

Indian Parents Discipline By Example

Evangel Meetings Held Next Week

Virginia Beach in 1964.

Rev. Ron Thompson

Rev. Ron Thompson of Roanoke will be the guest speaker for a series of evangelistic meetings at the Grace Brethren Church to be held Monday through Friday at 7:30 p. m. and Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Upon graduation from Grace Theological Seminary, Rev. Thompson became staff evangelist for the Brethren Board of Evangelism until 1967 when he accepted the call to become pastor of the Patterson Memorial Brethren Church. He was ordained into the ministry in the Grace Brethren Church of

Pretend, for the moment, that there are no discipline problems between you, as parents, and your children.

A beautiful dream? "Not at all," says Rama Khandwala, an Indian tourist guide, here last week visiting Ruby and Charles Frye of Birchwood Gardens, Rama's taking a three-month vacation, seeing the United States and staying with American friends whom she met while conducting tours in Bombay.

"How then," we asked her, "do you discipline your children when they need it?"

"There is no need," Rama replied. "It's very simple. You do not do yourself what you don't want the child to do."

She explained: "If you do not want them to see the movies, you do not go yourself. If you do not want them to tell lies, or drink then you do not do these things either. If you want them to respect the elders, then you respect them, and they automatically do the same."

The Indians, in fact, venerate their elders. "We seek their blessings. After all, they have lived longer and they can teach something," she said.

But it goes further than that. When the marriage is performed, the bride then goes to the home of the groom to live with his parents. Here the elders are cared for in their old age, for this is when they need love and affection the most, Rama says.

And the women are obedient to their husbands. "We respect them and feel they are masters of the house. I believe, in your country that the women are a little too independent. This would cause problems."

Marriages are still arranged in India, although child marriages are a thing of the past.

"It is the girl's parents who send the offer of marriage to the boy's parents. But before it is sent, the boy is investigated to determine his nature, whether he will be able to support the girl, what kind of a family he has."

When the potential bridegroom receives the invitation, then he in turn, investigates the girl's situation. If all is agreeable, then the engagement is announced.

But even then, the couple is never alone until the wedding ceremony.

In Rama's case, her husband and her uncle were students at the University of Bombay and knew each other well. The uncle recommended the marriage.

"You love your husband?" we asked. "Oh yes, very dearly," she said.

He is Satyendra Khandwala, owner of a small plastic factory. They have one daughter, Bina, 14; have been married 24 years. "We consider marriage a very sacred ceremony. There are very few divorces. And then only if the husband can prove that the wife cannot bear children. And even that is changing. Many children are being adopted."

Even widows seldom remarry. Especially so, if the marriage has been a happy one. Rama explained, "We believe in the cycle of birth and rebirth (reincarnation), and sometimes we will say that in the next life we want the same person. So why remarry in this?"

Indian wives take the religion of their husbands after marriage. In this case, Rama became a Hindu. Reincarnation, to her, means that should she commit many sins now she will have to repay in the next rebirth. She might then be born as an animal or into a very poor family, or experience much suffering.

Rama said that in her religion when the body dies, the spirit continues with a cycle of rebirth until the soul achieves salvation. "Once achieved, you stop. And in order to achieve this salvation, it is necessary to detach one's self from the many worldly things and selfish pleasures."

"Tell me Rama," we asked, "do you feel that you have lived before?"

"Yes, I am sure." I feel that maybe I did lead a good life before. That is why God is good to me now and I am so happy."

Rama, 46, is a graduate of the University of Bombay. Fluent in languages, she speaks five, and is now studying Japanese. Her daughter, an eighth-grader is learning French and English, and three Indian languages: Hindu, Gujarati and Marathi.

The children wear uniforms until they've completed high school. Attendance in class covers approximately the same number of days as ours. Vacations, however, are spread out over the year, very often to coincide with religious holidays.

"We don't have the three-month vacation like you do here," she said.

There is still, in India, the caste system; Rama is of the third caste, or that of the merchants.

She works all day, and when she returns at night can relax and enjoy the dinner prepared by her servant. He's been with her for 26 years.

There is no refrigerator in the household... "but what is the need?" Rama asks.

Shopping is done daily. No meat is purchased; it's against the Hindu religion. Buffalo milk is bought in the morning. "We heat it and leave it on the stove, with a cover, to cool. Then in the afternoon we heat it again, bring it to a boil."

At night, then, what they don't drink, is made into yogurt. Their food is considered spicy... "I have found the American food is very bland but that is why my digestion has been so good since I've been here," she laughed.

And what of politics? Rama declined to discuss the political situation with a tactful: "I really know very little about it."

Women vote in large numbers, she said, adding that Prime Minister Indira Gandhi is extremely popular.

Under her leadership, over-population, always an Indian problem, is coming under control through many family planning organizations. "The growth rate is 24.8 per cent, and it is decreasing," she said.

And while the life span has increased to 55 years, men outlive the women. "It is because the women have many births and they work very hard."

But for those women who work outside the home, there are advantages that their American counterpart might envy: Equal pay for men and women in similar jobs; no need for day-care centers, as children are cared for at home, most often by grandparents or relatives.

Then there is the attitude of the male, who, Rama says, feels no threat even if the woman earns more than her husband. "What is the difference? We feel that is all our money, not his or hers. It does not cause a breakdown or friction in marriage."

And there is the matter of dress. Intrigue with her comfortable and feminine blue nylon sari wound about her so casually, we asked her opinion of pantsuits for women.

With a laugh, she replied: "Well, to tell the truth I do not think they make them look so graceful."

Bob Daniel is President Nixon's choice to represent the Fourth Congressional District in Virginia.

If you're going to give Nixon your vote, why not give him a hand?

If you're going to vote for the President, keep going. Give him a second vote. Give him a Congressman from the Fourth District who will support him, who will work with him, who wants him to succeed.

That man is Bob Daniel. He thinks

President Nixon's goals are good for the country. And he thinks it makes a lot of sense to back up the President, not split your vote in an effort to 'balance' it.

The President of the United States has a tough, almost impossible job. And there's not a whole lot that most of us can do to help him after he's elected. But you can help him for a minute on election day.

If you're going to give Nixon your vote on November 7th, why don't you give him a hand? Vote for Bob Daniel for Congress at the same time.

SARI IS COLORFUL, COMFORTABLE says Polly Frye to her house guest, Rama Khandwala.

Wesleyan Progress Report

A campaign by the congregation of Monumental United Methodist Church in Portsmouth has produced nearly $50,000 to help build a small, multi-purpose chapel at Virginia Wesleyan College, according to a report by Virginia Wesleyan's president, Dr. Lambuth M. Clarke.

In his Report to the Board, presented at the semi-annual meeting of the Board of Trustees recently Dr. Clarke noted that Monumental Church has raised $46,500 in cash and pledges to date toward the construction of the multi-purpose college Chapel estimated to cost approximately $100,000.

Reporting on the growth of the six-year old educational, liberal arts college, the President cited the appointment of nine new faculty and staff members for this semester, including Virginia Wesleyan's first full-time instructor in music.

He also reported a continued strong enrollment pattern. "At a time when many private colleges are experiencing declining enrollments, Virginia Wesleyan," said Dr. Clarke, "continues to be in the fortunate position of receiving large numbers of applications."

For the third consecutive year, the College has an official capacity enrollment of 626 full-time students. The Executive Committee of the Board is now carefully reviewing future enrollment projections. The long range enrollment level calls for 1,200 students.

Admission and Financial Aid, noted that 470 (77 per cent) of the students are Virginians and 336 (53 per cent) represent Tidewater cities, including 103 from Virginia Beach.

Badger also reported that 21 different religious affiliations are represented in the student body with approximately 30 per cent United Methodists. He noted a continued improvement in the college board scores and high school rank of students applying at Virginia Wesleyan.

In other reports, Roland A. Nicholson, Director of the Library, noted an increase of 6,000 volumes in the College's Henry Clay Hofheimer, II Library collection. The library currently houses 32,600 volumes. The long range capacity for the library is 210,000 volumes.

P.A. Band Competes

The Princess Anne High School Band recently went to Philadelphia to compete for the title of North American Champion. Although the group did not place in any of the competition, it was a high honor to be the band chosen to represent the state. The band was under the direction of band director Ronald Collins.

M.F. Abel Realty Corporation, located at 3259-D Virginia Beach Blvd., houses Virginia Beach's Realtor of the Year, Frank Abel.

"Being selected last February by the Virginia Beach Board of Realtors as Realtor of the Year was quite an honor," Abel stated.

"When talking to Abel about his philosophy of doing business, it becomes evident why he was selected for the Board of Realtors' top honor. In picking the Realtor of the Year, the Board considers business practices, work on the Board, civic participation, attitude and cooperation.

The Abel firm is primarily concerned with the sale of residential houses and commercial property and with the management of rental property.

Abel came to this area 18 years ago as a naval officer. When he retired as a lieutenant commander after 22 years of service, in June 1964, he entered the real estate business.

With the help of his wife Peggy, who had been in real estate while Abel was in the service, the firm was incorporated January 3 1967 and launched at its present location near Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center.

"I guess it was my wife who first aroused my interest in real estate," Abel commented. "I enjoyed talking with Peggy about the various homes she was selling."

"I also was interested in the growth of the area." In looking at the City of Virginia Beach over the years, Abel commented, "We are growing too fast. The City should take a look at the direction in which it is growing. We need the growth, but we need to provide services for the people already here."

Abel continued, "City officials must take a longer look at our progress and instead of waiting till the last minute, they must make decisions now. Pre-planning cuts down crises like this water and sewage problem which they knew

Builders Change Name

Tidewater Builders Association, Inc. will be the new name Jan. 1 for T.A.H.B., Tidewater Association of Home Builders. The organization has been known as TAHB since it was chartered in 1952.

Builders have diversified in recent years. In addition to home building, they have branched out into construction of shopping centers, office buildings, recreational facilities, townhouses, apartments and other types of construction.

The organization needed a name that would include all phases of its members construction activities, said the newly elected president Edward P. Brogan.

Brogan, President of Ed-Max Construction Corp. in Princess Anne Plaza Mall, Virginia Beach, succeeds C. Roy Kelley, president of C. Roy Kelley Realty Co. in Portsmouth.

The new president holds a bachelor of science degree in business administration. A long-time Tidewater resident, Brogan entered the construction field through a plastering firm he established.

He gave up the plastering business soon after it was established and became a home builder.

He served as first vice president for the past year, and was chairman of the membership and military affairs committees for several years.

Nineteenth Century Post Offices Should Be Marked

OCEANA—Old post offices, established in the 19th century in Princess Anne County should be properly marked, says W. Glenn Elliott.

"It occurs to me that action should be initiated to have suitable markers erected at each of these places which in the past few years have been abandoned or may be in the future," he says.

Consulting "A List of Places Included in 19th Century Virginia Directories," in the Richmond State Library he discovered the following post offices and-or places in former Princess Anne County, with dates of establishment:

Bohney, 1897-98; Broadcreek, 1897-98; Coral, 1897-98; Creeds, 1897-98; Grace, 1897-98; Jacksondale, 1893-4; Kempsville, 1877-78; Land of Promise, 1871-72; London Bridge, 1871-72; Long Bridge, 1880-81.

Also: Lynnhaven, 1868-69; Mapleton 1890-91; Oceana, 1893-94; Pungo, 1884-85; Vine, 1883-84; Virginia Beach, 1884-85.

Elliott says that Back Bay, Bayside, Witch Duck, Wash Woods and many other places in old P.A. County may have had post offices also. Information, at the moment, is not available.

He hopes, in light of the coming American Revolution Bicentennial celebration, that City Council will consider a resolution to appoint a committee to determine the possibility of having these locations marked.

Planners look over the giant map.

rise apartments and provide more open space."

This application of the LUI Scale, according to Forkner, will apply only after adoption of the CZO. He said "City Council will review the results for possible changes in the LUI application at least once a year. We expect modifications in the LUI Scale."

The revised city planning as reflected in the new Zoning Maps, according to Forkner, will provide an expansion of the city's industrial base through permitted office and commercial zoning. Yet true industrial "...uses will remain primarily in existing industrial parks."

While existing resort commercial, and resort hotel, zones in the Beach Borough would be retained plans call for expanding these into the Chesapeake bay front area. The main hotel area is envisioned in that section of the Beach Borough from the Cavalier Hotel to Rudee Inlet, with any future hotels constructed on the west side of Atlantic Avenue to be generally only two stories in height.

The majority of zoning changes will take place in the northern, more urbanized, portion of the city. A Preservation District would be created in the areas of Sandbridge, Back Bay and the North Landing River, for the purpose of protecting the numerous swamps and marshlands in this region.

Planning Director Charles C. Carrington said the proposed Zoning Maps involve work by five planners during the past five-and-a-half months involving some 60,000 parcels of land in the city. He said, "All of this is staff recommendations to the Planning Commission for their consideration as recommendations to City Council."

He concluded, "We want the public to become involved, we want all the citizen involvement we can get. We will welcome invitations from civic groups for meetings regarding the material."

Army Recommends Federal Beach Erosion Program

Representative Thomas N. Downing reported that Robert F. Froelike, Secretary of the Army, had recommended to the House of Representatives that the existing project for beach erosion control at Virginia Beach, be modified to provide for construction of a Federal project for beach erosion control and hurricane protection between Rudee Inlet and 99th Street, a distance of about 6 miles.

In this reach the beach would be raised to elevation 10 and would be about 100 feet wide and then slope to the sea on a 1 on 20 grade.

The total first cost for the work is estimated at $17,010,000 for construction. Based on an interest rate of 5-1/2 percent, the annual charges are estimated at $1,287,100 including $75,300 for periodic beach nourishment and $262,100 for operation and maintenance, and the annual benefits are estimated at $2,720,000. The benefit-cost ratio is 2.1.

The first cost to the United States is estimated at $11,179,000 for construction and $37,700 annually for periodic beach nourishment for the first 25 years or project life. Non-Federal interests would be responsible for $5,831,000 in first costs, all annual operation and maintenance costs, and the remainder of the costs for periodic beach nourishment.

He further recommended that Federal participation in periodic beach nourishment be fore the life of the project. The Secretary's recommendation is sent to Congress for subsequent authorization and appropriation, hopeful, next year.

Downing stated that he was highly pleased that the Beach would receive this additional protective measure and he would do everything possible to expedite its passage through Congress along with the Congressman from the Second district in which Virginia Beach is now included.

UCF Victory Dinner Tonight

NORFOLK — Expressing hope for, and confidence in success, General Chairman W. Wright Harrison has invited all volunteer workers and other interested citizens to attend the "Victory Dinner" of the 1972-73 United Communities Fund campaign tonight at the Lake Wright Motel.

"We can achieve the $2,626,688 goal and make this the 34th consecutive over-the-top United Way campaign in Tidewater," Harrison said, "but it will take a lot of work."

"I firmly believe the good people of Eastern Chesapeake, Norfolk and Virginia Beach will not let down the thousands who need the services of our 48 health, character-building and rehabilitation agencies," he declared.

The report tables will open at 6:30 and dinner will be served at 7:30. Harrison urged workers to get in their final reports at least by 6 o'clock to speed up the tallying process.

Those attending will pay $1.50 each for the $3.50 steak dinner and 54 business and industrial firms will pay the difference. Workers have been urged to bring their wives or husbands.

At last week's third and semi-final report meeting, the campaigners had turned in $2,190,061 for 77.2 percent of the goal, leaving $646,627 or 22.8 percent to go. The drive opened September 25.

Last year's UCF campaign produced $2,686,496 and the goal this year is up 7 percent over that amount. A United Way campaign in Tidewater last achieved its goal in 1959, and then only by $1,254, when the goal was $204,997.

Obedience Trials Will Be Held

The club holds classes every Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. at Roosevelt Shopping Center in warm weather and the Hampton Roads Army Terminal in cold weather.

Vacancies Exist

With trooper vacancies existing in the Department of State Police, Colonel H.W. Burgess, the Department's Superintendent, invited qualified young men from age 21 through 39 to consider a State Police career.

He added that a man must meet certain height and weight requirements, have a high school diploma or a General Educational Development Certificate, be of excellent character, be in good physical condition and pass aptitude tests.

Immediately upon appointment, he is paid the full starting salary of $7,680 which can be increased by steps to $10,032 in 5-1/2 years of satisfactory service. From time to time, blanket increases are given.

Colonel Burgess stated that any young man who feels he can qualify is urged to seek further information from any State Police personnel or office.

New General Manager For 'The Lost Colony' Drama

MANTEO, N.C. — John F. Hruby of Staten Island, N.Y., arrives on Roanoke Island this week to become general manager of Paul Green's symphonic drama, "The Lost Colony".

Announcement of his appointment to the position was made by Mrs. Fred W. Morrison, chairman of Roanoke Island Historical Association and producer of "The Lost Colony".

Hruby will be succeeding William Ingalls, general manager of the drama during its 32nd season, who resigned on Sept. 1, to become head of the department of speech and theatre at Arizona State University.

"With much experience in community and professional theatres, plus his excellent educational background, Mr. Hruby, we believe, is well qualified for the general manager position for 'The Lost Colony,' America's longest-lived outdoor production," said Mrs. Morrison.

A native of Cleveland, Ohio, Hruby is a member of a well known family of musicians in that city. After finishing high school in Cleveland he received a BA degree at Carnegie Mellon University and was then for several years associated with the Youngstown Players, as a designer. He was a captain in the Air Force during World War II, and after the war, received additional degrees in drama at Case Western Reserve University and a PhD in Theatre at the University of Denver.

He was associated with the theatre in Georgia and was a professor of speech at Wesleyan College for Women, before moving to Staten Island where he became dean of students at Wagner College, and later, in 1967, was head of the theatre department of Rider College, Trenton, N.J.

"Mr. Hruby's background experience has included association with various phases of theatre, also as a writer of TV scripts and moderator for radio programs on the arts in New York City," said Mrs. Morrison.

The new general manager of "The Lost Colony" is married, has two children, a son attending Syracuse University and a daughter in high school on Staten Island, where the Hruby family have been making their home for several years.

Watercolors On Exhibit

An exhibit of watercolors by Bob Price, a local artist, is now on display at the Imperial Gallery, 540 Taldon (across from Aragona Shopping Center).

The one-man show, with emphasis on local scenes and people, will be at the gallery through Nov. 11.

Imperial Gallery is open daily (including Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Sundays from 1 to 6 p.m.

Professor Sculpts For Chrysler

Old Dominion University professor Victor A. Pickett has been commissioned to create an eight-foot sculpture for display in Norfolk's cultural and convention center.

Pickett, associate professor of art, has taken a year's leave of absence from the university to devote his time to the creation of a stainless steel design that embraces what he describes as themes of illusory movement and quality.

Commissioned in June by the local architectural firm of Williams and Tazewell and Associates, Pickett expects the sculpture to be completed in six months for its permanent display on the balcony of Chrysler Hall, the center's theatre.

Raised from the floor six inches on a revolving base, the sculpture will be formed from three planes welded together. Two concave planes will be draped on the outside by a convex plane, each plane measuring one-sixteenth of an inch thick. Since light travels faster over concave surfaces, the artist explains there will be an illusion of movement within the sculpture itself in addition to the actual reflection off the stainless steel onto the surrounding surfaces.

Pickett notes that the 1,500-pound structure will also exhibit qualities of duality because of an elliptical hole at its center formed by the intersection of two parabolic cuts.

Explaining his concern with theme, Pickett says, "I suppose my subject matter is, instead of the objects, the quality those objects engender in people."

Assisted by Maury High School sophomore Conrad Kruger, Pickett initially built a small scale model in a plexiglass replica of the theatre for acceptance by the architectural firm. He is now making a full scale prototype from aluminum and cardboard to insure that the larger measurements are faithful to the model. After rectifying any changes that may be necessary, he will trace the patterns onto the stainless steel, cut the steel into correct forms, shape them over a wooden rack, and weld them together.

The process of grinding and polishing the sculpture is a long one. Stone and abrasive discs attached to grinders will be used in the first stages. Following that, the artist will use abrasive paper glued to a rubber backup to give a reflective surface to the steel. The fine polish of the finished product will be attained by shining the surface with felt wheels rubbed with chromium oxide rouge.

Other works by Pickett have been exhibited and are represented in collections and museums in Washington, D.C., Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia. He collaborated on the architectural sculpture for the Science and Technological Building of the Smithsonian Institute. Other architectural sculptures he has built include ones located at the United Virginia Bank in Norfolk, the Space Museum in Hampton and the outdoor sculpture for Kaufman Engineering Building at ODU.

His most recent commission was a series of multiple editions of a free form aluminum sculpture as part of an international advertising campaign for the state.

Hampton Players Present South African Allegory

HAMPTON — The Hampton Players of Hampton Institute will present on Oct. 27 and 28, as the second production of their "Lively Season," the visiting professional company of "The Blood Knot."

Due to the touring company's limited stay in the Peninsula area, a special matinee open to the public will be offered on Friday, Oct. 27, at 1:30 p.m. in addition to the Friday and Saturday performances at 8:15 p.m. For ticket reservations and information call the Armstrong Hall Little Theatre Box Office at 727-6236.

"The Blood Knot" is a presentation of a Boston-based company, Daedalus Productions. The prodigy of a young theatre producer, Daedalus Productions is dedicated to touring plays of contemporary social significance.

The work of South African playwright, Athol Fugard, "The Blood Knot" is set in present South Africa. The play chronicles the uneasy relationship of two destitute brothers, the offspring of an interracial marriage, who share a shanty on the outskirts of Port Elizabeth. Morris, the light-skinned, older man, tries to steer Zachariah, his black brother, towards a traditional security goal: The purchase of a small farm symbolizing opportunity and financial freedom.

Playwright Athol Fugard intended his piece to be both an indictment of South Africa's apartheid policy and an allegory of the profound affect racism anywhere has on its victims. But, it is more than that. "The Blood Knot" focuses on man's need for attention and affection, a need often expressed only when life is void of material comforts.

"The Blood Knot" was first produced in South Africa in 1961 where it was hailed for its dramatic technique and outspoken theme. It was later done successfully in London. The celebrated American engagement starring James Earl Jones opened at New York's Cricket Theatre in March, 1964.

Candy The Clown

Happiness Is His Bus

By DONNA HENDRICK

Don Meeker is a man whose hobby is making people happy.

After he works a little wizardry with greasepaint and pencil, Meeker becomes Candy the Clown, a goofy-looking buffoon in baggy pants and red fright wig.

When he's not being Candy the Clown, Meeker is a Norfolk city fireman.

But when he is being Candy the Clown, this big, blond man becomes a different person, transformed through the magic of makeup.

Meeker visited the Sun offices recently to talk about the business of clowning and to illustrate how he becomes Candy with costume and makeup.

The office started filling up with Sun employees as Meeker became Candy the Clown and he soon had a room full of fascinated onlookers.

As he worked, Meeker described what it's like being a clown and devoting his life to making others happy.

"I like being a clown," Meeker said. "What I like most about it is bringing happiness and good feelings to people. The world is so full of people trying to live so fast...they don't take the time to stop and look at the real enjoyment to be had in life.

"I'm in the business, so to speak, of making people happy."

Don Meeker

As he worked, Meeker became more and more like Candy the Clown and less and less like Don Meeker.

First came the tooth wax to black out a few of his front teeth. "You lose your teeth real quick like this," Meeker joked.

Then he applied a base of baby oil over his entire face, to help take the makeup off later.

Then he outlined his mouth with blue greasepaint. White went under his mouth, on his chin, and red around the top of his mouth and up to his ears.

White greasepaint was next, covering his forehead, eyes, nose, ears and even sideburns.

Then he put a big dot of red greasepaint on the end of his nose... "in case the kids pull my fake nose off, I don't worry about it," he said.

Blue went over and around his eyebrows, with blue glitter for accent. Then he outlined the whole thing — mouth, eyebrows, smile — with a black makeup crayon to emphasize the lines.

Next came bold black lines for eyelashes and crow's feet, outlined with the makeup crayon. The two eyes did not match because "...one's my winking eye." A beauty mark on the right side of his face completed the makeup.

Then he painted liquid rubber on his nose to hold his fake red nose in place. A touch of red glitter on the end of the nose made it sparkle.

Then came the costume — red, white, blue and brown stripes. Meeker makes his own costumes. This one was a baggy top and pants, with a red ruff or collar trimmed in gold braid. Overlong shoes with red, gold and blue glitter, white gloves, a red fright wig and a tiny fire chief's hat completed the costume.

"One of the questions I'm asked most," Meeker said, "is whether I do my own makeup. Not only do I do my own makeup but I also make my own costumes.

"My makeup is very extensive and it takes a long time to put on. When I'd started this, if I'd known better at first, I wouldn't have made it so elaborate. But it's my trademark now and I'll never change it.

"The makeup doesn't bother me like it does some people. Some have trouble with their skin or with their eyes watering. It's waterproof in case I fall in the water somewhere, but it comes off with baby oil. And what the baby oil doesn't get, a hot shower will."

Meeker has been clowning as Candy since 1961 and became Candy almost by accident. He had played Santa Claus before but was asked to play a clown at his children's carnival at Northside Junior High School.

"I put on clown makeup for the carnival," Meeker said, "and then Poopdeck Pappy saw me. I started out with Poopdeck Pappy, who had a show on WAVY-TV, and worked with him for four months.

Business

"The next thing you know, I was getting calls for commercials and parties and things like that."

New Candy is in great demand on TV, at amusement parks, for promotional advertising, birthday parties and such.

"I do a lot of Christmas shows as Santa," he said. "I don't play department store Santas anymore, but I used to. Now I do parties and things like that. I might have five or six parties to go to all on Christmas Eve."

Besides looking funny in his clown makeup, Meeker also has a whole bag of tricks up his sleeve to delight his young audiences. He keeps a pocket full of balloons handy in his costume and is adept at making all kinds of balloon animals. He also performs magic tricks as part of his clown act.

"You should have a specialty," he said. "You must have some talent to contribute. I pride myself on my magic and I must say that magic is much more difficult to learn than makeup."

"I might mess up a magic trick for the kids and make a joke out of it. For an adult audience, I play it straight and just do the tricks."

Meeker also has a chance to play a clown every year when the Beatty-Cole Brothers circus comes to town.

"They call me every time they come to town," he said. "I know a lot of their routines and I think they're good and real funny. I do that circus every year if I can."

A few years ago, Meeker starred in "The Clown Who Ran Away," a children's play at Lake Wright Dinner Playhouse. Now he wants to produce the play again.

"I don't necessarily want to star in it, but I would like to direct it," he said. "When we originally put it on, it was supposed to run for two weeks. Instead it ran eight weeks."

"It is a beautiful play and I swear I'm going to produce it. Tim Jones directed it and it was so good. It was the first acting I'd ever done and I had to learn 14 pages of script. But I loved it."

Meeker is currently sharing his clowning experience with students at Old Dominion University in a class in the special Rainbow Courses program.

The class started Oct. 21 and lasts for six weeks. The 18-hour course will cover everything Meeker knows about clowning.

"I was hoping the college kids could go out and make a buck or two out of what they learn," he said.

"I'm hoping we'll get a clown club out of it and some Santas, too. I'm going to try to organize the Santas for Christmas."

"I think it's very possible that we'll have a new clown club from this class. We need six members to start a 'tent' (clown club) in the area, affiliated with the national Clown Club of America."

"Clowning is a wonderful occupation. I just wish I could do it full time," Meeker sighed.

"The biggest part of being a clown is putting your feelings into it. It makes you feel better when you make other people happy. You're happy when you're a clown."

"Would I ever give it up? Only when I have to give up breathing."

'The Planets' Featured At City Planetarium

"The Planets" is the November program at the Virginia Beach City Public Schools Planetarium, at Plaza Junior High School.

The introduction of the program includes how the planets were named. Three theories of the solar system will be discussed and general information about each of the nine known planets will be reviewed as slides of telescopic views of the planets are shown.

The latest findings on the direction of rotation of the planets, atmosphere, number of moons, and an artist's sketches of what the planet surfaces might look like will also be included.

Planetarium hours are Sundays and Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. There will be no program on Sunday, Nov. 25.

The planetarium office, 48117, may be telephoned for reservation. Admission is free. Children under 12 should be accompanied by an adult.

The planetarium may be reached from the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway by taking the Lynnhaven exit to 300 S. Lynnhaven Road, Plaza Junior High School.
